Lynn Wind Ensemble
Wind Works wit’ Wit

LYNN
Conservatory of Music
Wind Ensemble Roster

FLUTE
Jared Harrison
Scott Kemsley
Alla Sorokoletova

OBOE
Paul Chinen
Walker Harnden
Trevor Mansell
John Weisberg

CLARINET
Tsukasa Cherkaoui
Jacqueline Gillette
Cameron Hewes
Christine Pascual-Fernandez
Shaquelle Southwell
Isabel Thompson
Amalie Wyrick-Flax

BASSOON
Sebastian Castellanos
Michael Pittman

ALTO SAX
Matthew Amedio
Dannel Espinoza

TENOR SAX
Kyle Mechmet

BARITONE SAX
Michael Sawzin

FRENCH HORN
Mileidy Gonzalez
Shaun Murray

TRUMPET
Zachary Brown
Kevin Karabell
Mark Poljak
Alexander Ramazanov
Luke Schwalbach
Natalie Smith

TROMBONE
Mariana Cisneros
Halgrimur Hauksson
Zongxi Li
Emily Nichols

EUPHONIUM
Brian Logan
Ryan Ruark

TUBA
Sodienye Finebone
Joseph Guimaraes

PERCUSSION
Isaac Fernandez Hernandez
Tyler Flynt
Juanmanuel Lopez
Bernadette Manalo

DOUBLE BASS
August Berger

PIANO
Alfonso Hernandez

Please silence or turn off all electronic devices, including cell phones, beepers, and watch alarms. Unauthorized recording or photography is strictly prohibited.
Lynn Wind Ensemble
Kenneth Amis, music director and conductor

7:30 pm, Friday, January 15, 2016
Keith C. and Elaine Johnson Wold
Performing Arts Center

Onze Variations sur un theme de Haydn
Jean Françaix
(1912-1997)

Introduzione – Thema
Variation 1: Pochissimo più vivo
Variation 2: Moderato
Variation 3: Allegro
Variation 4: Adagio
Variation 5: Mouvement de valse viennoise
Variation 6: Andante
Variation 7: Vivace
Variation 8: Mouvement de valse
Variation 9: Moderato
Variation 10: Molto tranquillo
Variation 11: Allegro giocoso

Circus Polka
Igor Stravinsky
(1882-1971)

Hommage à Stravinsky
Ole Schmidt
(1928-2010)

I.
II.
III.

Spiel, Op.39
Ernst Toch
(1887-1964)

I. Ouvertüre
II. Idyll
III. Buffo

INTERMISSION

Snurra (Whirl)
Hans Gefors
(b.1952)

Popcopy
Scott McAllister
(b.1969)

I. More Cowbell!
II. One Time at Band Camp
III. Serenity Now
Kenneth Amis, music director

World-renowned composer-performer, Kenneth Amis, enjoys an international career of high acclaim. Amis began his musical exploits in his home country of Bermuda. He started playing the piano at a young age and upon entering high school took up the tuba and developed an interest in performing and writing music. A Suite for Bass Tuba, composed when he was only fifteen, marked his first published work. A year later, at age sixteen, he enrolled in Boston University where he majored in composition. After graduating from Boston University he attended the New England Conservatory of Music where he received his Master of Music Degree in Composition.

An active composer, Amis has received commissions from several institutions and music organizations. He has undertaken residencies with educational institutions ranging from middle schools through the collegiate level and was a founding member and on the Board of Directors for the American Composers Forum New England Chapter. In 2007 he was the Composer-in-residence at the South Shore Conservatory in Massachusetts.

Audiences around the world have enjoyed Amis’s music through performances by such groups as the Shanghai Symphony Orchestra, the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, the Royal Academy of Music Symphonic Winds, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the National Arts Center Orchestra of Ottawa. In 2003, Amis became the youngest recipient of New England Conservatory of Music’s “Outstanding Alumni Award.”

As a tuba player, Amis has performed as a soloist with the English Chamber Orchestra and has been a member of the Tanglewood Festival Orchestra and the New World Symphony Orchestra. His performance skills are showcased on many commercial records distributed internationally. Amis is presently the tuba player of the Empire Brass and the Palm Beach Opera Orchestra, a performing artist for Besson instruments, the assistant conductor for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Wind Ensemble, and, in addition to being a member of Lynn University’s esteemed faculty, serves on the faculty at
Program Notes

Circus Polka
By Igor Stravinsky

It was early 1942, and George Balanchine had a commission from the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus for a ballet. Balanchine quickly contacted his friend and fellow Russian expatriate, Igor Stravinsky, and told him he needed a polka. "For whom?" Stravinsky asked. "Elephants," came the answer. "How old?" "Young." "If they are very young, I will do it," Stravinsky declared.

Perhaps Stravinsky wanted young elephants because he thought the older ones wouldn't take kindly to the often unpredictable rhythms and surprising harmonies in his music. After all, he'd made his name 30 years earlier as the shockingly modern composer of ballets such as The Firebird (1910) and The Rite of Spring (1913) for the Ballet Russes, where the Rite's premiere had nearly caused a riot, and he'd hardly slowed down since then. From jazz to serialism, Stravinsky was always in the forefront of musical experimentation. And now, elephants. Why not?

Stravinsky quickly completed a piano version of the polka in February. Robert Russell Bennett was too busy to orchestrate, so at Bennett's suggestion Stravinsky hired film composer David Raksin (Laura, Forever Amber, The Bad and the Beautiful) to score it for wind band. The Circus Polka premiered at Madison Square Garden in the spring of 1942, performed by the Ringling Circus Band and starring, according to the program, "Fifty Elephants and Fifty Beautiful Girls in an Original Choreographic Tour de Force, featuring Modoc, a premiere ballerina." Modoc, of course, was an elephant, and the New York Times reported that "Modoc the Elephant danced with amazing grace, and in time to the tune, closing in perfect cadence with the crashing finale." Although contemporary accounts claim the other elephants were not quite as adept at following Stravinsky's rhythmic quirks, the act was a success and ran for 425 performances.

Stravinsky later adapted the work for full orchestra and premiered that version with the Boston Symphony in 1944. At least one of the corps de ballet -- or her keeper -- remembered her earlier experience with the polka, as Stravinsky writes:

"After conducting my orchestral original on radio from Boston in 1944, I received a congratulatory telegram from Bessie, a young pachyderm who had carried a ballerina and who had heard that broadcast in the winter headquarters of the Circus in Sarasota. I never saw the circus ballet, but I met Bessie in Los Angeles once and shook her foot."

Befitting its subject, the Circus Polka is brisk and bright. Though it maintains a 2/4 meter throughout, the music often moves in bursts and jerks within that meter, like a dancer going in and out of step. Stravinsky makes use of typical circus music sounds, such as thumping bass drum with cymbal or fleet piccolo lines, and frequently features the low brass, evoking images of ponderous elephants prancing. The work includes an enthusiastic quotation from Franz Schubert’s Marche militaire, which Stravinsky insisted was not used at all ironically. A series of off-beat "stamps" bring the piece to a rousing close.

Hommage à Stravinsky
By Ole Schmidt

Ole Schmidt was one of Denmark’s leading composers and conductors; his Hommage à Stravinsky was written in early 1985 and had already been broadcast and performed many times in Denmark. The work is a humorous and affectionate tribute to the music of possibly the most eclectic of composers, Igor Stravinsky, and this homage reflects all of the different facets of his output. Within the three short movements there are obvious references to works as disparate as the Mendelssohn Wedding March and Rhapsody in Blue, entwined with well-known material from all of Stravinsky’s major works, as well as a more subtle employment of favorite motifs and rhythmic patterns. But much more significant than this is the striking way in which Schmidt has captured the very essence of Stravinsky’s various styles in his instrumentation, harmonic and rhythmic procedures and in the overall construction of the work. One constantly feels that Stravinsky might well have produced exactly this piece if he had been asked for a witty potpourri of past works.

Spiel, op. 39
By Ernst Toch

Ernst Toch was one of the most important contemporary composers of the late Twenties and Thirties. He was active in Berlin and after 1933, in Los Angeles. As well as being a composer he was mainly a teacher. Spiel Op. 39 for Symphonie wind ensemble was composed at the instigation of Paul Hindemith and received its first performance in 1926 directed by Hermann Scherchen at the Donaueschingen Chamber Music Festival. Toch himself wrote an alternative arrangement of the work for the wind section of a symphony orchestra. This edition has been adapted for the instruments usually found in a wind band today, with regard to the clarinets and trumpets, without altering the musical substance of the work. There is no part for Saxophone as in the original. Today Spiel is still considered to be one of the best compositions of concert music.

Popcopy
By Scott McAllister

Popcopy is a work in three movements that is inspired by famous catchphrases. The work’s title in itself is also a catchphrase from a Dave Chappelle skit that deals with a local copy center, to which every composer can relate. The first movement, “More Cowbell!” is based on the popular “Saturday Night Live” skit featuring Will Ferrell as a fictional cowbell player for the band Glue Oyster Cult. Ferrell’s character, Gene Frenkle, tells the band that since there are no songs that feature the cowbell, he would be doing a disservice to himself and the band if he didn’t “play the hell out of this: cowbell. The producer then coins the famous phrase: “Guess what?! I’ve got a fever, and the only prescription is... more cowbell!” In this movement, four cowbell parts surround the band to emulate the struggle of balance between the band and the cowbells, but the cowbells also help in keeping the band together during complex rhythmic sections.

The second movement, “One Time at Band Camp,” is a catchphrase from the movie American Pie. The character Michelle Flaherty is an eccentric nerd who tells many annoying stories about her experiences at band camp. The character in the movie plays the flute, so a flute soloist is featured. This movement portrays reminiscences of summer love found and lost.

“Serenity Now” is inspired by an episode from the final season of “Seinfeld.” George’s father, Frank Costanza, is advised to say “serenity now” aloud every time his blood pressure is in danger. Instead of calmly saying the phrase, Frank yells it each time. The character Kramer also uses this catchphrase, but when he finally has a mental meltdown, he discovers that saying this phrase only makes things worse. Like the episode itself, the music deals with the line between sanity and insanity with at least four other story lines going on at the same time. There are multiple band quotes scattered in the music (shrouded tributes to Holst, Hindemith, and Sousa), aleatoric and non-metered sections, and a schizophrenic form to this final movement.

Theme and Variations, op. 43a
By Arnold Schoenberg

In 1943, Arnold Schoenberg composed Theme and Variations, op. 43a after numerous requests for a wind band composition by his dear friend and president of G. Schirmer Music, Carl Engel. While not written in the composer’s famed twelve-tone style, Schoenberg still believed Opus 43a to be of practical and artistic significance. In a 1944 letter to Fritz Reiner, the composer stated: “...this is not one of my main works, as everybody can see, because it is not a composition with twelve tones. It is one of those compositions which one writes in order to enjoy one’s own virtuosity and, on the other hand, to give a certain group of music lovers — here it is the bands — something better to play. I can assure you — and I think I can prove it — technically this piece is a masterwork."

Although opus 43a establishes itself clearly as a tonal work in G minor, Schoenberg gives himself free reign to assert his mastery of the contrapuntal techniques developed in his prior twelve-tone compositions by utilizing variation form. In order to achieve maximum diversity of character, Schoenberg clearly delineates each of the sections of the piece, giving these sections a specific melodic, orchestrational and formal framework. Not only is the melody of the theme, heard in the first twenty-one measures, developed over the course of the work’s seven variations, but background elements shift from structural scenery to predominance in the ensuing contrapuntal elaboration before the original theme reasserts itself in the climactic finale of the piece. By fracturing and passing around melody and other primary material, Schoenberg plays upon the coloristic strengths inherent in wind band instrumentation. Finally, over the course of opus 43a the formal structure of contrapuntal development receives elaboration, so the listener hears in various sections an adagio, a waltz, a strict canon and a fugato before the final variation, a “choral fantasy”.

Featured Upcoming Events

John Oliveira String Competition Semifinals
Saturday, Jan. 16 – 12 p.m.
Location: Count and Countess de Hoernle International Center | Amarnick-Goldstein Concert Hall
FREE

John Oliveira String Competition Finals
Sunday, Jan. 17 – 10 a.m.
Location: Count and Countess de Hoernle International Center | Amarnick-Goldstein Concert Hall
FREE

John Oliveira String Competition Winner Recital
Sunday, Jan. 24 – 4 p.m.
Location: Count and Countess de Hoernle International Center | Amarnick-Goldstein Concert Hall
$10

LYNN Conservatory of Music
3601 N. Military Trail
Boca Raton, FL 33431
Lynn.edu/music
Box Office:
+1 561-237-9000
events.lynn.edu