2019-2020 Season
Dear Lynn University Friends,

“When talent meets inspiration, the results are extraordinary.” – Dr. Jon Robertson

The remarkable history of the Conservatory of Music at Lynn has shown that with the right vision, people and plan, anything is possible. We are proud of all that the Conservatory – and its talented alumni – have accomplished over the past 20 years.

Two decades ago, my father, Lynn President Emeritus Dr. Donald E. Ross, had a vision of developing a world-renowned conservatory within a university environment when he welcomed the music division of the Harid Conservatory into our institution. From that moment, we embarked on an amazing journey to make that vision a reality. We created classroom and rehearsal spaces within our de Hoernle International Center, and our students began performing in our Amarnick-Goldstein Concert Hall. Then, 10 years ago, we opened the magnificent Keith C. and Elaine Johnson Wold Performing Arts Center, where our Philharmonia Orchestra now draws 1,500 guests per run.

The growth and evolution of our Conservatory also would not be possible without the right team in place. We are grateful to all those who worked hard in leadership positions throughout the Conservatory’s integration into our university, and we were excited to welcome Dr. Robertson as dean in 2005. Dr. Robertson’s expertise, leadership and passion attracted a faculty comprised of world-class performers and instructors, and together they drove the Conservatory to national prestige. The rigorous professional performance degree program continues to draw gifted young musicians, and many of the Conservatory’s alumni have gone on to perform with celebrated national and international symphonies and orchestras. Finally, the Conservatory would not be where it is today without our generous friends and supporters, as every one of its students receives scholarship assistance.

The Conservatory of Music is one of the most prestigious programs of our university, and I can proudly say that my father’s and Jon’s visions, supported by the right people and the right plan, were more successful than we could have ever imagined.

And now, as we look toward the future, our goal is to create an endowment fund for the Conservatory so that we can continue to attract the most talented faculty and students and sustain the program’s level of excellence.

Thanks to my father, Dr. Robertson, our outstanding faculty, talented students and generous friends, the results are truly extraordinary, and we look forward to another 20 years of musical artistry and acclaim.

Kevin M. Ross
President
Lynn University
Dear Friends,

As we celebrate the 20th Anniversary of the Lynn Conservatory of Music, I’ve been reflecting on all that has happened over that time.

From the first moment I heard that the Harid Conservatory would focus on their dance division, I knew it was a strategic move to have the music division become the Lynn Conservatory of Music. There were many discussions between myself and the Lynn University Board of Trustees. We knew it would be an added expense, but we also knew that it would provide tremendous publicity for our university.

So we set out to create space on our small campus. Faculty offices were set up, studios for rehearsing were created and the first concert was held on Saturday Oct. 2, 1999 featuring the Harid Philharmonia in a program called “Family Night: Classical Favorites” with conductor Arthur Weisberg and violin soloist Sylvia Kim.

It took place at Olympic Heights High School. Sylvia was a pre-college age violinist then who had won the “Harid String Competition for Young Musicians”. She later went on to enroll in the Conservatory at Lynn and earned her Bachelor’s degree with us. She now plays with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

In 2005, we made another move to recruit and hire Dr. Jon Robertson to serve as our fourth dean for the Conservatory. Over the last 14 years, Dean Robertson has continued to recruit highly esteemed faculty and the most talented students that our conservatory is now considered among the ranks of the best known music schools in the country.

Thinking back on the time, it was a pleasure to work with then dean of the music division, Dr. Roberta Rust. She made the transition smooth and was able to find funding for student scholarships that was important to making them feel at home on our campus.

In those early days, we thought of the conservatory as a football team. You invest a lot of time, effort and money, but the payoff is what made us who we are today. It was one of the best things we did and today, more than half of our alumni hold an orchestral position and more than two-thirds have their own studios for teaching today’s aspiring musicians, either privately or in colleges, universities, and schools.

Sincerely,

Donald E. Ross

Program Notes

Darius MILHAUD (1892-1974)
Scaramouche, op. 165b, for two pianos
Year of composition: 1937
Movements: 3
Duration: 10 min.

Darius Milhaud is a French composer and member of the well-known Les Six (The Group of Six) along with Georges Auric, Louis Durey, Arthur Honegger, Darius Milhaud, Francis Poulenc, and Germaine Tailleferre. His music was influenced by jazz, Brazilian tunes and polytonality. This version of Scaramouche for two pianos is a transcription in the incidental music for theatrical productions that Milhaud wrote in the mid-1930s. The music of the first and third movements is based upon the children’s play “Le Médecin Volant” (“The Flying Doctor”), that Milhaud wrote for a production by Henri Pascar for the Theatre Scaramouche Company. The music of the second movement is used in overture to Bolivar – a new play by the Uruguayan-born French writer Jules Supervielle on the South American revolutionary Simón Bolívar. Written in 1937 in Paris, Scaramouche was premiered at the Paris International Exposition. After it was performed, the publisher Deiss asked Milhaud for permission to publish this and although Milhaud did not expect it to be successful, it became one of his most popular works. The first movement is titled Vif, which can be translated as bright and brilliant. It is very noisy and lively. Since it’s originally based upon children’s play, all the images are related to childhood. Fast runs (or according to the title of the play) “flying” scales up and down, bounce inside the music which alternates with a very pure second theme. The second movement Modéré is a very dreamy, lullaby song between a child and mother. The final movement is Braziléira. Mouvement de Samba. Influenced by Brazilian samba, the music evokes music from the street celebrating holidays, carnival and the energy of the Brazilian people as witnessed by Milhaud during his time there.

Joseph HAYDN (1732-1809)
Piano Trio in G Major, No. 39 'Gypsy' Hob.XV:25

Haydn is a leading composer of the Classical era, who is known as the father of the Symphony and String quartet. He composed 45 piano trios. This trio was composed in 1795. One of a set, it is dedicated to his friend, widow Rebecca Schroeter, who he had very warm and close relationship with. It is named the ‘Gypsy trio’ because of Hungarian tunes used by Haydn in the last movement. He might have first heard these tunes while serving as Music Director at Eszterháza Castle where Gypsy musicians often performed. The first movement Andante is a set of variations. The variations alternate between major and minor modes. Each variation is differently developed through the texture and rhythm in the piano creating the impression that each variation becomes faster. The second movement is Poco Adagio in the key of E major. A gentle, cantabile song, it has a permanent triple accompaniment. The melody line starts in the piano and is later taken over by the violin, and towards the end is played by both violin and piano together. The mood of this movement is very graceful, gentle and peaceful. The third movement is Rondo a l’Ongarese: Presto and is the most famous movement of Haydn’s piano trios. In a Rondo form which means that the refrain or principal theme alternates with several contrasting themes, called “episodes”. You can hear how music shifts from each section to another, from major to minor and backwards. This movement is a wild dance, saturated... with gypsy character and heavy accents which is trait of Hungarian folk music which celebrates joy, passion, and life.

Claude DEBUSSY (1862-1918)

Petite Suite, L. 65

Debussy liked working on piano duet compositions, often sketching symphonic works in a form for four hands. While some works stayed in the same state, others were later orchestrated, just like Petite Suite. It was first performed on February 2, 1889 by Debussy together with the pianist-publisher Jacques Durand. This cycle has attractive melodies, contrasting with most of his later compositions where Debussy explored highly contemporary harmonies and colors. The suite has four independent movements and is constructed in such a way as to give equal opportunities to both pianists. En bateau (In a Boat) the first movement, has a beautiful melody, accompanied by arpeggios that clearly suggest ripples and whirlpools in water. The second movement, Cortege, reminds the listener of a marching band processing through a festival parade. Menuet is the most personal and intimate movement of this work. The final movement Ballet is an energetic, celebratory dance.

Johannes BRAHMS (1833-1897)

Violin Sonata No 3 in D minor, Op 108

Johannes Brahms is considered one of the most important composers of the romantic period. Brahms’ Violin Sonata No.3 in D minor, Op. 108, is the last of his violin sonatas, composed between 1886 and 1888. It was premiered on December 22, 1888, in Cologne, with Jenö Hubay as violinist and the composer as pianist. In contrast to his first two violin sonatas, this one has four movements and the most dramatic and intense of the three. The first movement sets the stage for the work, built on rhythmic dissonance and brooding emotions. The Adagio is a heartfelt, beautiful, song that reminds the listener of a love song. The scherzo movement, Un poco presto e con sentimento, was described by Clara Schumann as "like a lovely girl playing with her lover". The final movement returns to the home key of D minor. It is the most virtuosic and powerful of all four movements.

Piano Quartet No.1 in g minor, Op.25

II – Intermezzo

IV - Rondo alla Zingarese

The Piano Quartet No. 1 in G minor, op. 25, was composed between 1856 and 1861. It was premiered in 1861 in Hamburg, with Clara Schumann at the piano. The complete work is more than 30 minutes so we are presenting half of the work. The 2nd movement, Intermezzo, is calm, however, it has a constant figure that creates a perpetual motion effect contrasting with its lyrical melodies. It ends with a brief coda in C major that repeats the theme of the trio. The 4th movement, Rondo alla Zingarese, is modeled after Haydn’s Gypsy Trio. It contains one less theme than Haydn’s but adds dramatic cadenzas for the piano and string.
Biographies

David Brill
David Brill has won many violin competitions, both domestic and international. In 2018, David placed first in the senior division of the Grand Prize Virtuoso International Music Competition, Vienna, Austria, and was invited to perform as a soloist at the Musikverein in Vienna, Austria. Additionally, in 2018, he won first prize in the senior division at the Golden Classical Music Awards International Competition in the Strings category, and gave his solo debut in Weill Recital Hall at Carnegie Hall in New York City on November 2, 2018. You will not find a program featuring as many prominent artists in one place as will be featured on this very special concert. Commemorating the 20 years they have dedicated to the Conservatory of Music and Lynn University, this program will feature hallmarks of the repertoire and must not be missed!
Welcome to the 2019-2020 season which marks the 20th Anniversary of the Lynn Conservatory of Music. As we celebrate our twenty years of making music we also celebrate the generosity of Elaine J. Wold who has challenged us to raise $500,000 in new endowment donations this year. She will match all your gifts up to $500,000. This gift ensures our place among the premier conservatories of the world and a staple of our community. We look forward to seeing you at many of the anniversary concerts and events planned for this year as the talent students, successful alumni and extraordinary faculty of the Lynn Conservatory share with you the beautiful world of music. – Jon Robertson, dean

There are a number of ways by which you can help us fulfill our mission:

Friends of the Conservatory of Music
Lynn University’s Friends of the Conservatory of Music is a volunteer organization that supports high-quality music education through fundraising and community outreach. Raising more than $4 million since 2003, the Friends support Lynn’s effort to provide free tuition scholarships and room and board to all Conservatory of Music students. The group also raises money for the Dean’s Discretionary Fund, which supports the immediate needs of the university’s music performance students. This is accomplished through annual gifts and special events, such as outreach concerts and the annual Gingerbread Holiday Concert.

To learn more about joining the Friends and its many benefits, such as complimentary concert admission, visit Give.lynn.edu/support-music.

The Leadership Society of Lynn University
The Leadership Society is the premier annual giving society for donors who are committed to ensuring a standard of excellence at Lynn for all students. Leadership Society donors make an annual gift of $2,500 or more and have the option of directing their gift to support the Conservatory of Music. Leadership Society donors receive invitations to exclusive events throughout the year that offer opportunities to engage with other Leadership Society donors and university administrators.

Planned Giving
Planned gifts provide important support for the future of Lynn University, its colleges and programs. Your legacy lives on at Lynn University in perpetuity - various options include, but are not limited to, bequests by will, charitable gift annuities and life insurance.

Your contribution to the Conservatory is tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law. For additional information, please contact Lisa Miller at 561-237-7745.
