Cristina Rodriguez started her musical studies at the age of 12 at the Escuela Libre de Música from Ponce in her natal Puerto Rico. She graduated with honors receiving the 'Juan Manuel Campos' Medal for her hard academic and artistic work. Soon after graduation she enrolled at the Conservatorio de Música de Puerto Rico where she studied with Luis Arroyo and Benito Diaz and where she had the opportunity to play in different ensembles such as the Symphony Orchestra, the conservatory concert band and different chamber ensembles. She also has the opportunity to attend different summer camps and academies such as Festival Orquesta Sinfónica Juvenil de las Americas (FOSJA) and the International Horn Symposium held in Tuscaloosa, Alabama where she took classes from prominent horn artist such as Gail Williams, James Chambers and Charles 'Skeap' Snead. Miss Rodríguez has also played professionally with diverse ensembles such as Orquesta Sinfónica de Puerto Rico, Banda Estatal de Puerto Rico, Banda Municipal de Ponce, Orquesta de Mayaguez, Orquesta Sinfónica de Bayamón. In 2006 Miss Rodriguez was invited to play Richard Strauss Concerto No. 1 as featured solo with the Orquesta Sinfónica de Bayamón for their season kick off concert. After graduation in 2005 from the conservatory of Puerto Rico, Miss Rodriguez started new endeavors in the educational field. In the year 2007 she taught music at the Benigno Frenández García School as band conductor and in 2008 at the Consuelo López Benet School as teacher of recorder. During the summer of 2010 she worked with kids at the Salvador Bráu School as teacher of music appreciation. Miss Rodríguez worked also for the program Orquestas Sinfónicas Juveniles and Instituto de Música Juan Morell Campos as Horn Coach. Currently, Miss Rodriguez is pursuing her Master of Music at Lynn University Conservatory of Music in Boca Raton, Florida where she is studying under the tutelage of Gregory Miller
