Judith Saxton joined the NCSA Artist-Faculty fall of 2006 as a full-time teacher of trumpet. In addition to private and studio classes Ms. Saxton teaches audition preparation, conducts trumpet and brass ensembles and coaches brass quintets. She is also Coordinator of the Brass area. Currently Saxton is principal with the Key West Symphony and continues to perform extra with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and various orchestras on the eastern seaboard. In the summers she is associate principal/third trumpet faculty with Eastern Music Festival (Greensboro, North Carolina) where she also coaches chamber music and teaches, and principal with the Shenandoah Valley Bach Festival. Her performing career includes performances in the Soviet Union and Japan and three years as principal with the Hong Kong

Philharmonic. While freelancing in Chicago for ten years, she was principal with seven Midwest orchestras, principal and soloist with the Chicago Chamber orchestra, and performed with the Chicago Symphony and CSO Brass Quintet, the Grant Park Symphony, and Concertante di Chicago. Prior to joining the NCSA faculty, Saxton lived and worked in Wichita, Kansas as Associate Professor of Trumpet at Wichita State University and principal trumpet and soloist with the Wichita Symphony and the Wichita Brass Quintet. Judith received her music education in graduate school at Northwestern University and undergraduate at Mansfield University, PA. Saxton's most influential teachers were Vincent Cichowicz, Arnold Jacobs, William Scarlett, Susan Slaughter and Dr. Michael Galloway. The legendary Adolph Herseth was her coach during her four years with the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, the training orchestra of the Chicago Symphony.
