Andrew Glendening is Principal Trombonist of the Redlands Symphony Orchestra and Dean of the School of Music at the University of Redlands. A native of Logansport, Indiana, he earned his Bachelor of Music degree in Trombone Performance from the Oberlin Conservatory of Music before attending Indiana University where he was awarded the school's highest honor, the Performer's Certificate, by unanimous vote of the faculty. He also earned his Master of Music and was the first person to receive the Doctor of Music degree in Trombone Performance from the Indiana University School of Music. He has studied trombone with M. Dee Stewart, Per Brevig, Thomas Cramer, and Frank Crissafulli.

A proponent of new music for the trombone, Dr. Glendening has premiered over 100 works including three concerti. In 1998 he was awarded Morehead State University's Distinguished Creative Productions Award for his solo CD is titled "Pathways: New Music for Trombone." In 1999 he premiered the wind ensemble version of Robert Parris's Trombone Concerto with the U.S. Army Band "Pershing's Own." In November of 2002, Glendening was the featured performer at the American Music Festival in Sofia, Bulgaria.

Prior to Redlands, Dr. Glendening was Chair of the Department of Music at Denison University in Granville, Ohio. He has also served on the faculties of Morehead State University and Northeastern Illinois University. He resides in Redlands with his wife Candace and sons Liam and Logan.
