Amarnick - Goldstein
Concert Hall

Grand Opening
January 18, 2001

at Lynn University
Dear Friends,

As Lynn University dedicates the first facility for our Conservatory of Music, I can’t help but count the many blessings the gift of music has brought to our school.

Our music performance students not only enrich the University community, they infuse campus life with the presence of music. Their achievements at competitions around the globe bring tremendous honor and recognition to Lynn. In just the past few months, more than a dozen Conservatory students and alumni have taken top prizes and won coveted placements at the world’s elite music festivals, concerts and auditions.

We are equally proud of our Artist-Faculty, whose discipline, dedication and talent serve as inspiration for their aspiring young pupils, and whose influence is felt across the entire campus community. Distinguished ambassadors for the school, they travel the world over as soloists and guest performers. Yet, we value them most for their passion for teaching.

Last and by no means least, we have been introduced to a remarkable circle of cultural enthusiasts who appreciate the meaningful impact of music’s marriage with education. The Amarnicks and Goldsteins are vanguards of this community whose love of performance education is now shared by all through Lynn University’s first concert facility. For their friendship and support, we will always be grateful.

And so, it is with great pleasure this evening that we dedicate the Amarnick-Goldstein Concert Hall. In the many years to come, I hope no seat goes empty and each of you is touched by the sound of Lynn University’s resplendent music.

Sincerely,

Donald E. Ross
President

LYNN UNIVERSITY
The Amarnick - Goldstein Concert Hall is, in large part, a result of the special friendship between Aaron and Ronnie Amarnick and Arnold and Marlene Goldstein and their commitment to arts and education. Their love of music and devotion to education inspired the generosity which has resulted in the first permanent facility on campus for the Conservatory of Music at Lynn University.

DR. AND MRS. ARNOLD S. GOLDSIEN

Arnold Goldstein is chairman of Made E-Z Products (formerly E-Z Legal Forms), and senior partner in the law firm of Arnold S. Goldstein, where he specializes in asset protection law.
