Flutist, Jessica Aura Willis, is currently finishing her Master Degree with full scholarship with Renee Siebert of the NY Philharmonic at Lynn University. Since beginning her studies last year, Miss Willis has additionally performed with the Palm Beach Symphony, Palm Beach Pops, Symphony of the Americas, Teatro Lirico D'Europa, and the Florida Grand Opera. Native of New York, Jessica has been the principal flute of the DiCapo Opera, New Jersey Philharmonic, Ensemble 212, and the Manhattan Symphony. Her studies began she began attending the Interlochen Arts Camp and Tanglewood BUTI in high school during her summers. She began playing with the New York Youth Symphony in Carnegie Hall as a senior, and continued through her first years of her undergraduate degree at SUNY Purchase. While at Purchase she studied flute with Tara Helen O’Connor, minored in economics and won the concerto competition in 2001, performing C.P.E. Bach’s Bb Major Concerto. She has also performed all four of Mozart’s works for flute and orchestra with the NJPhil, and Ensemble 212. In 2004, she began three years of intense studies with principal flutist of the NY Philharmonic, Robert Langevin, and piccoloist of the Metropolitan Opera, Stephanie Mortimore. Jessica has performed on stages from the United Nations to Brooklyn’s famous Bargemusic, and participated in masterclasses of the world’s finest flutists, including Sir James Galway. She is currently on faculty at the Aaron Copland School of Music teaching flute, and chamber music.
