2019-2020 Season
Dear Lynn University Friends,

“When talent meets inspiration, the results are extraordinary.” – Dr. Jon Robertson

The remarkable history of the Conservatory of Music at Lynn has shown that with the right vision, people and plan, anything is possible. We are proud of all that the Conservatory – and its talented alumni – have accomplished over the past 20 years.

Two decades ago, my father, Lynn President Emeritus Dr. Donald E. Ross, had a vision of developing a world-renowned conservatory within a university environment when he welcomed the music division of the Harid Conservatory into our institution. From that moment, we embarked on an amazing journey to make that vision a reality. We created classroom and rehearsal spaces within our De Hoernle International Center, and our students began performing in our Amarnick-Goldstein Concert Hall. Then, 10 years ago, we opened the magnificent Keith C. and Elaine Johnson Wold Performing Arts Center, where our Philharmonia Orchestra now draws 1,500 guests per run.

The growth and evolution of our Conservatory also would not be possible without the right team in place. We are grateful to all those who worked hard in leadership positions throughout the Conservatory’s integration into our university, and we were excited to welcome Dr. Robertson as dean in 2005. Dr. Robertson’s expertise, leadership and passion attracted a faculty comprised of world-class performers and instructors, and together they drove the Conservatory to national prestige. The rigorous professional performance degree program continues to draw gifted young musicians, and many of the Conservatory’s alumni have gone on to perform with celebrated national and international symphonies and orchestras. Finally, the Conservatory would not be where it is today without our generous friends and supporters, as every one of its students receives scholarship assistance.

The Conservatory of Music is one of the most prestigious programs of our university, and I can proudly say that my father’s and Jon’s visions, supported by the right people and the right plan, were more successful than we could have ever imagined.

And now, as we look toward the future, our goal is to create an endowment fund for the Conservatory so that we can continue to attract the most talented faculty and students and sustain the program’s level of excellence.

Thanks to my father, Dr. Robertson, our outstanding faculty, talented students and generous friends, the results are truly extraordinary, and we look forward to another 20 years of musical artistry and acclaim.

Kevin M. Ross
President
Lynn University
Dear Friends,

As we celebrate the 20th Anniversary of the Lynn Conservatory of Music, I've been reflecting on all that has happened over that time.

From the first moment I heard that the Harid Conservatory would focus on their dance division, I knew it was a strategic move to have the music division become the Lynn Conservatory of Music. There were many discussions between myself and the Lynn University Board of Trustees. We knew it would be an added expense, but we also knew that it would provide tremendous publicity for our university.

So we set out to create space on our small campus. Faculty offices were set up, studios for rehearsing were created and the first concert was held on Saturday Oct. 2, 1999 featuring the Harid Philharmonia in a program called “Family Night: Classical Favorites” with conductor Arthur Weisberg and violin soloist Sylvia Kim.

It took place at Olympic Heights High School. Sylvia was a pre-college age violinist then who had won the “Harid String Competition for Young Musicians”. She later went on to enroll in the Conservatory at Lynn and earned her Bachelor’s degree with us. She now plays with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

In 2005, we made another move to recruit and hire Dr. Jon Robertson to serve as our fourth dean for the Conservatory. Over the last 14 years, Dean Robertson has continued to recruit highly esteemed faculty and the most talented students that our conservatory is now considered among the ranks of the best known music schools in the country.

Thinking back on the time, it was a pleasure to work with then dean of the music division, Dr. Roberta Rust. She made the transition smooth and was able to find funding for student scholarships that was important to making them feel at home on our campus.

In those early days, we thought of the conservatory as a football team. You invest a lot of time, effort and money, but the payoff is what made us who we are today. It was one of the best things we did and today, more than half of our alumni hold an orchestral position and more than two-thirds have their own studios for teaching today’s aspiring musicians, either privately or in colleges, universities, and schools.

Sincerely,

Donald E. Ross

He graduated from the Curtis Institute having studied with Metta Watts, Orlando Cole, Leonard Rose, and Zara Nelsova. He participated in the Pablo Casals master classes during two summers at Marlboro, and performed and recorded with the orchestra conducted by Casals. David also participated in a Jeuness Musical in Yugoslavia and in the Aspen and Tanglewood music festivals. He has been soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the National Symphony in Washington, the symphony of Nice, France, the Solisti L'Aquilani at Carnegie Hall, and more than 75 solo performances with the Abruzzo Symphony in Italy. He was awarded a Martha Baird Rockefeller grant after performing at Carnegie Hall, and recorded trios with famed pianist Rudolf Serkin and violinist Pina Carmirelli. David was chosen to play in a master class lesson with Pablo Casals on the Bell Telephone Hour as part of a documentary on the Marlboro Festival. Two projects of particular historical significance are a CD book set released by violin dealers Bein & Fushi, with Oliveira showcasing thirty exquisite Stradivaris and Guarneri del Gesù, and then a CD of short pieces highlighting the Library of Congress Collection of rare violins on Biddulph Recordings. In 2016, Elmar Oliveira founded the Elmar Oliveira International Violin Competition (EOIVC)—only the second such competition dedicated to the violin in the United States. The competition, takes place every three years, is open to any violinist of any nationality between the ages of 16-32 and offers not only cash prizes, but concerts and career support as well. The next competition will take place at the Lynn Conservatory of Music, where Elmar Oliveira is Distinguished Artist-in-Residence, January 14 – January 26, 2020. The Finals of the inaugural competition in 2017 garnered more than 1.5 million views across multiple social media platforms, which speaks to the relevance and importance of this competition. Additionally, Elmar Oliveira has founded the John Oliveira String Competition, an internal competition at the Lynn Conservatory of Music which is a yearly competition open to all string students at the school. The competition was founded in memory of Elmar Oliveira’s late brother, the violinist John Oliveira. Oliveira is passionate about expanding the role and repertoire of the violin as well as championing contemporary music and unjustly neglected works. He is a devoted teacher and promoter of young artists, and also keenly supports the art of contemporary violin and bow making.

Welcome to the 2019-2020 season which marks the 20th Anniversary of the Lynn Conservatory of Music. As we celebrate our twenty years of making music we also celebrate the generosity of Elaine J. Wold who has challenged us to raise $500,000 in new endowment donations this year. She will match all your gifts up to $500,000. This gift ensures our place among the premier conservatories of the world and a staple of our community. We look forward to seeing you at many of the anniversary concerts and events planned for this year as the talent students, successful alumni and extraordinary faculty of the Lynn Conservatory share with you the beautiful world of music. – Jon Robertson, dean

There are a number of ways by which you can help us fulfill our mission:

Friends of the Conservatory of Music

Lynn University’s Friends of the Conservatory of Music is a volunteer organization that supports high-quality music education through fundraising and community outreach. Raising more than $4 million since 2003, the Friends support Lynn’s effort to provide free tuition scholarships and room and board to all Conservatory of Music students. The group also raises money for the Dean’s Discretionary Fund, which supports the immediate needs of the university’s music performance students. This is accomplished through annual gifts and special events, such as outreach concerts and the annual Gingerbread Holiday Concert.

To learn more about joining the Friends and its many benefits, such as complimentary concert admission, visit Give.lynn.edu/support-music.

The Leadership Society of Lynn University

The Leadership Society is the premier annual giving society for donors who are committed to ensuring a standard of excellence at Lynn for all students. Leadership Society donors make an annual gift of $2,500 or more and have the option of directing their gift to support the Conservatory of Music. Leadership Society donors receive invitations to exclusive events throughout the year that offer opportunities to engage with other Leadership Society donors and university administrators.

Planned Giving
