Rachel Britton began studying trombone in 1999. In 2002 Ms. Britton joined the Tucson Philharmonia Youth Orchestra and was accepted as a student of Tom Ervin, former President of the International Trombone Association and student of Robert Marsteller. While continuing her interest in orchestral music Ms. Britton also played in several jazz ensembles throughout Tucson and won the lead trombone position in the Arizona All-State Jazz Band in 2004. In 2006 Ms. Britton performed as a featured soloist with the Tucson Philharmonia Youth Orchestra and the Pima Community College Wind Ensemble. After finishing high school a semester early, she was accepted to the University of Arizona where she performed with the Arizona Symphony Orchestra and Arizona Studio Jazz Ensemble. In addition to these, Ms. Britton was a member of the Southern Arizona Symphony Orchestra and the St. Andrew’s Chamber Orchestra. In 2008 Ms. Britton transferred to Lynn University where she currently studies with Dan Satterwhite.
