Jon Manasse and his Duo partner, the acclaimed pianist Jon Nakamatsu, serve as Artistic Directors of the Cape Cod Chamber Music Festival, an appointment announced during summer 2006.
Leading performances praised as “intense, richly detailed…polished and well-crafted” (Miami Herald), “finely nuanced and expressive” (South Florida Classical Review), and “integrating choral and instrumental sonorities with clarity and impact” (Palm Beach ArtsPaper), Brett Karlin is quickly establishing himself as a dynamic conductor of choral-orchestral masterworks. Having worked with a wide variety of ensembles, Karlin is a passionate performer of large-scale symphonic masterpieces, while equally at home with historically informed performances of distinctive Baroque repertoire.

As the artistic director of both the Master Chorale of South Florida & Master Chorale of Tampa Bay, Karlin leads over 250 singers through choral-orchestral masterworks and prepares the choirs for collaborative performances with other artists and ensembles, including The Cleveland Orchestra, Russian National Orchestra, The Florida Orchestra, Itzhak Perlman, Andrea Bocelli, and Kristin Chenoweth, among many others.

Now entering his sixth season with Master Chorale of South Florida, Karlin will conduct the 120-voice chorus, orchestra, and guest artists through classical monoliths—Haydn’s Creation, Bernstein's Chichester Psalms, and Berlioz’ Te Deum—as well as a commissioned work by leading American composer, Dominick DiOrio, and lighter fare for a Holiday Pops program. As the new artistic director of The Master Chorale of Tampa Bay, Karlin will prepare the Chorale for several masterworks and pops concerts with The Florida Orchestra and lead the ensemble in two performances – Christmas with the Master Chorale, a program of holiday favorites inspired by the Chorale’s critically acclaimed recording, and a 40th Anniversary Concert that will include performances in the Tampa Bay area, as well as a concert tour to New York City for the ensemble’s Carnegie Hall debut.

In addition to these appointments, Karlin has previously held the positions of music director for the Broward Symphony Orchestra, chorus master for Florida Grand Opera, and mentored the next generation of classical musicians as the director of Florida’s Singing Sons and Seraphic Fire’s Miami Choral Academy. Karlin has also maintained guest conducting engagements with a variety of choral, orchestral, and academic ensembles, including The Symphonia, Lynn Philharmonia, and several All-County/Honor Choir ensembles.

In 2009, he became the assistant conductor for Seraphic Fire, where he assisted with the ensemble’s critically acclaimed and 2012 Grammy-nominated CD, A Seraphic Fire Christmas. Karlin also served as assistant chorus master and singer for the Professional Choral Institute’s recording of the London version of Brahms' Ein Deutches Requiem, which received a 2012 Grammy nomination for “Best Choral Performance.” Most recently, he prepared the ensemble for 12 performances of A Seraphic Fire Christmas during the 2017-18 Season.

Karlin holds a Bachelor of Arts in Voice from Florida State University and Master of Music from University of South Florida. An avid lover of music from the Baroque era and historically informed performance (HIP), Karlin can be found tuning harpsichords and listening to J.S. Bach when not working with ensembles.

Master Chorale of South Florida

From Beethoven to Broadway, Bach to Bernstein, the Master Chorale of South Florida performs works by the full range of beloved classical and contemporary composers, along with some lighter fare.

The Master Chorale is a highly select, auditioned ensemble comprised of singers from Broward, Miami-Dade, and Palm Beach counties. Originally founded in 2003, the Chorale is thriving under artistic director and conductor Brett Karlin.

The Master Chorale communicates the transformative and unifying power of choral music by performing a rich and varied repertoire. Since its premiere performance of Mozart’s Requiem (in honor of the Florida Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus), the Master Chorale has delighted South Florida audiences with classical music’s greatest works. These have included Handel’s Messiah, Beethoven’s Symphony No. 9, Brahms’ Ein Deutches Requiem, Verdi’s Requiem, Bernstein’s Chichester Psalms, Haydn’s Lord Nelson Mass and Bach’s Mass in B Minor. In response to audience demand, the Chorale recently added a concert of lighter fare to its yearly concert series, performing such delights as Broadway favorites, movie music and Gilbert & Sullivan.

In addition to its own concert series, the Master Chorale is in high demand for featured guest performances with other musical organizations. Throughout its history, the Chorale has collaborated with the Cleveland Orchestra, New World Symphony, Russian National Orchestra, Andrea Bocelli, Itzhak Perlman, Franz Welser-Môst, Giancarlo Guerrero, and James Judd, among many others.

The Master Chorale is an avid proponent of maintaining a strong cultural fabric in South Florida and supports its community by engaging local solo artists, orchestras and other nonprofit organizations.

Concerto for Clarinet
By Aaron Copland

Notes by Tsukasa Cherkaoui

Who Is Aaron Copland?
Born: November 14, 1900, in Brooklyn, New York
Died: December 2, 1990, in North Tarrytown, New York

An American composer, Aaron Copland is recognized for establishing the American classical music. His popular works include, Lincoln Portrait, Appalachian Spring, Fanfare for the Common Man.

By the late 1940s, Copland was regarded as the preeminent American composer of his time. He was a chairman of the United States Group for Latin American Music, which was sponsored by the government of the United States, Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay. In 1947, Copland participated in a four-month tour, sponsored by the Department of State. The purpose of this tour was to spread the American culture to the Latin American countries beyond what could be obtained from the Hollywood movies. Copland was asked to deliver lectures, radio talks, and concerts in not only the large cities but also the towns in remote places.

Copland’s tour concluded with reports to the State Department. Also, he wrote an article, which appeared in the New York Times on December 21, 1947. Copland experienced a real Samba, as opposed to the Broadway version, in Bahia, where he supposedly preserved its original form. He learned that “it is not the rhythmic element that gives it[s] character and originality…[it is] the wealth of melodic invention. All this makes a real samba very indigenous and very hard to sing, copy or remember. I was told that they have to be simplified for ordinary carnival use.” While he was in Bahia, he was excited to hear a musical instrument for the first time. The instrument was called the berimbau. He suspected that it had the Moorish influence and described, “The berimbau looks like the bow of a bow and arrow. It has a single string and produces only two notes…These are struck by a small wooden stick.”

As Copland recalled the tour, he was concerned that live performances of American classical music were still rare in the major cities, such as Rio, São Paulo, Montevedeo, and Buenos Aires. Recordings were the sole guidance of the American music for those who studied it. He observed that phonograph shops carried almost no recoding of serious American music, but radio stations had and performed them. He noted that “Gershwin’s music is universally known and liked. Among living Americans, the names of Samuel Barber, Roy Harris, Walter Piston and William Schuman are most familiar. On the other hand, no one seemed ever to have hear of Leonard Bernstein!”

Interesting Facts About the Concerto
• The concerto was commissioned by Benny Goodman. Goodman was interested in expanding new repertoire for himself. He also commissioned Contrasts by Béla Bartók, Concerto for Clarinet and Orchestra by Paul Hindemith, and Derivations for Clarinet and Band by Morton Gould.

- Copland composed the Concerto between 1947 and 1948, and he worked on it during his stay in Latin America. The inspiration from the culture was reflected in the second movement. He assimilated the rhythms, melodies, and sounds of South American popular music to the themes.

- Copland hoped to have a premier of the concerto at Tanglewood. Leonard Bernstein wrote to him, “I fought with Kouss valiantly over the Clarinet Concerto, to no avail. Benny and Tanglewood don’t mix in his mind.” Around this time, Koussevitzky suggested Copland to arrange the first movement and call it Elegy. Copland agreed to it at first; however, he regretted the decision and wrote to Koussevitzky, “I made a mistake in saying ‘yes’ to your proposal… I am convinced that to cut the pieces in half takes away from the integrity of the Concerto as I originally conceived it.” It was first performed by Benny Goodman, Fritz Reiner, and the NBC Symphony Orchestra over the radio on November 6, 1950.

- The first performance of the Concerto in a concert hall took place on November 28, 1950. It was performed by Ralph McLane (the principal clarinet of the orchestra), Eugene Ormandy, and the Philadelphia Orchestra in Carnegie Hall. Reviews were not enthusiastic. Olin Downes from the New York Times wrote, “[I find] it unoriginal, forced in its humor, feeble in invention.” Regardless of the early reviews, the Concerto has been recorded and performed by many outstanding clarinetists. And, it became a standard repertoire for the clarinet.

Te Deum

By Hector Berlioz

Notes by Guillermo Figueroa

The year 2019 marks the 150th anniversary of the death of one of the greatest musical geniuses of all time, Hector Berlioz. I believe he would have been amused that his Te Deum is performed in his memory, as much of this music was originally intended for a grandiose musical work to honor the Great Men of France.

Berlioz music has often been misunderstood and criticized. Starting in his own time and adopted city, early 19th century Paris, where the level of musical appreciation and understanding by the general public was still rooted in simple Italian opera, he had to fight fiercely for acceptance and performances. His music followed no prescribed or ‘correct’ path, unlike the music of the German school. Each of his works is entirely unique, developing its own inner logic combined with a powerful expression. Here we have one of the most original and adventurous composers, but one that was also firmly rooted in the past. The same mind that revered Shakespeare, Virgil and Beethoven produced the striking and revolutionary Symphonie Fantastique, a work whose sound world has no precedent. As he himself put it, “The prevailing characteristics of my music are passionate expression, intense ardour, rhythmical animation and unexpected turns. When I say passionate expression, I mean an expression determined on enforcing the inner meaning of its subject, even when that subject is the contrary of passion”. The Fantastique is a perfect example of the wild, emotive, highly personal and emotionally complex side of his creativity.

The Te Deum we will hear today represents the other strain of his fertile creativity – public, ceremonial and ritual - the alter ego to the Fantastique, so to speak. The pomp and majesty of ceremonial 19th century France, as represented by the French Empire, Napoleon and the Church, always stirred his imagination. Although essentially agnostic, he created some of the most extraordinary religious music. Along with the majestic and grandiose Te Deum, we have his apocalyptic and monumental Requiem, and the gentle and pastoral The Childhood of Christ, forming an unparalleled triptic of religious and ceremonial music.

The Te Deum is scored for a large orchestra, organ, a tenor solo, two adult choirs and a children’s choir. Conceived for a large Parisian cathedral - St. Eustache, which had a magnificent organ placed at the opposite end of the altar - he imagined a dialogue between Emperor (orchestra and chorus) and Pope (organ). The six movements use the text of the Te Deum, an ancient hymn of praise to God. But in typical Berlioz fashion, he rearranges the order of the verses to fit the musical logic, and to make his dramatic point. The music alternates between the majesty and adoration of God to the pleading of the insignificant masses of humanity. The gentle but passionate prayer of the solo tenor, Te Ergo Quasemus, asking for mercy from the Almighty in the name of all humankind, comes just before the imposing finale, Judex Crederis (“we believe you will come as Judge, O Lord, may we not be confounded forever”), which he considered the grandest thing he ever created. In its enormous scale (certainly the largest work we have attempted here at Lynn!), range of expression and majesty, it is one of his ‘architectural' works, a term he himself used to describe this and the Requiem.

> “The Te Deum was performed today with the most magnificent precision. It was colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite!”
> (Berlioz, in a letter to Liszt, after the Te Deum premiere conducted by himself)

The use of a children’s chorus is probably related to one of his earliest significant memories as a child, as told in his Memoirs. He describes his first communion, where there was a chorus of white-robed maidens. “I went up to receive the sacrament. As I did so the choir burst forth into the Eucharistic hymn. At the sound of those virginal voices I was overwhelmed with a sudden rush of mystic passionate emotion. A new world of love and feeling was revealed to me, more glorious by far than the heaven of which I had heard so much…. This was my first musical experience”.

"The Te Deum was performed today with the most magnificent precision. It was colossal, Babylonian, Ninivite!"
(Berlioz, in a letter to Liszt, after the Te Deum premiere conducted by himself)
Translation for Berlioz, Te Deum

Te Deum (Hymn)
We praise Thee, O God,
we acknowledge Thee to be the Lord.
the Father everlasting,
al the earth doth worship.

Tibi omnes (Hymn)
To Thee all the angels,
to Thee the heavens, and all the powers,
to Thee the cherubim and seraphim
cry out without ceasing:
Holy, holy, holy,
Lord God of hosts.
Full are the heavens and the earth
of the majesty of Thy glory.
Thee, the glorious choir of the apostles,
Thee, the admirable company of the prophets,
Thee, the white-robed army of martyrs doth praise
Thee, the holy Church throughout the world
doth confess:
The Father of incomprehensible majesty;
Thine adorable, true, and only Son,
and the Holy Ghost the Paraclete.

Dignare, Domine (Prayer)
O Lord, this day
to keep us without sin.
Make us to be numbered with Thy saints
in glory everlasting.
Have mercy on us, have mercy on us!

Christe, Rex Gloriae (Hymn)
Thou art the King of Glory, O Christ,
Thou art the everlasting Son of the Father.
Thou, having overcome the sting of death,
hast opened to believers
the kingdom of heaven.
having taken upon Thee
to deliver man,
didst not abhor the Virgin’s womb.
Thou sittest at the right hand of God,
in the glory of the Father.

Te Ergo Quaesumus (Prayer)
We therefore pray Thee,
help Thy servants,
whom Thou hast redeemed with Thy precious blood.
O Lord, let Thy mercy light upon us,
as our trust is in Thee.
Judex Crederis (Hymn and Prayer)
We believe that Thou shalt come to be our judge.
O Lord, in Thee have I trusted, let me never be confounded.
Save Thy people and bless Thine heritage, O Lord.
Day by day we magnify and praise Thee.
And we praise Thy name forever.
Community Support

The Friends of the Conservatory of Music is a volunteer organization formed to promote high quality performance education for exceptionally talented young musicians.

For some students, meeting the costs associated with a world-class conservatory education can be highly challenging. This dedicated group provides financial support for many annual and endowed scholarships. Since its establishment in 2003, the Friends have raised significant funds through annual gifts and special events. The Gingerbread Holiday Concert is chief among them.

Legacy of Giving.
Instrumental for our future.

Legacy gifts or planned gifts provide important support for the future of the Lynn Conservatory. Your legacy lives on at Lynn University in perpetuity – various options include, but are not limited to, bequests by will, charitable gift annuities and life insurance. And, you can direct your planned gift to benefit a particular studio (piano, violin), scholarship or endowment.

Your contribution to the Conservatory is tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law. For additional information, please contact Lisa Miller at 561-237-7745.
