Dear Alumnus, Parent, and Friend:

The 1989-90 academic year has been one of great excitement and accomplishment for the College of Boca Raton! Our Alumni Association has grown by leaps and bounds — with a terrific first annual Homecoming Weekend last October, as well as Alumni Receptions in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, DC, and Chicago. In addition, a Parents' Association was born with an energetic Executive Board and some great initiatives planned for the 1990-91 academic year.

Capping a year filled with milestones, perhaps the most exciting news of all has been the announcement of the new Lynn Residence, Health and Wellness Center, with much-needed dormitory rooms and a health spa with exercise facilities. Made possible through a magnanimous gift of $2.5 million from Gene and Christine Lynn, this state-of-the-art facility will help the College significantly reduce the number of off-campus housing locations necessitated by our burgeoning enrollment.

Early in 1990, the College announced the opening of the beautiful University Club, a handsome, new private dining facility and laboratory operated by our Hotel and Restaurant Management students. Also made possible through the generosity of the Lynns, this delightful, beautifully-appointed club has been a popular luncheon spot for businessmen, friends of the College, and residents of the Boca community. In great demand for special functions and meetings, The University Club will open September 24th and is expected to continue to increase in private memberships.

As the College of Boca Raton looks toward the upcoming 1990-91 academic year, there is great excitement in the air — with groundbreaking for the new Residence, Health and Wellness Center scheduled for early fall, planning commencing for a new library, the National NAIA Men's Soccer Tournament which the College is hosting in November, and our Tenth Annual College Ball — to name but a few of the special moments on the horizon.

Indeed, we are on the move...and to celebrate the decade of the nineties during which we expect the College will continue to grow and prosper, it is my pleasure to introduce this premiere issue of CBR Today, your new quarterly magazine. This is your magazine, and we look forward to hearing from you! Send us your ideas, family pictures, recent accomplishments...and let's grow together as a College of Boca Raton community.

Warmest personal regards,

Donald E. Ross
President
One hundred fifty-six students were awarded Master, Baccalaureate or Associate degrees during Commencement Exercises on May 5. Typical Florida skies and balmy weather greeted the one thousand guests on campus for the ceremony followed by a Champagne Brunch on the veranda of the Lynn Student Center.

Keynote speaker was David F. Demarest, Jr., Assistant to the President of the United States for Communications. Prior to his appointment, he was Director of Public Affairs for the Presidential Transition Office and also served as Director of Communications for Bush/Quayle '88, joining the campaign in July, 1988. Mr. Demarest was granted an Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters from the College.
Honorary degrees were also granted to Frank A. Robino, Jr., Kevin M. Cahill, M.D., and C. Wayne Freeberg. President Ross recognized Mr. Robino as the "unsung hero" behind the College of Boca Raton. He was the major force behind the group of people credited with putting the financially troubled Marymount College back on its feet. Mr. Robino has served on the Board of Trustees of the College since its inception and is Chairman of the Board of the First State Bank of Wilmington, Delaware. During his professional career as a builder/developer, he was President of the Delaware Home Builders Association, a Director of the National Home Builders, and founding member of the Good Government Committee of 100.
Kevin M. Cahill, M.D., has dedicated his adult life to helping to relieve pain and suffering in the world. He earned his medical degree from Cornell University and studied at The Royal College of Surgeons in England and the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Disease. Dr. Cahill is Director of the Tropical Disease Center of Lenox Hill Hospital and Professor and Chairman of the Department of International Health and Tropical Medicine at The Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. A prolific writer, he has published almost two hundred papers and authored a number of outstanding books, the most recent of which is the highly acclaimed A Bridge to Peace.

C. Wayne Freeberg is Executive Director of the State Board of Independent Colleges and Universities. During his eighteen year tenure with the Board, Mr. Freeberg has assisted twenty-one independent colleges in achieving initial grants of accreditation, or as in the case of the College of Boca Raton, moving from a junior college to an institution offering bachelor and graduate degree programs. His legacy to the State of Florida, twenty-one accredited colleges, serves as testimony to his work on behalf of independent higher education.

Annmarie Hebling was the recipient of The Trustees' Medal awarded for outstanding scholarship, leadership, loyalty, and service to the College. The presentation was made by Richard P. McCusker, Vice Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the College.

The President's Award was given to Daniel Francis Mathews, III by President Ross. The award is made to the graduating senior who has exhibited extraordinary service and commitment to the College.
Mary Heidi Marie Ladika was the recipient of the Bachelor Degree Award presented by Trustee Christine Lynn for attaining the highest cumulative grade point average in the four-year degree program.

James J. Oussani presented the James J. Oussani Award to Andrew William Ritchason. The award is presented to the student who has been judged to be the most innovative and motivated in completing a degree program.

The Medina McMenimen Bickel Fashion Award is presented to the graduating senior who exhibits outstanding leadership and the potential for a successful career in Fashion Marketing. Michele Naomi Feldman was the recipient this year.

Horatio Alberto Clare-Arias, III received the Associate Degree Award for attaining the highest cumulative grade point average in the two-year degree program. The award was presented by Gabriel Rosica, a member of the Board of Overseers of the College.

Dr. John R. Pickering, Professor of History/Political Science, was voted the Outstanding Teacher for 1990. The award is especially significant since the students select the recipient. Dr. Pickering has been a member of the faculty of the College since 1976.
The Greatest Gift: An Alumni Scholarship Award Program

The greatest gift you can give your College is a new student. The Greatest Gift Program, administered by the Scholarship Committee of the College, involves honoring individuals by issuing Gift Scholarship Units. By exercising the Gift Scholarship Unit, the individual can, in turn, honor a would-be student by helping him or her to acquire an education at the College.

A Gift Scholarship Unit will be awarded to each GRADUATE of the College carrying the restriction that it be used for a new, full-time, undergraduate student. The Gift Scholarship Unit is a one-time award covering one course in each of the recipient's first two successive semesters. Alumni will be receiving their certificates soon with full details explaining the program.
Cities in Schools
Scholarships Awarded

Cities In Schools is the nation's largest, most comprehensive, private non-profit organization devoted to keeping at-risk youth in school. It does so by creating partnerships to bring existing private and public resources and services into the schools where they most benefit at-risk youth and their families. Cities In Schools provides a supportive, caring atmosphere and direct access to the resources students need to develop self worth and motivation to stay in school, making the critical difference in an at-risk student's quality of life. Some 26,000 students nationally are enrolled in the program.

Last year, the College awarded its first Cities In Schools Scholarship. Designated as an Alumni Scholarship, John P. Langan, '81, Distinguished Alumnus, 1989, presented the award to William Percell Richardson of Philadelphia, PA. Percell completed this school year with impressive grades in his Accounting major.

Three young people emerged as finalists this year and, initially, one scholarship was to be awarded. The four interviewers had a difficult time deciding which one of the three was most worthy of the scholarship. President Ross took their dilemma under advisement and announced that with the assistance of friends and alumni, all three finalists would be awarded a full four-year scholarship to the College. This year's scholarships were awarded in the name of Bernadette O'Grady, '79, Distinguished Alumnus, 1990.

The three recipients who will be incoming freshmen in September are Tamara Pardue, Tony Shackelton, and Maria Martinez.

Tamara Pardue, a graduate of Boca Raton Community High School, entered the CIS program during her junior year battling tremendous pressures at home and in school. Coming from a single parent home, she had to work in order to supplement her mother's income. Tamara learned how to cope with the daily stress and pressure of balancing a job and school. By applying the problem-solving skills taught in CIS, she has overcome the odds. She excelled as Captain of her high school soccer team and as a member of the honors chorus. Tamara plans to pursue a career in elementary education.

Tony Shackelton graduated from Palm Beach Lakes Community High School in June. He entered the CIS program during his sophomore year, haunted by tremendous family problems and social pressures. With no motivation, enthusiasm, or direction, Tony was a potential drop-out. After two years in the CIS program, Tony took positive steps to change his life. The oldest of four children in a single parent home, Tony has always had to work in order to help his mother support the family. Despite these hardships, he has set a commendable example for his siblings. He excelled in sports, overcoming problems with asthma. His spirit and determination have changed his attitude about his future. With improved grades and a new direction, Tony is determined to become a teacher working with special needs children.

Maria Martinez recently graduated from the Goldcoast Corporate Academy. During her sophomore year at Palm Beach Gardens High School, Maria lost her ambition to finish high school. However, she returned to school two years ago and overcame many family and personal problems. Through hard work and perseverance, Maria set goals for her future. Truancy and lost credits were replaced by commitment and good grades. Although Maria had to work to help support her single parent family, she graduated with a 2.9 grade point average. She plans to pursue a career in law.

The College of Boca Raton and Cities In Schools: The Dream Team

by John P. Langan, '81

In the fall of 1987, my brother and I started a financial consulting firm called Langan Associates to provide accounting, tax, law and systems' consulting services to small and mid-size businesses. One of our first clients was Cities In Schools, a national drop-out prevention program which utilizes the concept of integrated social services within high schools to reduce the over one million drop-outs a year. As much as I admired the program and its mission, my initial work with CIS was of the "green eye-shade" nature; however, in the spring of 1989 that changed dramatically.
At the 1989 Commencement of the College of Boca Raton, I was honored to receive the first annual Outstanding Alumnus award and accept a position as Vice-President of the newly created CBR Alumni Association. In discussing our goals for the Association, I explained to President Ross my work with CIS, and I indicated that providing educational opportunity to students who have turned their lives around after being at-risk of dropping out was something that I felt the College should stand for and the alumni should promote.

I was stunned when President Ross offered me a full four-year scholarship to give to a CIS student in conjunction with my award.

The criteria for the scholarship are successful completion of a local CIS program, emotional readiness to take on the challenge of college, and the ability to meet the College's admissions' requirements. Students must submit an application and if selected as a finalist, be interviewed by the selection committee which includes representatives from CIS, the College Admissions Department, and the Alumni Association.

Because of the success of our first winner, Percell Richardson from the CIS program in Philadelphia, and the College's expanded work in the area of drop-out prevention through a generous grant from The Lois Pope Foundation, the College agreed to make the scholarship a continuing part of the annual Outstanding Alumnus award.

The 1990 CBR Outstanding Alumnus Award recipient was Bernadette O'Grady, a 1979 graduate of the College who is program director of WPTV, Channel 5 in West Palm Beach. Accordingly, the selection committee decided to honor a student from the Cities In Schools West Palm Beach program. Three students, Maria Martinez, Tony Shackleton, and Tammy Pardue, were selected as finalists and on Friday, June 22nd, the students were interviewed by the selection committee.

After spending a half-hour with each candidate and being totally impressed by their commitment to continuing their CIS-inspired turn-around through the successful completion of college, I was on my way to discuss my impressions with the other members of the committee when I ran into President Ross. He could see from my expression that we had three outstanding students, all of whom clearly met the criteria established by the committee. I told him that regardless of the outcome of the competition, I was committed both spiritually and financially to helping all three have the opportunity to attend college that so many take for granted. We discussed the fact that CIS had prepared these students for success whether they received the award or not, but now it was in our hands to help this dream come true.

With a 2:00 p.m. press release deadline approaching, the selection committee, members of the College's Board of Trustees, representatives from the CIS national, state, and local programs and President Ross sat down for lunch to discuss the goals of both CIS and the College with respect to at-risk youth. At 1:58 as the discussions reached an emotional peak, I pointed to my watch at which time President Ross turned over his place card and wrote the following opening for a press release:

"The College of Boca Raton announced today that it has awarded full four-year scholarships to three students from the Cities In Schools West Palm Beach drop-out prevention program through the generosity of the alumni and friends of the college."

With that, Tony, Maria and Tammy got a big piece of their dream.

"1989-90 was a vintage year — with almost too many high points to capture in a single issue of CBR Today! But we have tried, all the same, to record some of these special moments so that you can share in the special excitement that has pervaded the College of Boca Raton during this past year. Believing that success begets success, the College looks forward with great anticipation to the year ahead. We hope you will journey with us on "a pathway to the future."

The College's theme for the next decade is "Creating a pathway to the future." To help chart the course that this odyssey will take, President Ross recently announced the formation of a Strategic Task Force that over the next twelve months will assist the College in recommending a long term plan that will enable us to realize some important objectives.

Chaired by Weldon Case, Chairman of Alltel Corporation based in Hudson, Ohio, the Task Force includes several prominent business and civic leaders: Ron Assaf, Chairman of Sensormatic, Inc.; John Nash, retired Chairman of New York Central Railroad; Trustees Ray Osborne, Bill Shubin, and Richard McCusker; and Tom Robinson, Special Advisor to the President.

"The College is at an important crossroad in its history," commented President Ross, "and the Task Force, made up of men of great vision, will help us design a blueprint for our future. We are very excited about the possibilities."
