Honoring a Life with the Gift of a Lifetime

Sometimes, goodwill can result from great loss. Celebrating the memory of a special woman taken too soon, the Vanessa Wolff Lumsden Endowed Scholarship in Psychology will provide an opportunity for deserving students to share her love of learning at Lynn University.

The endowment was established this year by Vanessa’s husband, Ross Lumsden, and her parents, Charleye and Bennett Wolff, to honor Vanessa by keeping her memory alive. “Everyone needs a little help at one time or another,” says Ross. “We’re trying to make some good out of what is a tragic loss to us all.”

Hailing from New Orleans, Vanessa Wolff Lumsden attended Lynn University for four years and received a bachelor’s degree in psychology in 2005. She aspired to receive her master’s degree from Lynn as well, but in the early morning hours of Oct. 21, 2006, Vanessa and a fellow Lynn alumna were killed when a driver hit their car at the intersection of Palmetto Park Road and I-95 in Boca Raton.

Vanessa was the only daughter of Charleye and Bennett Wolff, both practicing attorneys in New Orleans. They have a son, David, who is currently attending New York University in New York City.

“Lynn University held a special place in Vanessa’s heart, as it still does in mine. She was very popular among her peers and loved her time at Lynn,” says Ross ’04, ’05 who in 2003 served as captain of Lynn’s national championship soccer team. “Family and friends have given generously to organizations such as MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) but we felt the need to give back to Lynn and continue the special connection we have with the university.”

Contributions to the Vanessa Wolff Lumsden Endowed Scholarship in Psychology may be made online at www.lynn.edu/supportlynn with a note in the Special Instructions box to direct your donation to the Vanessa Wolff Lumsden endowment. Or, you may contribute with a check made out to Lynn University, with a notation for the Vanessa Wolff Lumsden endowment. Mail to Lynn University, Office of Development and Alumni Affairs, 5611 N. Military Trail, Boca Raton, FL 33431-5598.

A Musical Tribute to a Mother’s Love

Cohen brothers Scott, Stuart and Douglas, along with their wives, Bonnie, Anne and Lainie, joined forces to honor their late mother’s love of music and the Lynn University Conservatory of Music by establishing an endowed scholarship in her name.

Shirlee’s Violin Scholarship will provide tuition assistance to one full-time string student in good standing who qualifies for financial assistance and maintains a GPA of 3.0 or higher. The scholarship recipient will be named annually at a Lynn University Philharmonia Orchestra concert. The endowment may be augmented at any time with gifts from family and friends.

With homes in Boca Raton and the Berkshires, Shirlee Cohen and her late husband, Dan Freed, established a scholarship program for young musicians at Tanglewood. They also were instrumental in initiating a partnership between Lynn University and its neighbor, Boca West Country Club, for an annual outdoor Lynn Philharmonia concert where a conservatory student is awarded a scholarship.

Cohen, active with the National Jewish Medical and Research Center, was named its “Woman of the Year” in 2003 and was honored posthumously for her generosity and leadership at its gala in 2007. She also supported faceless Pillows, a national historic landmark home for dance in the United States.

One of the leading conservatories within a university environment, the Lynn University Conservatory of Music administers a highly selective group of gifted music students. An endowed scholarship fund allows the conservatory to successfully compete with other institutions that offer full scholarships, such as the full-time Eastman School of Music and Yale. While Lynn’s conservatory students are highly motivated, able scholars and musicians, very few have the financial resources to provide them access to a Lynn education. Shirlee’s Violin Scholarship will bring music to the ears of those deserving young talents, allowing them to pursue their lifelong dreams while preserving a mother’s memory through music.

YVONNE S. BOICE

An active community leader, businesswoman and supporter of numerous nonprofits, Yvonne S. Boice is affiliated with many local and national organizations. As benefactor of Lynn University, Boice established the Academic Endowment Scholarship, which combines two of her passions—travel and education. She supports the Lynn University Conservatory of Music, served as chair of the 2003 Lynn Ball, as well as scholarship chair for the Endow Society of Lynn University and chair of the board of overseers.

Boice has recently been appointed to the National Trust Board for the National Endowment for the Humanities in Washington, D.C., and was selected by the State Department to represent the United States at the Global Summit for Women in Hanoi, Vietnam. She recently received the President’s Call to Service Award from the President’s Council on Service and Civic Participation from President George W. Bush to honor her for more than 4,000 hours of volunteer service.

LOUIS B. GREEN

A native of Cincinnati, Ohio, Louis B. Green is a graduate of the University of Miami and completed graduate studies at the University of Cincinnati. A community leader, advisor and philanthropist, he has a strong commitment to education, health care and the arts, as evidenced in a lengthy list of organizations that benefit from his generosity and expertise. In 1998, Green received the Rotary Club of Boca Raton’s highest honor, The Opal Award for Philanthropy.

Along with his wife, Anne, Green has demonstrated his generosity on a local level by founding major projects at Lynn University, Boca Raton Community Hospital and Florida Atlantic University (FAU). The Greens were the recipients of Lynn University’s 2004 Boca Raton Award, which recognized their generosity of time, talent and resources to expand the arts at Lynn and improve educational opportunities for its students, thus naming the Louis and Anne Green Center for the Expressive Arts. The Greens also established the Louis and Anne Green Memory and Wellness Center at the Christine E. Lynn College of Nursing at FAU. Louis served on Lynn University’s board of overseers and is a member of the Leadership Society of Lynn University.

During World War II, Lindemann worked in GIs’ War Project Division where he helped design protective crash helmets for soldiers, airplane grenade launchers, and a submarine detector. He also constructed a radio that identified the location of fighter pilots shot down into water and an improved ignition system for a fighter plane.

Charles “Charlie” Lindemann, a longtime friend and benefactor of Lynn University, passed away last December, leaving his mark on Lynn University and on the hearts of those on campus.

Lindemann helped advance the university by serving on its board of overseers for more than 40 years. He was treasured by faculty and staff for his involvement of the Employee of the Year Award program.

Born June 13, 1908, in Philadelphia, Lindemann studied mathematics at Temple University for two years and completed a seven-year program in mechanical engineering, earning a degree from Drexel University in 1936. He completed the program in four years, finishing first in his class.

He worked as a chief drafter for Electric Storage Battery Company and Adator Kent Manufacturing Company and as an engineer for Philco Radio. In 1957, Lindemann joined General Electric (GE), where he received numerous achievement awards and five patents, including developing a patent for automatic washing machine timing devices.

In 1996, Lindemann retired from GE and moved with his wife, Margaret, to Boca Raton. Margaret died in 1989. Lindemann remarried, and he and his second wife, also named Margaret and known as “ Peg II,” became very involved with Lynn.

In 2001, Lindemann endowed the Charles and Margaret Lindemann Endowment of the Year Award through a personal gift and matching funds from GE. The award is given out each year in April at the Employee Recognition Breakfast. Lindemann attended every breakfast. Additionally, he gifted Lynn with a Daneker grandfather clock, which now stands in the president’s office.

Recognizing the role Lynn plays in preparing students for personal and professional success, Lindemann provided for the university in his will, continuing his practice of making gifts to the university. While his 100th birthday was just beyond reach, there are hundreds of students who will benefit from his generosity, ensuring that Lindemann’s legacy lives on.

Trustee Step Up in Support of Lynn

According to the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges, “Trustees must lead by example if they are to inspire others to make commitments to the institution,” for fiscal year 2007-2008, Lynn University’s board of trustees pledged 100 percent participation in annual programs at the university. This level of dedication is crucial at all nonprofit organizations, especially in private higher education. As the university establishes and nourishes a culture of widespread fundraising and grant solicitation, the trustees’ example boosts Lynn’s quest for increased financial strength.
