Change we've come a long way

It is a dawning of a new era for Lynn University, where technology and time are on speed dial. The past we had left behind us and the future we embraced with open arms. Being a part of Lynn University we tend to forget the important history we have at our feet.

The university had gone through major transitions over the past century.

The start of our university was in 1963, with the instution of Marymont College, an all women's catholic school, that had a two year academic program. The classes were taught by nuns and the purpose was for women to advance with the times.

In 1973, things took a turn. Marymont College emerged into the College of Boca Raton. The College of Boca Raton offered a new program that focused on men and women. The college also built new buildings and transformed into a four year program.

This four year college was growing quickly, whether it was through academics or student growth. In 1991, the Lynn family took an interest in our unique atmosphere.

The name soon changed to Lynn University, and adopted a more diverse campus, which welcomed students from all over the world. The campus added more buildings to suit the needs for the academic programs.

Weldon Case
Dean of Aeronautics

Weldon W. Case, the Dean of the Burton D. Morgan School of Aeronautics, passed away September 30 from an apparent heart attack at an Academics Affairs Dean's meeting held on September 28 in the library on campus.

Mr. Case has been the Dean of Aeronautics for nearly two years. He was the chairman of the first major capital campaign at Lynn.

He was instrumental in the expansion of the aviation program. "He moved quietly and effectively in insuring that the many contributions of his time, energy and resources were well placed," President Donald Ross said.

Mr. Case was the chairman and chief executive of the Alltel Corporation until 1991 when he retired. "He was a pioneer and innovator in the field of telecommunication," Dr. Ross said.

He is survived by his wife, Beatrice Case; two brothers, Nelson and Theodore Case; two sons, Thomas and William Case; four grandchildren, and three great grandchildren.

His funeral was held at the Congregational Church at Boca Raton, September 4. Eulogies were delivered by Dr. Donald Ross and Burton D. Morgan.

"He was a leader in every sense of the word," Dr. Ross said.

The Yearbook Staff is proud to dedicate the 1999-2000 edition of the Excalibur to this fine leader and role model.

...And Now a Message from the President

A reflection from Dr. Ross

The turning of the millennium marked the beginning of a new era for Lynn University. Once a small, local college, Lynn has become a University of great dimension and international prestige, attracting students of high merit and a faculty of esteem. We have a renewed sense of pride in our identity and our distinctiveness. Here are just a few reasons why:

We believe in the individual potential of every Lynn student. At Lynn, students are encouraged to engage themselves in everything they do—in their work, in campus activities, in their interests, in life—in the hope that they will learn as much about themselves as they do about the disciplines they study.

Dialogue thrives on Lynn University's campus. With a student population representing 73 countries and 38 states, Lynn is an extraordinarily diverse hub of conversation and interpersonal learning.

It is the norm, rather than the exception, for faculty and staff to make extra opportunities for interaction with students and to reach out. As a result, students often describe Lynn as a home and their teachers as a family. These personal relationships are the Lynn tradition, the campus culture and the University's soul.

Lynn University has always thought the most useful education comes from a core liberal arts background combined with practical skills and experiences. Through labs, internships and mentoring, we prepare our graduates with career-oriented, marketable skills-intensive field training that sets our students apart from other job candidates.

Finally, we know our students hold great potential, not only for themselves, but for the community and for the world. We strive to ground our students in two basic beliefs: they must use their influence in positive ways and they have a personal duty to give back.

As we reflect on Lynn University’s past and imagine its future, we all can feel fortunate to be part of such a special place and true community.

The town of Boca Raton is centrally located between the areas of West Palm Beach and Fort Lauderdale. This location gives the students a feel of what the nationally known hot spots are all about.

With Miami only about 45 minutes away students can relax on the shores of South Beach. They also get the opportunity to travel as far as Key West for the weekend.

Students that attend Lynn University are very lucky because they have the best of both worlds. They get the craziness on campus with the different organizations and activities offered. They also get to experience life outside Boca Raton.

"Lynn University is a good school for my major, and it also has a variety of activities for students. You can't beat the location, right down the street you have the mall and the beach." said sophomore Una Setshwane a hospitality major.

Students realize how lucky they are and take full advantage of everything Boca and Lynn have to offer.

"Boca is a melting pot which suits everyone's needs and interests. There is something for everyone here," said senior Lara Murdock, Sports and Recreation Management major.

It was 9 a.m. in September when the students arrived at Lynn University to check into the Residence Halls. At Noon the students were led into the Elmore Commons to enjoy their first meal at the university. They then experienced the beautiful town of Boca Raton and indulged in some shopping in their new found home. In the evening the International Students were taken to Miami to board a boat that toured Key Biscayne.

"Basically the International phase of our orientation is to ease the students into the transition, and to help them relax and educate them about the community. It is also designed to introduce them to the main portion of the university wide orientation." Sheila Shepard Sciarrino, Assistant Director of the Center for International Programs.

Marvelous Mocktails
Organizations battle for Best Drink

The Mocktail Contest during Alcohol Awareness Week provided clubs and organizations an opportunity to compete for the most creative nonalcoholic beverage. Drinks ranged from fruity and frozen to fun and frothy.

"The event was fun and different. All of the groups had very creative entries," said freshman Fashion Design major Ana Segura.

Knights in the Community placed first with their concoction "Hawaiian Lion," and there was a tie for second place between Model OAS (Organization of Students and Students Teaching Awareness and Responsibility).

Alcohol Awareness

Rather than focusing on keeping students from not drinking, Alcohol Awareness Week focused on activities that promoted a healthy lifestyle and responsible drinking. To kick off the week, students competed in a Fun Run 5K that promoted health and activity. "This was the first year of the Fun Run and I think this was a great tradition to get started. I think it is a great idea to couple wellness with alcohol awareness week allowing the campus to focus on what students are doing positively," said Virginia Hayman, member of Alcohol Awareness Committee and Residence Director of DeHorne.

James English, a speaker sponsored by Hanley Hazleton, spoke on Tuesday about his experiences as a recovering substance abuser. Wednesday the Florida Panthers brought a traveling hockey shot taker to Freiburger lawn. Students took shots on the large inflatable goal and received a T-shirt if their shot hit. "It was really great to see some activities that were fun for Alcohol Awareness Week, instead of just the typical lectures," said Sophomore Communication major Danielle Winn.

On Thursday evening Kaia Beck from the Real World, Hawaii spoke to a full auditorium about her life experiences.

Friday afternoon campus received a visit from the Boca Raton Helicopter Rescue Team. They landed on the baseball field during the lunch hour to a crowd of 50 students who watched the touch down.
RIGHT AFTER LUNCH, students often used meals as an excuse not to come to programs or activities on campus.

In September, Hurricane Floyd was projected to be a catastrophic hurricane, with predictions of it becoming a Category 5 storm. Lynn reacted by canceling classes for two days and preparing for the worst. All of the panic ended up being unfounded as Floyd turned and went North.

October brought along Tropical Storm Irene that progressed into a hurricane. Although it was only a Category 1, it made direct contact with Boca Raton. Power was lost all over campus, flooding was extensive, and several trees were downed during the hurricane.

All Kinds of Excuses

The hurricane came in handy for many excuse-seeking students. College campuses are the mecca of excuses. Students use them for everything: to get out of class, to get out of trouble in the residence halls, to get out of parking tickets. You name it they will find an excuse for it.

"I use them for everything. I had to use one for one of my communication classes so I could hand in a paper a day late. It seems I always have to take a family member somewhere important the day a big paper is due," said junior Abby Suazo.

Professors have heard several excuses over the years. "I have heard them all: there was a HUGE accident on 95, I got caught at the bridge, my car broke down, I got a flat tire. I had one student whose grandmother died 6 times in one semester!" said Professor Betty Rose Factor.

Some students get really creative and extreme with their excuses, no point in just making up little white lies.

"One time I told a professor that my house burned down and I didn't go to class for two weeks," said senior Jean Dubuisson. However like the Boy Who Cried Wolf sometimes making up excuses can backfire. When you use too many excuses, you lose credibility when something serious really does happen.

"We stayed home. My place flooded. It was a giant inconvenience."
BREAK FROM THE REAL WORLD. Kaia Beck spoke on her experiences of living with an alcoholic in Hawaii.

For Lynn University students, their days and nights are filled with many exciting places to go and things to do. Students find it difficult to balance work and play, especially with the beach and the bars all right around the corner.

By day, Boca is a busy place. When the students are not in class and studying, they spend their time at the beach or by the pool. Many prefer to shop at Town Center which is located down the street from the university.

There is never a day that passes by when you don’t see surfboards, golf clubs and shopping bags coming in and out of the dorms.

The time is early Friday morning when the sun was slowly creeping through the clouds. The streets of Boca Raton were starting to get into an uproar. The day had passed with anticipation of what will come for the night.

Plans were being made as the time turned to 5 p.m. The places to go are being discussed by students and workers. Our choices ranged from billiard bars to Karaoke and Open Mic bars. Well maybe tonight the scene is at a dance club. The people of South Florida have a choice to stay in Boca Raton or to adventure to Clematis Street, Ft. Lauderdale, or make the journey to the hot spots in South Beach, Miami.

This Friday night let's stay in and go to Miznar Park, walk the Spanish tiled sidewalks and catch a movie at the AMC. No let's go to Beach Place for Happy Hour then go out for some Midnight Bowling at Don Carter's.

Or wait we could always go for a late dinner at Houston's, Cheesecake Factory, Fridays, Baja Cafe or Mezzanote's. Sound's like a plan doesn't it?

TAKING A BREAK. R.A.'s "Being a R.A. isn't all give, there are actually some great things you get in return," said Andrew Brennin, second year as an RA. "Before, being a R.A. was just about managing students, now there are programs too. A lot of these kids have never been away from home before, so it's good to have someone they can go to.

For the first time in Lynn's existence there is now a Resident Director (RD) for each of the Residence Halls.

"Although the number of R.A.s remains the same, the university's residence hall now have added safety and supervision, thanks to the new R.D.s," said Kenny Hendrickson, Director of Residence Life.

Each RD now has a specific responsibility in addition to overseeing their hall. VA Hayman, RD of delboeufle is also the adviser of RRA, Kat Collins, RD of Lynn, is also the adviser to Judicial Board; Tony Riccio, RD of Freiburger, oversees programing and Karla Cordaro, RD of Trinity, is in charge of training and inservice.

Residence Life has handled the increasing number of students on campus by hiring more staff members to live in the Hall's. R.A.s are selected to oversee a minimum of 75 students each, with that number expected to increase in future years.

Being an R.A. came with a lot of responsibility. R.A.s created and presented approximately 225 programs a year for the residence hall students. The programs come under four categories: Educational, Social, Faculty Fellow (programs designed to enhance the relationship between the residents and faculty and staff) and Tie-in, (programs designed to support other organizations and departments on campus). R.A.'s were also on duty 2 - 3 nights a week.

Besides hard work there were also several perks that came with the job: free room & board, a lot of fun, meet new people, help new students adapt to campus, learn to be a team player, improve and expand communication and listening skills, define ones leadership skills and learning how to organize your time.

The Office of Student Activities was comprised of three staff members: Craig Rinker, Kathleen Shehan, and Kristen Meraz. They worked diligently throughout the year to help students find their niche outside of the classroom. On any day of the week they could be found advising group meetings, driving a school van to some far off destination, or planning activities for the whole student body to enjoy.

"We have one of the greatest jobs on campus. We make sure that Lynn is someplace students want to stay," said Coordinator Kristen Moraz.

Our campus is known for a wide variety of degrees and courses. In addition to this are the activities that are offered to students through the Office of Student Activities. All work and no play is the recipe for a short and stressful life.

To break up the monotony of everyday classes there is a wonderful escape located in the heart of the university. As you climb the stairs and head towards paradise you can feel the stress and anxiety trickle down to the depths of which you came. Welcome to the second floor of the Lynn Student Center aka Student Activities.

The pure air from the patio is laced with the smell of fresh baking pizza. Your concentration is broken by the cracking sound of the billiard balls or the swift kicking sound coming from a scored goal at the Foosball table.

In short, like Snapple, the Office of Student Activities is made from the Best stuff on Earth.

Students enjoyed the beautiful weather, shopping, and the ever popular Duval Street. There was a Cuban American Festival going on that filled the street with music, crafts, and good food.

"It was a great time. It was fun to get away from campus for the weekend and you just enjoyed yourself in the sun," said freshman Jeremy Motta.

Students stepped on their Universal Studios this past Halloween students took a frightful trip to Orlando to celebrate the Holiday. Every year universal closes part of its park to set up huge haunted mazes all throughout the park. The mazes take on different themes from scary movies like Psycho and The Mummy. Visitors walked through the mazes and got surprise attacks from ghosts and goblins, some of them even carrying chainsaws!

Students spent the first part of their day in Island of Adventures at the newest theme park in Orlando. There were exciting new roller coasters following the theme of the Incredible Hulk and Dueling Dragons. Also in the park were theme areas centered around Dr. Seuss, Cartoon Land, and Jurassic Park.

"Universal Studios was an unique experience for me, because I missed the bus. Luckily I caught the group in time. It was fun, some of the rides were really interesting. I think we all had a good time eating and shopping at various places in City Walk," said senior Alex Flipse. Halloween Fright Night provided students with a fun and interesting way to celebrate the most frightful night of the year.

"I really enjoyed the rides at the Islands of Adventure. The group that went was very diverse, yet entertaining," said sophomore Megan Bubb.
In an effort to celebrate Women's History Month, the Senate Activities Board brought on two women musical entertainers for their coffeehouse series.

"Women have made incredible strides in the music industry and we just wanted to expose students to some of the sounds and talents that are out there," said Senate Activities Board Chair junior Kari Genska.

Beth Wood, a guitar-playing vocalist played on Frieburger lawn. With tunes like Supermodel and Down on your luck, she was an interesting mix of both cover songs and creative originals.

The Black Student Union took planning into their own hands when they planned February’s Black History Month. The month was filled with both educational and social events for their group and all of campus to enjoy.

To kick off the month a motivational speaker, Becky Waldron came to share an important message with student leaders: that it is never too late to adjust your attitude and reach your goals.

Speaker Bill Nix spoke to students about the contributions that African Americans have made throughout history that are often overlooked.

The 2nd Annual Talent Jam was also held during this month with a wide variety of performances, from poetry readers to xylophone players.

A multicultural dinner was also held in an opportunity for students to share the food and festivities that come from their cultures.

The month ended with community service that took place on the beaches of Boca. The group did a beach clean-up to give some of their time back to the community.

Because of their programming efforts the Black Student Union was recognized as Student Organization of the Month for the month of February by the Office of Student Activities.
FULL SPEED AHEAD! Senior Lara Mundock rides atop the SGA float during the Homecoming Golf Cart parade. SGA came in second place.

The First Annual Mr. & Ms. University pageant was held during Homecoming Week. Twelve men and women competed for their chance to gain the title. The events included casual wear, active wear, and evening wear. Each competitor was also given a question to answer in front of the crowd. The six finalists were given a final question of a more serious nature.

Sophomores Dan Sullivan and Jane Schlesinger were crowned Mr. and Ms. University, and were featured in their own golf cart during the parade held at the end of the week. First runner-ups went to Lisa Delgado and Jen Williamson, while second runner-ups were taken by Megan Bubb and David Gill.
Welcome Home

On February 22, 2000 the festivities of Homecoming began. Homecoming for the year 2000 was revised and traditions were set for the first time. The goal for Homecoming was to get active participants and to set new traditions. From the start of the Homecoming until the end each team put their all into the events and showed extreme school spirit.

The kick off of Homecoming was with window painting, where each team decorated a certain section of a window to show both school and team spirit. Friday teams gathered together to go head on head with a relay race, involving swedish fish, three legged races, and floating across the lake. The winner of the relay races was SGA. In the evening each team member went to the Video Dance Party dressed in their Hawaiian clothing.

If all of these exciting events weren't enough the teams woke up early on Saturday morning to decorate a golf cart to parade around campus. There destination was to greet the Alumni at the BBQ. The winner of this year's Homecoming was Sigma who was awarded $500, followed in second place by SGA who won $200, while third place went to Best Buddies.

AMERICAN FANFARE: International Day brought tons of new foods and cultures, but one could not forget the timeless American food of Hot Dogs and popcorn.

International Day was held as the final event during International Week. Featured performers were the Fujisawa Kandaike who displayed the sounds of Japanese Taiko drummers. The drummers were dressed in traditional kimonos.

The cafeteria was transformed into a multicultural experience. Flags from over 60 countries were hung around the cafeteria adding to the festive mood. Food from all over the world was served buffet style while students walked around learning about the different countries represented at Lynn.

"The food and the atmosphere were great. It was a welcome change from the normal routine," said senior Hunter Kepley.

LIMBO: During the week, Kenyan Acrobat came to contort their bodies for students during the dinner hour. After their show they invited students to do the limbo with them.
International Day brought tons of new foods and cultures, but one could not forget the timeless American food of Hot Dogs and popcorn.

During the Kenyan Acrobats to contort their bodies and fire eating talents. "The way these men were able to contort their bodies was amazing, although it was hard to stanch during dinner," said junior communications major Mark Sullivan.

Students spent many weeks preparing the information they would share with fellow students about their native countries. Some tables held events, like the Lucky Charms eating contest at the United States table in honor of St. Patrick’s Day.
Everlasting Memories

"As I jump into the mainstream of life, I will always look back at the good times I had, the lifelong friends I have made and the countless memories that will last a lifetime," said David Gill of his experiences at Lynn.

This weekend, and many at the University, have given students a chance to get wild and enjoy their college experience. They will always look back at weekends such as Spring Fling and reflect with laughter.

The Volleyball Tournament was very hot and entertaining. The teams played their hardest and had a great time.
Spring Weekend started on Friday afternoon when over 60 students competed in the annual Volleyball Tournament on Frieburger Lawn. The tournament lasted all afternoon and ended just in time for the traditional Beer Garden. The Beer Garden this year had a barbecue for those students who were of age to drink. This event gave students the chance to relax after a long day of school and a tough Volleyball tournament. Some also enjoyed a nice swim in the nearest lake.

As the evening started to unfold the students got to take another chance at the game of life, by attending Casino Night, which was sponsored by the RHA. This event started at 8pm and lasted until all the prizes were given out. Students had a chance to win gift certificates, DVD player, cordless phone, Play Station, and many other fabulous gifts.

It was late Saturday morning when teams of six got together in front of the Softball fields to participate in the Annual RA Challenge. The challenge was a good way to test how well teams can work together under pressure, and get dirty at the same time. Events ranged from egg toss, twelve legged race, and spirit obstacle course.

It proved to be a successful Spring Fling Weekend and students can’t wait to see what is to come for next year.

The Knights of the Round Table group of individuals were selected. They lived by their mission statement just like the mystical character King Arthur had done. Since 1983, KOR has abided by the same mission but revised it over the years. By the year 2000, KOR had undergone changes. The Knights of the Round Table is an organization that began in 1983. This core group of individuals were selected on their academic standings and leadership skills. They lived by their mission statement, which was to serve the Lynn University campus just like the mystical character King Arthur had done.

Since 1983, KOR has abided by that same mission but revised it over the years. By the year 2000 KOR had changed tremendously. The major addition to the group was expanding new membership to seven and providing the organization with a grand total of twelve members. These additional members brought new and inventive ideas to the group. Their mission statement was revised to fit with the times and the needs of Lynn University’s campus.

KOR expanded horizons by aiding the school in many functions that are held on campus and as well as the SACS accreditation process that the university was going through. KOR also had an instrumental role in the Orientation process, in both the Fall and Spring. They helped new students acclimate to campus life.

The Student Government Association (SGA) has worked to improve the student experience at Lynn College. This year, they tackled various issues faced by off-campus students, such as getting better access to AOL, improving transportation from Lynn to the off-campus location, putting better lighting in the north parking lot, and installing volleyball nets on the lawn of Friel Hall.

"SGA is a way to bring bright fresh ideas to the table," said Jon Williamson, the President of the Executive Board. The board consists of David Gill (President), Kari Gonski (Vice President), Lara Murdock (Secretary), Amali Seneviratne (Treasurer), and Mike Vigil (RHA Chair).

"The E-Board worked collaboratively throughout the year to improve student satisfaction," said Amali Seneviratne.

The Student Government Association met every other week to discuss issues that students around campus wanted to see addressed. Some of the issues the Student Government tackled this year were adding parking spots, sending a monthly mailer to off campus students, getting better access to AOL, aiding transportation to Harid from Lynn, putting better lighting in the North Parking lot, putting stop signs in the north parking lot, getting pencil sharpeners into each classroom, and putting up volleyball nets on the lawn of Frieburger. Those were just some of the problems that were solved over the past year.

MEMORIES THAT WILL LAST FOREVER. The experiences had by members of Best Buddies will be remembered by them and their buddies for a lifetime.

TIME TO HAVE FUN. Lizzie Stromberg organized many social activities for the organization throughout the year.

Hospitality Club in addition to academic activities such as: parties, car washes, Movember, and also a day on campus.

Each student was a companion to their buddy.

"With the change of the century more students were involved than past, which made this year stronger than last year," said Lizzie Stromberg of Best Buddies.

The Hospitality Club in addition to academic activities also had the chance to attend the hospitality convention in New York and working opportunities.

Hospitality Club and Best Buddies

Students get a chance to broaden their horizons.

The Best Buddies and the Hospitality Club have both worked really hard to complete all of their goals for the year. Both organizations target different individuals. Best Buddies was for the students who wanted to get involved in community service type activities and the Hospitality Club was for those students who wanted to learn more about hotels and restaurants. Students were able to visit local hotels and restaurants to view firsthand what it is like to work in the industry.

Best Buddies has been around for the past five years and currently have ten committed members. These students get together with their buddies to do fun filled activities such as: parties, car washes, Halloween parties, and also a day on campus. Each student was a companion to be a buddy.

"With the change of the century many more students were involved than in the past, which made this year stronger for us than last year," said Lizzie Stromberg President of Best Buddies.

The Hospitality Club in addition to local activities also had the chance to attend a hospitality convention in New York as a networking opportunity.

"The fact that we are all specializing in different areas of the hospitality industry gives us the chance to expand on our knowledge and ideas for the future."

"Best Buddies touches the lives of those that seem to be neglected. You get to do a lot of interesting things with people that wouldn't otherwise get the chance to explore the world," said Megan Misorek.

This group is another organization that likes to spread the good word throughout Lynn University. It is a group that is dedicated to the Christian faith. These students also are involved in charity events.
WELCOMING AT THE OPEN HOUSE. Nytricha Smith, Chanelle Ventures and Kendra Prince spent one of their Saturdays in December meeting prospective students. The Open House gave clubs the opportunity to tell students about their organization.

CRUISING ON A SATURDAY AFTERNOON. Jenny Terry and Chantal represent the Black Student Union at the February Leadership Retreat held on the Palm Beach Campus. The retreat allowed organizations to talk about what was going on in their groups.

RECRUITING FOR THE BLACK STUDENT UNION. At both the Fall and Spring Activities Fairs, members brought out music and pictures to show students what they were all about.

WINDOW PAINTING. One of the events during Homecoming was to decorate a panel of the Student Center. John and Charles took a moment to admire their work.

The Black Student Union had Nytricha Smith, the Black Student students to be social together and planned such events as Roller S Night, their Annual Senior Jam, a Pajama Party, and the year with a Poolside Party. Members of the Black Student Union went to Florida International University to see a Step Show put on by the fraternities and sororities.

On the educational side, BSU brought several speakers to campus: Earl Waldron, a motivational speaker at BSU, who spoke during Black History Month. BSU also got involved in movie series on campus showing films as The Best Man, The Wood, Life.

BSU, besides planning all of the events, could be seen participating in many competitions around campus. BSU had the team representing them at Mic Madness (taking home first place), R'n'B coming, Up 'til Dawn, and the RA Challenge.

SET SAIL WITH TRI SIGMA: During Rush week, the ladies put together many events including the theme party for successful recruitment.

HOLIDAY PARADE: Daniela Wax, Danielle Hanoud, and Manuela Gravia dress in different decades of the 20th century. Sigmas spent many months working on completing the float.

BEST FRIENDS: Manuela Gravia and Mariuche Harth have bonds that extend past sharing the same native country. They are sisters through the sorority Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Sigma Sigma Sigma, the first sorority for women to join the Panhellenic Association, was founded in 1908.

At the same time the ladies had fun at their socials and events. "Joining Tri Sigma I made more girlfriends and my social life was enhanced," says Michele Schelesinger.

But Sigma is not only about social times. For some, Tri Sigma is a life experience. "While I developed a bond with my sisters, and share friendships like they are sisters, I seek leadership opportunities," says Danielle Hanoud.

Sigma planned many events throughout the year. Halloween Bus Day Float, and Apple Polishing to name a few. Sigma also raised $1000 for the Dawn Sigma is looking forward to continue to make a difference at Lynn University.

Kappa Delta Pi is an International honor society for the education majors. This year was one of the most productive years the society has had. The organization was dedicated to helping education majors meet potential individuals in the field of education, with helping members develop their own teaching strategies. Kappa Delta Pi does not just encompass students, but teachers and administrators as well. This mixture of students and established teachers created an environment of learning and excitement.

Throughout this year the Chi Rho at Lynn University had presented several different workshops that included events such as the Fundamentals of Reading Week and Healthy Kid’s Day.

The group this year was comprised of thirty members and six of the members on the e-board. The President this year was Carrie Liller, and the advisor was Dr. Warshaw.

Residence Hall Association

programming for the campus students

The Residence Hall Association (RHA) lead by Mike Vigil, and advisor VA Hayman focused on listening to the students concerns and trying to make campus a better place to live.

“I feel RHA had a successful year. We had many residents help us with projects throughout the year. I hope this trend of RHA growing continues as the University also continues to grow,” said junior RHA President Mike Vigil.

Another aspect of RHA was programming. They sponsored the Senior Prom, which united a student with a senior member from a retirement home. They also sponsored Casino Night during Spring Fling weekend, giving away hundreds of dollars in cash and prizes. RHA was the driving force behind the Study Break Breakfast held before Finals in the Fall semester.

IT IS TIME TO REPRESENT MOAS: All dressed up for Alcohol Awareness Week.

OFF TO THE BALL: At every MOAS conference there is a ball where all the diplomats get together to discuss the week's meetings and to socialize.

THE DIPLOMATS: Look at the faces of the students who are talking to an Ambassador. It was a long but exciting day in D.C.

The Leadership Celebration was held at the end of the Spring Semester to recognize all of the hard work and dedication the student leaders on campus had put forth throughout the year. Leaders of the different clubs and organizations were given the opportunity to share what they had accomplished. The evening began with a buffet dinner and concluded with the awards program, where students and organizations were recognized for excellent achievement. "The evening was a culminating event, a chance to reflect on the previous year, thank the students for all of their efforts, and recognize them," said Coordinator of Student Activities, Kathleen Shehan.

The newest growing addition to the University was the PhD. program in education. This program had only been around for a few years and is constantly growing.

Academia doesn't only stop at students that just graduated from high school, but is also offered for adults that never went to college or wish to continue their education. A Continuing Education program gave the older student a chance to advance through regular courses to computer courses.

Lynn University is unique in the aspect that it provides a wide range of programs for different majors on campus. The academic organizations range from debating, to writing for the student newspaper, to producing a T.V. show to mocking an International Organization.

Students in these organizations leave with more knowledge of the world and a possible future in that field of interest.

Another academic program that Lynn offered was internships. Craig Cunningham adviser of the program, has given students many new and different options when it comes to finding the right job.

Lynn prides itself on having many different programs and extracurricular activities to keep the students minds working. The school in the turning of the center will have implemented many more programs for students to learn from.

Academics

Although Lynn is a small school, the different academic curriculum's offer a wide variety of major's and classes for students to take. Students can learn to fly with the Department of Aeronautics, become the manager of a Funeral Home through the Funeral Services Department. Many students will graduate and head into the Hotel Restaurant Management Industry after getting their start at Lynn. Other majors that students find interesting are graphic design, communications, fashion design, and sports management.

One of the ways students were recognized for excelling in their classes and majors was at the Honor's convocation held each semester. Over 200 students were honored with a certificate and handshake from the Dean of their college followed by a reception on the Elmore Commons patio.

“The Honor’s convocation was a nice way for the school to recognize the hard work I put into achieving good grades during the semester,” said a student.

MAKING MUSIC

The turn of the century had brought many new avenues for the music majors at the Harid Conservatory. The program at the conservatory is of music and academics. There were students that ranged from ages 18-27 that were enrolled in the four year undergraduate program. These students are not only from the United States but from all over the world. The students that are accepted to the school are the ones that possess great talent, with the goal of performing at the professional level.

The students must choose to concentrate on only one musical instrument, even though they may be gifted in many. With the study of this instrument the students must take a basic keyboard course, which allows students to hear themselves play through digital feedback.

The students no longer live on the conservatory campus, but on Lynn's main campus and they attend core courses. The joining of the two schools has opened up many doors to both staff and students.

This transition has given students a chance to become more culturally enriched.

Communications

Get ready in 5, 4, 3, 2, 1. The communications department had given students an opportunity to work hands on in projects that dealt with media production and editing. The department had two major players in teaching the hands on techniques: LUC and LUTV.

Lynn University Communications was a student and staff run service. It was headed by two staff members, who both assisted the students on the special projects. These projects were Harid Conservatory (Philharmonic, Chamber Music), Frontiers in Globalization, Success Speakers, Heart Association, Fashion Show, Citrix Tennis Tournament, and Graduation to name a few. All these projects were done as a service to the university.

“The experience up in the communications department has been one that is amazing. I learned a lot in Video Production, which is my future goal, and in just basic film production,” said Alex Arnott, junior from Dublin Ireland. He plans to return to Ireland and use the skills that he learned working in LUC.

The students that worked on these projects were student volunteers that did the projects to enhance their skills. The students that have played a major part in helping with LUC was Alex Arnott and Stuart Henderson.

LUTV was a student organization that was run solely by the students. They did all of the filming and editing themselves. The head of the organization was Shelbie Casey, and she and many others took on some interesting projects such as, Dear Pen Pal, Boca Central, and other projects that targeted the Boca area.

The radio station had a busy year. DJ's like DJ Cookie, Cheap Thrills, the Searge, and an assortment of others made their radio debut on 96.1 FM.

The radio station added several new components to their full functioning station: new turntable, sound board, and a completely new set up that made their deejaying experience more professional.

Besides broadcasting over the airwaves, DJ's also found themselves providing the music at several events on campus. They were heard at the Sigma Halloween Bash, the Senate Carnival, the Senior Prom, Up 'til Dawn, the Talent Jams, and many other student organized events.

The station was managed by Stuart Henderson, Mark Sullivan, and Nyrichta Smith.

"This year the station had a couple minor setbacks, but we worked hard to correct the situation and look forward to a productive next year. We have a lot of young talent that will continue to help our station grow," said WLYN member junior Mark Sullivan.

Who wants to be a DJ?

Stuart Henderson did whatever it took to help out any organization on campus. He wanted all of the students on campus to tune in to WLYN. As you can see, he will dress for any occasion.

The station does not only play on campus events, they have also been involved in a Spin Contest that is held at the Chilipepper in Ft. Lauderdale. Lynn University has placed high in this event both years. The station has definitely come a long way and continues to be heard all over Boca Raton.
BUSY AS BEES. It is all work and no play when it comes to the PULSE. The writers have to be on their feet at all times to catch the right lead. Here three students are at the weekly staff meeting.

PULSE

The PULSE is the university's way to link what is going on with the student life, sports, and current events. The paper even though seems new is not. The PULSE has been around ever since the College of Boca Raton.

The paper over the years has grown drastically from the style of writing to the plethora of information that has been formed to make up the paper. The PULSE had been blessed the past couple of years with the experienced advisors and creative writers. They have added editorial and opinion pages this year. The paper also had a sports column written by Nathan Murray.

It seems every year the Pulse loses an editor and gains another. This year Natalie Smith turned in her red pen and moved forward. Natalie graduated in December of 1999, and gave her red pen to Hilary Hunter and Carissa Boehm to fill her shoes.

The Pulse ventured up to New York City for a journalism Conference to learn more on how to improve their skills and how to apply writing to their everyday life.

Co-editors Hillary Hunter and Carissa Boehm are looking forward to the challenge of building the PULSE. The idea of having a co-editor for the PULSE makes things a lot more efficient than in the past.

"I hope that the both of us can get things done more effectively then in the previous years," said Hillary Hunter co-editor.

STUDY IRELAND

Every year during Spring Break, students study abroad in Dublin, Ireland for 10 days. They tour the country, earn credits, and have fun.

This year Marsha Glines and Dick Cohen chauffeured 22 students. In order to receive the three credits, students participated in all activities, completed a journal, and wrote a five-page paper about the education system in Ireland vs. the education system in America. Students visited schools, museums and historical sights. The literary pub crawl incorporated beer and history, actors took the group to the haunts of famous authors. “The best was the pub crawl,” junior Lauren Scicolone said. “We actually learned a lot.”

Students moved onto London where they had two nights on their own. “The sightseeing and culture was great, but the food left something to be desired,” said senior Brian Kottraba. “The experience was excellent. I really enjoyed, being in Ireland and learning so much about the country,” said graduate Kristen Moraz.
Actors took the group to the historic sights, as well as the sights of famous authors. "The pub crawl," junior alone said. "We actually It the food left something said senior Brian experience was excellent. I read, being in Ireland and much about the country," student Kristen Moraz.

It was that time of the year where the sports teams got all of their gear together and hit the gym. The time where the men’s and women’s sports teams got their act together and started a hard core training session not only for the body but for the mind as well.

These men and women that dedicate their time and devotion to a particular sport to make sure they put their all into every game. Each student not only is responsible for playing the game but for keeping a handle on their academics as well.

How can they wake up before the crack of dawn to train and then attend classes the rest of the day, and in most cases go back to practice at the end of the day? The college sports teams are filled with hard working and dedicated individuals.

It may sound like all they do is eat, sleep, and drink sports, but they don’t.

Most of these students find time to do other extracurricular activities. The university has offered a variety of different sports teams since the beginning of the college.

When the college first started out as Marymount College, they did not offer any sports. With the switch over to the College of Boca Raton, they put sports into effect. By the year of 1989, the College of Boca Raton had Mens and Womens soccer, tennis, golf, and baseball.

Since the switch from College of Boca Raton to Lynn University, the sports program has added Softball, Volleyball, Track and Field, Crew and Cross Country.

Not only does Lynn University have intercollegiate Sports teams, but also intramural teams. The athletic department has opened up the field to every individual on campus so that they could enjoy sports in a friendly, competitive nature.

The change over the centuries has been very noticeable. The major addition was the addition of more women’s sports teams and the fact that new sports are continually added onto the campus.

Strong
Volleyball Finished Season with 10-15 Record

The girls played hard and focused on improving their old records, which they did. Interim head coach Deb Pope inherited an experienced team that returned all six starters from last year’s squad. This was the Knights fourth season and with it came a lot of improvement. For the first time in their history, the volleyball team obtained wins in the double digits. Strong play between Luciana Freire, Kristen Fantozzi, and Fernanda Campos was the major reason that the team was able to obtain double digit wins.

The team is looking forward to the future because they have only lost two players, and will be returning with many of their strongest players still in tact. The women are keeping their confidence up and are ready to begin the new season with a kill.

The Lynn University's women's golf team had a busy season. The team started their play in September at the 1999 Lady Sunshine Invitational. The Knights placed second with a score of 324. They followed with a tenth place finish at the Hatter Fall Classic at Stetson University. In the Spring the team was back to play taking 9th place at the Springlake Intercollegiate Golf Tournament hosted by Northern Illinois University. The team was led by Gabriella Jakobsen with a two round total of 156. The Lady Knights shot a two-round total of 654 at the Spalding/Peggy Kirk Bell Invitational Golf Tournament hosted by Rollins College. Courtney Krell was the Fighting Knights top individual finisher with a 161. At the Florida Women's Collegiate Championship, Lynn placed 10th. The Knights ended their season with a third place finish at the Sunshine State Conference Championship. Courtney Krell shot a 157 to finish in a tie for fourth place.

The Women’s Tennis Team went into the Sunshine State Conference Tournament with an overall record of 17-2 and ranked second nationally. Over the course of their season they had two lengthy winning streaks.

As the season began the team ran off six straight victories in all six matches. If this wasn’t enough, the men closed out the regular season winning 9 out of 10 matches as they captured top seed in the SSC tournament.

Leading the way for the team this season were four seniors: Julia Jehs, Katerina Koldova, Sandy Peshkin, and Karolina Trisk. Jehs, who has held the number one position on the team lost in doubles. “It helps when you have a tough match because you have to go the limit to win,” she said. Along with these seniors, a freshman, a sophomore, and a junior composed this year’s squad.

The Men's Basketball team finished with an overall record of 19-8 in the regular season and 8-7 in the Conference. Even finishing with 19 wins, coach Russo's guys were left out of the South Regional Tournament, marking the first time in Knights program history that they failed to make post-season play. Although not being a participant in the post season tournament, this team had nothing to hang their heads about. Over the course of the season the team defeated Seattle-Pacific and St. Anselm both who were selected to compete in the regional tournament. In addition, they pushed aside Walsh University and Olivet Nazarene, both ranked in the top 25 in NAIA. The trip to the Sunshine State Conference did bring good news, seniors Karwin McLemore and Wayne Copeland were named to the conference first and second teams respectively.

When the buzzer sounded, ending their first round game against the University of Tampa in the Sunshine State Conference Tournament, it also marked the end of their 1999-2000 season.

Coach Slater and her team found themselves with an overall record of 13-14 in the regular season and 4-12 in conference play, and are already looking forward to next season. This past season saw this team go on a seven game winning streak, defeating Barry University on the road, and playing tough at both ends every time they stepped on the court. As the season ended, so did the careers of five seniors, but Coach Slater is confident that this year’s freshman class will step up and meet the challenges of next season. “Next year we will have Mandi Mitchell, Islande Dillion, Gabriella Gonda, and Michele Newman who I think will do a great job for us," said Slater.

What once began as a club sport has become a collegiate sport. Active throughout the year, the Lynn University Crew Team began practice and conditioning in the fall and competition in the Spring. "No one on the team has ever rowed before, but I have a lot of confidence in them. It took a semester to learn the fundamentals, and the next term we will compete," said Coach Karla Cordero. The young team rowed in the Rollins Invitational and the Sunshine State Conference Championships. "It's a great physical challenge when rowing, but it also challenges you mentally as well. We must all be in sync with our rows. If we aren't, then we slow down. We have to pay close attention to what everyone else is doing; it is one of the most challenging sports," said junior Jason Epstein.

The Softball team was headed by Coach Amy Alderman this season and had a 26-28 record in regular season and a 9-19 record in the conference. The team had some very important wins throughout the season against opponents like Christian Clearwater, Warner Southern, Pine Manor, and Eckerd College. Carrie Bielecki was the pitcher for the team with a 17-17 record.

To close out the 2000 season Lynn had a split against conference foe Rollins college. The visiting Tars took the first game by a score of 3-1 and the Fighting Knights rallied from an 8-6 deficit, scoring three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to win the ninecap 9-8. Lynn ended the season with 26 victories, the most since the inception of the program in 1998.

Valerie Cardinale was the team’s utility player; whenever and whatever the team needed her to play she did.

The Cheerleading squad has been going strong for the past six years now, and are in step towards the millennium. This group is one of those unique additions to the University because of the squad’s interesting history.

In 1989 the squad started strong with seven ambitious girls. They disappeared for six years and came back to show Lynn University just what school spirit was all about. In 1995 the squad consisted of eleven females.

Since 1995 the women have given a hundred and ten percent no matter how tough it seemed to be. Students don’t realize that cheerleading is a sport just like football.

This year they changed their style and performance. The squad also adopted a new coach, Gloria Dixon. This coach has brought the squad new ideas and high hopes for the coming seasons.

Story by KARI GONSKA

Kelly Weimer has seen so many of the squads ups and downs over the past four years. Kelly has been quoted to say, ‘Lynn University cheerleaders are stepping into the millennium with nothing but high hopes and a prosperous future.’ With those thoughts she has made sure to keep the girls alive and strong.

You have spent time on campus in the gym, laying out at the pool, eating in the cafeteria, going to programs, taking advantage of what Lynn University has to offer. During this same time while you succeeded academically, you have made incredible connections. You have found mentors in your professors, allies within the staff, and lifelong friendships with the other students in your classes, on your halls, and at this University.

What you have accomplished at Lynn will be a springboard for you that will take you onto your future endeavors. Senior year was welcomed and dreaded by students. Welcomed because it meant the end of a journey, the fulfillment of accomplishing what they had set out to do: earning a college degree. Dread because it meant the end of college was near, responsibility looming. During the year, in addition to tests and homework, resumes and cover letters needed to be written. Interviews needed to be scheduled. For some seniors GRE’s and LSATs needed to be taken. One thing is for sure, senior year began the transition from life as a student to getting ready to go out and make their mark in the “real world.”

IN MEMORY

The town of Boca Raton along with the Lynn University community mourned the greatest loss. This loss was of a man who dedicated all of his time and effort into the town in which he lived in for many years. On November 28, 1999 Eugene M. Lynn passed away, leaving a loving wife and daughter. He was born in Kansas City, Missouri, on November 6, 1918.

Eugene M. Lynn was the Chairman Emeritus of Lynn Insurance Group, and a long time community leader. He also served as a member of the Board of Trustees of the College of Boca Raton in 1989 and has been affiliated with the college since that time. In 1991 the College was renamed Lynn University in the honor of Mr. Lynn and his wife Christine. The Lynns have been responsible for several of the major buildings on the campus including the Lynn Residence Center and the Eugene M. and Christine E. Lynn Library. They were also the driving force behind the creation of the Eugene M. and Christine E. Lynn School of Communications.

Over the years he has been recognized on many occasions for meaningful and significant contributions to his community and to the State of Florida. Places such as Stetson University, Florida Atlantic University, The Boca Raton Chamber of Commerce, and the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel, the Better Business Bureau, YMCA, Hospice by the Sea, and numerous others have recognized his determination to better peoples lives.

The campus and community will not be the same without the man that brought so much hope and inspiration to everyone who met him. We will always remember the love he had for Lynn University and his memory will live on.

Congratulations on your graduation. The Yearbook Staff is so grateful for all of the hard work and support you have provided throughout the year. Good luck in your future endeavors!

With all my love,
Mom

Lynn just won’t be the same without you Kristen!
There is so much to thank you for, it is hard to even be sure where to begin. Your commitment, dedication, your wonderfully positive attitude will definitely be missed in the Office of Student Activities. NOVA Law School has no idea how lucky they are. Congratulations on an excellent stint here at Lynn.

Much Love,
Jim & Kathleen

The Executive
Changing

From the Editor
A lot of time and energy has gone into the creation of this year’s yearbook. There are many people I would like to thank for making my job easier. First to my advisor, Kathleen, who spent many days and late nights helping to ensure this book got done. Without her there would be no pictures in the book. I would also like to thank the staff for their help in getting the information together for the many articles. I also owe a big thank you to the clubs and organizations that provided us with quotes and photos of their many activities. Without Dan Lester, our Walsworth representative, there would be many incomplete pages, thanks Dan. Finally I would like to thank Jan Glitz, Greg Malfitano, and The Pulse staff for providing us with the history and pictures necessary to complete this book!

I look forward to doing this all again next year!
