Women's Soccer Team Wins Championship

Number 1 In The Nation Boasting An Impressive 24-0-1 Record

By: Frank Aliaga

There was never any doubt, it was only a matter of time. If Lynn University's women's soccer team would have been on the betting cards in Las Vegas, not a soul would have bet against them. From the preseason polls, Lynn ranked number 1 in the country and was favored to win the national championship. Sure enough, they didn't disappoint anyone - except the 25 teams that got barreled while trying to stand in their way. Not only did the lady knights win their second national championship in three years, they went undefeated with a near flawless 24-0-1 record. The only team that even challenged Lynn was defending division 2 national champions Barry University, who barely salvaged a 2-2 tie. "This was a perfect season," said coach Jim Blankenship, whose team shattered almost all of the school records, not to mention a tournament record for most goals in a game with a 9-0 win over Midway College. "It was just remarkable," said the ecstatic coach recapping the season, "the kids were so focused and determined and they worked so hard."

With everyone gunning for no. 1 Lynn, they outscored their opponents 16-2 in the national tournament. They started off the tournament beating Incarnate Word 1-0 despite outshooting them 30-5. However, in the second game, they got goals from eight different players on their way to the tournament record 9-0 drubbing of Midway. Lynn then defeated second seed Georgian Court 3-1 in the semifinal setting up a date with Park (Mo.) in the last dance.

To no surprise, Lynn took the early lead when freshman Kim Brown scored on an assist from Heather Otte in the closing minutes of the first half. Coincidentally, goalkeeper Joyce Parson-Roth made a great save on a penalty kick to keep the opponent scoreless. In the second half the lady knights opened up the floodgates. Senior defender Heather Otte broke through again, this time blasting her own shot into the back of the net giving Lynn a 2-0 advantage. "This Championship is much more special than the last one because it's our last year," said Otte, "this is by far the best team we ever had." That means a lot, considering that all the Lynn seniors have appeared in four straight final fours, with two rings and one runner-up trophy. Another senior, Melissa Budney closed out the scoring in the final, giving Lynn a 3-0 lead. They went on to win 3-1, while outshooting their opposition 27-5. Junior forward Hanne Nissen was named tournament MVP. She led the Knights throughout the season with a record 37 goals and 27 assists. Nissen, along with Parson-Roth, Line Christensen, and freshman sweeper Kristine Graves were all named to the tournament team.

As for the seniors, their farewell was a tearful yet joyful one. "The seniors played such a vital part in the game, not to mention their four years here," said Blankenship. They have compiled an amazing 79-8-4 record. Like Blankenship has said all season, "it's not where you start - it's where you finish," and for the L.U. seniors, the end of their college careers could not have been any sweeter.
Freshman Plans To Graduate In Three

By: Jane Anne Mathison

On Wednesday, November 2, reporter Lisa A. Stemles' article profiling an LU student ran in the Sun Sentinel Newspaper. This was no ordinary college student profile about their life, career goals or aspirations. Instead, this was a piece that profiled LU freshman Michael McKee, who intends in completing college in three years, majoring in history. The one thing that sets Michael apart from the rest of the student body at LU, is that he is 95% deaf in each ear. Michael wears hearing-aids in both ears and also reads lips, to compensate for his disability.

Michael was born in Tampa but moved to south Florida with his mother, father and brother Jimmy soon after. At age three, he was diagnosed as profoundly deaf. "Michael started intense speech therapy at age three, soon after he was diagnosed," said Yolanda McKee, Michael's mother. Michael took part in a home study program from grades 4-12, which was very successful for him. He was also taking some college credits during the same time. When asked if there is anything at LU that he didn't like, he said, "I would like it if Lynn offered some more honor level classes to offer students more of a challenge."

Along with taking 17 credit hours this semester, Michael interests include; karate and weightlifting. However, Michael passion lies in nature. "We have gone on nature walks, sponsored by Broward County for the past five years, and taught you how to survive out in the wild. Michael has really enjoyed them, and he can tell you about various plants and animals that live in the wild in South Florida," said Yolanda McKee. Basketball is Michael's favorite sport and plans to try out next year for the LU team.

Currently, Michael has his sights set on medical school after graduation. From there he would like to study to become an osteopath, and relocate up north. Michael enjoys the change of seasons, rather than the constant heat of south Florida. Michael is a perfect example for not giving up on your goals and giving it your all, no matter what type of limitations that come your way. Good luck Michael.

Balancing A Family And School

By: Velda Albuquerque

Several students attending Lynn have kids, are married, or are single parents. Even though the school does not keep any exact statistics regarding pregnancies or marriages, it is common to see students wearing wedding rings, or bringing their kids to the campus.

As part of Lynn's expansion plan, special houses will be built for students who are married and have kids. At the present moment there is no exact date when this project will be completed.

"Keeping up with school work and having a family to love and support at the same time is not easy. It is the support that I receive from them that makes it all easier," stated Leonard Gonzalez, Accounting major. Gonzales has been married for ten years, and has a seven months old son. "Rafael, my son, is what motivates me to study even harder. I want to be able to give him the best I can," says Gonzales. Gonzales arrived from Hong Kong, with his wife and mother almost three years ago. Since then he has been studying at Lynn. His expected date of graduation is May 1995.

"I married Pedro and moved to the United States the rest of the way, watching four-year-old Michael struggle for a way out. Fourteen-month-old Alex remained strapped in his car seat as the car filled with water. The children were buried together in one coffin because when their bodies were found, they were still holding hands.

Susan Smith will be indicted for two counts of first degree murder on December 12, 1994. She sits in jail without bond, but is no longer under a suicide watch.

A recent student opinion poll at LU indicates the following. A majority questioned believe this crime was premeditated. Some students think she will be found guilty and receive life imprisonment. Some hopes she will receive the death penalty and one student suggested, that she be strapped into the same car and pushed down into the lake and experience the same terror that her children did.

Michael and Alex Smith did not deserve this fate. However, we know that they both are now in heaven. God bless you both."

A Tribute To Michael And Alex

By: Heather West

On the night of October 25, 1994, Susan Smith murdered her two sons, Michael and Alex. She claimed that a car jacker forced her from her car and drove away with her sons as she pleaded for him, "not to hurt my babies."

Seventy-two hours later, the police had no suspect, no car, and no kids...it was time for some more questions. The police had Smith, who was ironically voted "friendliest" in her senior year of high school according to Prime Time Live, repeat her story to them over and over. They discovered several inconsistencies.

For instance, Smith said that a man had gotten into her car at a red light on her way to her friends house, but there were no witnesses. At the specific intersection, the light does not turn red unless there is another car coming from the opposite direction. Hence, there should have been at least one witness. That was her first flaw.

Her second was the friend she had said she was going to visit wasn't expecting her. In fact, he wasn't even home. The third inconsistency was when Smith said that she had gone to Walmart earlier that day to do some shopping with the boys. No one remembered seeing them at the store. It was time for a polygraph test.

Susan Smith failed the lie detector test when police asked her, "Do you know where your boys are?" Smith was also becoming vague with details and information within her story. Experts began to watch her body language and her choice of words very closely. Suspicions against Smith grew higher.

The local chief of police called Smiths bluff when he took Smith to a nearby church, and told her that he had evidence that she killed her two sons. It was then that Smith confessed to murdering her sons. She stated that she drove out to an area lake with Michael and Alex strapped into their car seats. She had intended to drive the car into the lake with herself in the car as well. At one point, she got out of the car and asked herself why. She then pushed the car into the lake.
Farewell To Pedro Zamora
By: John Ness

The world soon realized that Zamora was a symbol of hope as he educated others on the disease he was fighting to overcome. Even President Clinton commended Zamora for his heroic efforts. "In short, in Pedro's life, Pedro educated and enlightened our nation and he taught us all that AIDS is a disease with a human face," Clinton said. "He taught young people that the real world includes AIDS and that each of us has a responsibility to protect ourselves and loved ones."

Originally from Cuba, Zamora came to the U.S. in 1980 during the Mariel Boat Lift. At age 14, his mother died of cancer and he turned to unprotected sex as a way of coping with the loss. When he was diagnosed, he realized that AIDS prevention was not reaching those at risk. His mission to help others began and five years later he became a champion for the work he accomplished. Zamora's family and friends were a major and influential part of his life. To those who were close to him, he was not only an incredible educator and hero but a true friend and companion. The Zamora family was reunited as three of his brothers and a sister from Cuba received special visas to see Zamora in the hospital. His family and friends had the chance to spend time with him, say goodbye and were at his bedside when he passed away.

A memorial service was held for Zamora on November 21 at Miami Beach's Lincoln Theater. Over 1,000 people gathered at South Beach with Zamora's family and friends to reminisce on their brother, mentor and friend and celebrate his life. Through videos, letters, poetry, music and speeches, Zamora's family and friends reflected on the inspirational and unforgettable young man called Pedro. "AIDS activist, hero, champion. He is all of those things," said Judd Winick, Zamora's roommate and friend from MTV's The Real World 3. "But I think of my friend, the funny, warm engaging person he was ... The country may have lost a champion, but I have lost my friend. I'm selfish. I do appreciate everything he's done, but I'm going to miss him."

Alex Escarano, Zamora's best friend and roommate, organized the memorial service and over the years became a brother to Zamora and his family. When asked what Zamora would have thought about the service Escarano said, "He would have loved it. He would have been here laughing and crying -- and maybe be a little embarrassed. He was here. His presence was overwhelming."

The world now says goodbye and bids a fond farewell to Pedro Zamora. His battle with AIDS is over but his crusade has just begun. Zamora's family, friends and the millions of people he touched and helped will keep his work, memories and message alive. The legacy of this caring, compassionate and friendly young man will continue to make an huge and powerful presence and impact on the lives of others.

The two fraternities and one sorority that comprise Lynn University's social Greek system will be doing their part to help ensure that Zamora's work and message lives on. On April 8 and 9, 1995 they will hold the first annual Greek AIDS Walk to Miami in honor of Zamora. All the money raised prior to and during the walk will be donated to the AIDS Action Pedro Zamora Memorial Fund that has been established by his family to help continue Zamora's work. The social Greeks at Lynn University hope to give back a small portion of all the help, insight and information that Pedro Zamora provided to our students when he visited and spoke here three years ago.

I Heard It Through The Greekvine

By: Cyndi Baumann

On November 20th Florida Atlantic University's colony of Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority came together to celebrate the founding of their sisterhood. In the year 1926, nine women founded Phi Sigma Sigma and started what is now a large national sorority with many chapters across the U.S. These women met to honor their founders and to value true sisterhood. Speakers came in from Nationals to talk about the trouble some greeks get into on other campuses and encouraged the sisters to rise above what stereotypes have been drawn out for greeks. They sang songs of sisterhood and songs that pledged their love and faith to Phi Sigma Sigma. After all was said and done, a lovely buffet was set out for the sisters and their families to enjoy. Since founder's day falls so close to Thanksgiving, family of the sisters were invited. It was time for a large family to come together and be thankful for one another.

Phi Sigma Sigma welcomes all interested Lynn University women to become a part of the first national sorority on campus. This is your opportunity to experience friendship, sisterhood, service and involvement as you start a new tradition at Lynn University.

The Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority interest group at Lynn University has been growing, changing and strengthening since its' beginning this semester. These dedicated and motivated group of women are working toward their colonization with Phi Sigma Sigma and continue to stay involved with all activities and events of Lynn's young Greek system.

THETA XI FRATERNITY

By: Chad Peltz

The Theta Xi interest group would like to welcome everyone back to school and we hope that you had an enjoyable Thanksgiving break.

During the month of October, the Theta Xi interest group had one of its first events, a Halloween costume party. It was a very successful party with a good number of people showing up.

We are still looking for a few good men to join our organization. On Mondays, Wednesdays, and on Fridays we have dinner at 5:00 PM in the cafeteria, with a meeting following the dinner upstairs on the patio of the student center. If you have any questions feel free to stop by or call Trent Turner at 241-1745, in deHoernle room number D-213.

PI LAMBDA PHI FRATERNITY

By: Steven H. Klein

Pi Lambda Phi has recently completed their pledging process. Thanks to everyone's efforts, I would like to welcome the 12 new NIBS (Newly Initiated Brothers) into the fraternity. It was a long week, but everyone has learned a great deal of knowledge and will cherish this not just 4 years but a lifetime.

The Pi Lams have had a very busy and productive semester. Fundraiser car washes, designated study hours each week, camping in the Everglades, a Halloween party, and all our meetings add to the fun and togetherness which is needed to keep a group functioning as one. Congratulations, NIBS, for you look forward to you passing on the traditions and filling your big brothers' shoes next semester for all the awaiting pledges.

Skipping

By: Abby Mackin

Every Lynn University student has experienced a feeling of being a little 'insane in the membrane' for one reason or another. A student may grow in knowledge through going to classes, yet what is learned in these classes must be expressed outside the classroom. Everyone has the potential to experience a full range of expression, and to be emotionally free and spontaneous, yet self-aware, reveals that we are human. Being human one must be willing to acknowledge the need for a break from it all. Skipping classes fulfills this need.

Skipping to become one with the ocean, the sun, and the beach is truly relaxing. One may even enjoy thinking he/she is Kelly Slater or Sinjin Smith.

The brown bottle flu earns one the day of lights out, covers up. This also counts as skipping because you've just got in from the Edge, Club Boca, or Nippers two hours ago, and you can't seem to keep those eyes popped open without toothpicks holding them up.

Being a couch potato entails the Chronic Disease of playing Sega with your buds, drinking beer, ordering pizza, and accomplishing absolutely nothing except learning that Frisco will never go back to Felicia (he's happier with Amanda on Melrose).

Joining Rip Van Winkle for a few hours never hurts anyone and puts you in the twelve hour sleep marathon. Trying to catch up is the best part of it.

To hand in late or not to hand in late? That is definitely a question many students face in many of their chosen courses at Lynn. If a professor accepts late work at all skipping a class once in a while may be the only way one can pass.

There are many other reasons I can give in justifying skipping once in awhile, but everyone has different reasons. Hurricane Gorden...I-95 truck explosions...car problems...stuck in Palm Beach County Jail...stranded in Miami with morons who have stolen ones wallet and clothes...need I mention more?

Have A Drink At The Boca Ale House

By: Steven H. Klein

Sit back and relax at Boca’s newest ale house/restaurant. If “warm” attitudes, tasty food, and a wide selection of domestic and imported beers and ales attract you, then get over to the Boca Ale House early on the weekend for a jolly time. Like the other ale houses located throughout Florida, this addition to the chain is just as good as all the others.

The Boca Ale House is located on Glades Road, just pass Wilf’s. With 15 beers on tap, and 20 different bottle selections, anyone who is the beer connoisseur or just in the mood for a good brew can appreciate this. The food ranges from appetizers to the fresh seafood platters, all at reasonable prices. So, sit back and enjoy some conch and a Sam Adams on tap, and have a relaxing night at The Boca Ale House.

Q. When did you start playing soccer?
A. I was five. My older brother, Peter, played at school, and I constantly asked for him to teach me. Soon after my mom became my coach.

Q. How does your family react to you being a soccer player?
A. My family is very supportive. My parents go to almost all of my games. Even though they don’t fly, they drove to Georgia to see the finals.

Q. Where did you study prior to Lynn?
A. I attended St. Thomas Aquinas High School in Ft. Lauderdale.

Q. Why did you choose Lynn and how long have you been here?

Q. How did you feel after winning the championship?
A. It’s an amazing feeling! You work so hard to achieve a goal, and to finish number one, that once you get there it’s undescrivable. I cried when we won the game. I was so happy we had won, but also I realized it was over. It is part of my life I will have to leave behind, and treasure the memories.

Q. What are your plans for after graduation?
A. I’ll be graduating in May 95. I plan on moving to Georgia where I will specialize to become a Chiropractor.

Men's Soccer Team Loses In Semifinal

By: Frank Aliaga

If a rebuilding year means losing in the National Championship semifinal, then many coaches in the country would like to have rebuilding years, or the Lynn University underclassmen. L.U., with 6 starting freshmen, lost to the eventual champions West Virginia Wesleyan by a slim 2-1. Lynn, seeded seventh going into the tournament, eliminated defending champions Sangamon State, 4-0 in the opener. That was a good start for Lynn, who coincidentally had to get revenge on the very team that beat them in last year's final. In the second game, Lynn got two goals late in the game from Jakob Lorentzon and Chris Lovett, to upset third ranked Rockhurst, Mo. "No one gave us a chance," said Lynn coach Shaun Hindmarsh due to an allergic reaction.

L.U. also lost another starting defender in the district playoffs when Shane Humble had his leg severely broken in a match against Auburn-Montgomery. "You have to have a rebuilding year at some point," said Hindmarsh, "when you lose 5 seniors, (of them All American) you can't expect to replace them with High School seniors. However, we'll be very strong for the next three, four years."

With the exception of graduating seniors Johan Lundgren and Ashley Lander, the rest of the team can anxiously look forward to next season.

Turkey Trail Trot A Big Success

By: Frank Aliaga

After weeks of planning and organizing, the 2nd Annual Lynn University Turkey Trail Trot ran as smooth as its participants. On Saturday morning, November 12th, 68 runners and walkers were on hand to take part in this event. It featured men and women of all ages including students and various faculty members. Julia Allerdylce, the daughter of professor Dr. Diane Allerdylce, took home the 3rd place women's trophy. The event also contained a dramatic 2nd place photo finish won by Lynn junior and defending champion Marco Sampaio. The winner of the men's division was Vladimir, a member of the Boca Raton Road Runners, with an impressive time of 18 minutes and 28 seconds. In the women's competition, Natasha Smith ran away from the rest of the field, finishing the 5 Kilometers in a remarkable 21 minutes 44 seconds.

All in all, taking the good with the bad rainy day, the 2nd Annual Turkey Trail Trot was both a big success and an enjoyable morning.

Lynn Hockey Team

By: Derek Boucher

The Lynn Ice Hockey Team is on its way to its 6th straight winning season. The Knights have fifteen players on the team and are coached by Assistant Athletic Director Doug Dudgeon. According to second year player Chris Barone, "This year's team is different from last year's team, because we have fewer players on the team and we've been having more fan support than we did last year. We have a much better team this year and we should be good enough to be playing in the championship series."

Check out the hockey schedule for times and dates of the games and support your Lynn ice hockey team. All of the LU hockey games are played at Gold Coast Arena on Federal Highway in Deerfield.

The Men's Basketball Team Playing Strong

By: Mary Anne Natale

In their first year in the NCAA, the men's basketball team has stepped up to division one teams and has a respectable record of 1-4. To date, the L.U. team has played extremely competitive and their future games are looking positive. Their next home game, being led by Coach Jeff Price, will be held on December 10. The team is hoping for the support of the Lynn University student body.

The Lynn University Basketball Team Strikes Again

By: Mary Ann Natale

Coach Dan Olson led the L.U. women to another victory on Saturday, December 3, against Saint Leo.

This win puts the team with a current record of 3 wins and 1 loss. Teammate Joy Porter comments, "We need more communication in order to improve our game."

However, she still maintains a positive outlook for the rest of the season. The team is looking forward to more school spirit at the upcoming games.
Dear Editor in Chief,

You are negligent in your duties to the Lynn University community by failing to report criminal or potentially dangerous situations. Since the campus newspaper reports no criminal activities, it is assumed that none occur on our campus. That is far from the truth.

Granted, you did cover the Trinity fire, but you must also report incidents a little less obvious or obvious, such as fires and thefts. A在这里, you are setting us up to be silent witnesses to the crimes.

Your lack of reporting crimes, you are setting us up to be the next victims due to your negligence. We all like to feel safe in our homes, but you must also have a false sense of security.

Thank you for your comments, although we know that "suspicious" have occurred, perhaps we will be vigilante and aware of those who look like they do not belong on the Lynn campus. Other police calls include 8 cases of trespass (10/3, 10/9, 10/13, 10/14, 10/20, 10/27, 11/5, 11/11). Now we can realize that there have been "outsiders" in our midst and we must be watchful.

The police investigated three bike thefts (11/9, 11/10, 11/17). Tell us. Maybe we won't leave our bikes unlocked while we attend classes.

We must know that theft occurred in our dormitories-2 cases of grand theft (10/15, 11/27) and 1 case of petty theft (10/27). Knowing that theft occurred might make us likely to allow relative strangers into our rooms. Even more serious was a burglary to a dorm room (11/23). We need to know of these crimes so we can better protect ourselves.

One vehicle was vandalized (11/4). If your remind us that these things happen, we'll do our part and lock our car doors and try to park in less remote areas.

How serious do the crimes need to become before you feel it should printed in your paper? One sexual battery occurred (10/11). Knowing that may make us less likely to venture out alone.

If you're not feeling about armed robbery (11/1)? Yes, the gun was included at no extra charge. Tell us! Warn us. We'll be more careful not to be alone in desolate areas, especially at night.

These are some of the crimes entered into the public record by the Boca Raton police department. I have no idea what dark secrets campus security knows. By closing your eyes to such unpleasantities on our campus, you are setting us up to be the next victims due to your own ignorance. You are the Editor in Chief of our newspaper. You control the tools to keep us informed. You can help us help ourselves. Report the crimes committed. Knowing that my neighbor was robbed won't help him, but it may make me take the steps to make sure that I am not the next victim. It may also make us all watch out for each other and keep us all mutually safe and secure. DO YOUR JOB! REPORT THE REAL NEWS.

De-Stress For Finals

By: Melissa L. Peeples

Don't let final exams get on your last nerve. Here's a list of tips to make your reviews and study sessions run more smoothly:

1. During review classes COPY everything from the board.
2. USE an assignment sheet to keep the dates for all final exams and due dates for all presentations, papers, and projects.
3. FIND a fixed place to study and only to study.
4. HAVE all supplies you'll need before you start to study.

5. If you're mind wanders, STAND up and face away from your desk.
6. USE a magic charm or thinking cap to study with.
7. When you are reading, STOP at the end of each page and count to 10 slowly.
8. FLIP through your reading or assignment quickly before going on to something else.
9. MAKE flash cards.
10. NEVER underline a whole sentence, only the most important phrases.
11. SELF-TEST immediately after reading each assignment.
12. MAKE UP and answer questions you think your teacher might ask.

Hopefully some of these tips help you. If all else fails be sure to say the STUDY PRAYER:

Now I lay me down to study, I pray the Lord I won't go nutty. If I should fail to learn this junk, I pray the Lord I will not flunk. But if I do, don't pity me at all, just lay my bones down in study hall. Tell my teacher I did my best, then pile my books upon my chest. Now I lay me down to rest and pray I'll pass tomorrow's test. If I should die before I wake, that's less test I have to take.

GOOD LUCK ON FINALS!!!

'Tis The Season To Be Generous

By: Claribel Corona

It's about that time again when the child in us starts getting our Christmas list ready and begins hoping that we get all we wish for. This is also the time that many of us forget that there are people out there in the world that desire just as much but due to their financial status or limited sources of income they can barely, if at all, provide for their basic needs.

One family, for example, lives in West Boca Raton. During the past couple of years the mother, Nancy Gregory, has gone through six operations, a divorce and the trauma of moving her family from their longtime Boston home to South Florida. Gregory has two children and wants to give them everything they wish for, but knows it's impossible.

Gregory feels as though many things in her life are difficult, but she will never give up hope and will always do what's best for her children.

If you wish to contribute money or any items to the needy you can do so by calling the agency listed with any story in the Boca News, or by mailing them to, or dropping them off at the agency.

SENIORS - TOO BUSY BUYING PRESENTS? DON'T FORGET TO REGISTER FOR GRADUATION

If you have not yet registered for May graduation, you must do so prior to leaving for Winter Break. Please see the registrar and get ready to don that cap and gown.

'It's A Key West Thing'... These five Lynn Students take advantage of the warm weather and the best mode of transportation on Duval Street in Key West. Student Activities sponsored the trip on November 5 & 6 and a great time was had by all who attended.
