Shrimp And Lobster Every Day?
Food Committee Meetings Open To Everyone
by Juliette Schohn

A recent survey by the E-Pulse confirms the common knowledge most Lynn students complain about the food. But few realize they can do something about it.

More than just a place to eat, the Lynn "cafe" is also the socializing place where students like to mingle and gossip amongst themselves. There is a friendly atmosphere - constant talking, laughter and silverware clatter are the sounds of this humming dining hall.

The food service at Lynn consists of the cafeteria, the Knights Grill, located on the second floor of the cafeteria building, Richard Snyder, assistant chef and the Hot Dog Court just outside of the international building. All three are operated by Phoenix Restaurants, formerly Total Food Service, which has worked with Lynn for over 20 years.

The cafeteria serves a total of 19 meals per week. The menu works under a four week cycle produced by Susan Fowler, Food Service Director, and the executive chef, Frank Rodriguez. Fowler, who has a dietician and nutritional background, has been in the business for some 27 years and Rodriguez has been an executive chef for over 15 years and has worked for Phoenix for about seven years.

"We are really, really flexible in changing the menu," says Fowler. "We take it extremely seriously."

Lynn Takes To The Ice
New Hockey Team Ready
by Sara Assad

We've yet to see snow in Boca, but Lynn recently took to the ice again.

The team is still operating at the intramural level, but coach Trevor Grafflin and team captain, sophomore Brandon D'Appollonio, the team can officially be part of the athletic department by next fall. Then, the team hopes to compete at the inter-collegiate level, as well as joining the American College Hockey Association (ACHA).

Although they're very optimistic about their upcoming season, they are also concerned about being hampered by what they consider to be the low budget funding they receive from the school.

According to the assistant captain Patrick O’Conelly, the team received $4,500 for the upcoming season. But O'Conelly said, "That’s not going to be enough to pay for anything."

Expenses include paying for practice time at the Glacier Ice and Snow Arena in Boca, equipment, uniforms and transportation, the hockey team is thinking about how to raise money for next season.

Casa La Playa
by Brian Smith

Brandon Rossetti's bungalow style villa in Casa La Playa is located south of Linton, on A1A. His one-bedroom, one-bath Spanish style villa is just one of eight single family villas in a small gated community on the ocean. Rossetti's house has tile floors and wood ceilings. The villa is nicely decorated with bright colors and is pleasantly clean for a college student. The kitchen and TV room are attached and his dining area is on the porch outdoors. The house has no backyard, but is just about 100 feet away from its own private beach. Spanish River Beach is just about a mile walk away when he wants some company.

Just in front of the beach is a large swimming pool with grill and TV for party occasions. How could anyone ask for anything more. Rossetti definitely has the right idea on how to live la vida de Playa.

Ichiban Japanese Restaurant
According to Zagat Survey in 1998, 1999 and 2000, Ichiban in Boca is America's top restaurant for three years in a row. Whether that's really true or not, Ichiban in Japanese means No. 1 and this place lives up to its name with class and style. Ichiban prides itself on what it calls its genuine Japanese atmosphere - table settings, fun lights above your head, and Japanese music. The sound level is minimal and allows you to enjoy an authentic Japanese experience.

There are many interesting dishes and my recommendations are numerous. For appetizers, you should try the Harumaki-spring rolls, Edamame - lightly salted steamed soy beans or the Tuna Pizza of yellow fin tuna, tomato, bell pepper, wasabi mayo and anchovy sauce.

The Surf Salad is deliciously light with fresh tuna, sesame seeds, spring mix and cucumber with ponzu sauce. Once you eat one of their specialty rolls, you'll want to try them all. Their Japanese bagel with salmon, cream cheese and scallions - an original favorite - is a must-try. The Spider soft-shelled crab, lettuce, cucumber, avocado, mayo and masago is so good that you would want to order it twice just like I did.

They even have a special menu only dedicated to their large variety of sushi and sashimi with appetizers and dinners. You must try the Vegetarian, the Vegetable Sushi or the Vegetable Roll. However, you will need to come more than once in order to try everything.

Frank Rodriguez & Susan Fowler

Trying to offer different ideas they want the kids to enjoy is their priority, however, if it were up to the students, they would probably ask for shrimp and lobster every day and this is unfortunately not possible explains Fowler, who says that the only constraint they work under is the regular budget limitations that all institutions have to manage.

They try to make the menu based on their understanding of young college students - diets, cravings and other typical eating patterns. "We try to make it fun for them," says Fowler. "We love to do themes!"

Indeed, every two weeks or so, the food department organizes a special lunch or dinner serving authentic food from different parts of the world, such as the Caribbean, Mexico, Asia and Italy. Students seem to enjoy this because it provides them with the opportunity to taste different things.

But a problem that every academic institution in the world faces is that some students are never satisfied with the food service and often complain about it. Fowler recognizes this and even recalls her complaints when she was a student.

Based on our recent survey, the majority of Lynn students are surprisingly quite satisfied with the food.

Others claim they really don’t like it because the menus are repetitive and there is not enough variety. But they may not realize the food service department works very hard to provide the student population with what they want, while balancing their budget and other factors of the food industry.

According to Fowler, the food industry is very complex and involves a wide range of tasks, from the purchase and delivery of food, to knowing which items will last on the shelf and which will not. One also needs to be aware of external and technical problems such as failure of delivery or broken machinery.

Students who are not happy do have the opportunity to express their feelings to the food service department. Fowler stresses her department is eager for student feedback.

They are open to suggestions and invite anyone to attend the Food Committee meetings, which take place every other Tuesday, at 3 p.m. in the cafeteria with Fowler, Rodriguez and committee members.

Few students realize they have this opportunity, though it has actually been available since Fowler started working here.

So if you do not like the food, speak up.

Duke Leads Charge Into Finals
by Justin Cohen

Jim Calhoun’s No. 2 Connecticut Huskies were the first to punch their ticket to the 2004 Final Four in San Antonio, Texas. Ben Gordon scored 36 points, which is one shy of a career best and Rashad Anderson added a career high 28 points in their 87-71 drilling over Alabama. UConn started hot right from the start and finished the first half with a 17-4 run to close the gap up 53-29. In the second half, Alabama did not get closer than 14. UConn clearly has the ability to win the national title considering UConn’s All American center, Emeka Okafor only played 19 minutes the whole game. Okafor still was able to block five shots and grab 9 rebounds. With regional MVP Gordon and Anderson stepping their play up big at the right time of the tournament, UConn has nothing to worry about going into the Final Four.

No. 1 St. Joseph’s fell short in their claim to reach the Final Four for the first time in school history. John Lucas, son of a famous father, who was a top college player and former NBA coach, showed NCAA player of the year, Jameer Nelson, how to do it. Lucas hit a three pointer with 6.9 seconds remaining, while Nelson missed a shot at the buzzer, as OSU held on for a thrilling 64-62 win. Head Coach Eddie Sutton and many OSU fans believed they should have received the No. 1 seed over St. Joe’s. Their point was made on Saturday, March 27 in East Rutherford, New Jersey. Sutton will now coach in his third Final Four.

St. Joe’s remarkable season is officially over, but nobody at the small college in Philadelphia will ever forget this season.

The first regional final on Sunday, March 28 put No. 3 Georgia Tech against No. 4 Kansas. Kansas made it to the final game last year under former coach Roy Williams, while Georgia Tech has not played in the Final Four since 1990. The Yellow Jackets best player, BJ Elder was injured by a badly sprained ankle, so somebody else needed to step up in order to be headed to San Antonio. Jarrett Jack, for Georgia Tech, scored a career high 29 points, eight of which were scored in overtime. The Yellow Jackets prevailed over Bill Self’s team, 79-71. Georgia Tech has had a very memorable road to the Final Four. They started the season 11-0 and beat then number one ranked UConn, while also beating Duke and Wake Forest on the road. Underdog, Georgia Tech was without key player Elder for their Elite Eight game, but that did not effect the outcome. Georgia Tech now faces Oklahoma State in the national semifinals.

No. 7 Xavier was looking to be the first team since LSU in 1986 to beat a No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3 seed on the way to the Final Four. Xavier who has never made the Elite Eight before, had their dream cut short in the final minute and a half when they started missing important shots. During the final minutes, it was clear that Duke had been in this position a lot more than Thad Matta’s Musketeers. Duke prevailed 66-63 to win the Atlanta regional and now set up a meeting in Texas with No. 2 UConn.

Going into the final weekend of the season, it is anyone’s shot to win the National Championship. UConn has a tremendous amount of confidence after seeing their stars Gordon and Anderson step up big time. Look for UConn to win by five points over Duke. Expect Eddie Sutton’s experience in the final weekend of play to be a factor.

Paul Hewitt, the coach of Tech, is making his first trip to the Final Four. Tech won their first three games by a combined total of 13 points. Expect Tech’s luck to run out, especially if superstar BJ Elder is not available to play.

In the Final, it will come down to who wants it a little more. If Okafor is available to play for majority of the game and Gordon and Anderson step up yet again, UConn will win another National Championship under Coach Jim Calhoun.

JUSTIN’S FINAL FOUR PREDICTIONS

FINAL FOUR:
NO. 2 OKLAHOMA STATE OVER
NO. 3 GEORGIA TECH
NO. 2 CONNECTICUT OVER NO. 1 DUKE

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME:
CONNECTICUT OVER OKLAHOMA STATE
March Madness is followed by baseball's April Madness. Starting April 4, the off-season trades and free-agency moves make this season one of the most awaited in years. Big names in different teams are the talk of the day. With the exception of just a few, the parity of the teams is the closest it has been in many years. The World Series trophy is up for grabs.

The most talked about move is, without a doubt, the A-Rod trade to the New York Yankees. A-Rod joins Derek Jeter, Jason Giambi, Jorge Posada and Hideki Matsui in what is perhaps the greatest lineup of all times. Added to their offensive power, the New York Yankees also got new arms in Kevin Brown and Javier Vazquez who join Mike Mussina, making their rotation one of the most dominant in the league.

The Yankees, however, will have some competition in the Boston Red Sox with their acquisition of Curt Schilling who bolsters the rotation. The powerful trio of Pedro Martinez, Derek Lowe and Schilling will definitely put a fight for the supremacy in the American League East.

Boston also has a lineup that looks scary. The speed and opportune hitting of Johnny Damon in the top will give Kevin Millar, Jason Varitek, Nomar Garciaparra, and Manny Ramirez many RBI shots. After numerous rumors, and attempts from the Boston front office to release Garciaparra and Ramirez, the two are prepared to show the trade would have been a mistake.

Even though the Baltimore Orioles got huge names like Javy Lopez from the Braves and Miguel Tejada from the Oakland Athletics, the O's will probably continue to stay in the basement. There shouldn't be any surprises in the standings and the Yanks should pull ahead as the season progresses. Torii Hunter and the Twins, even though they're on a sort of rebuilding phase of their own, should have no problem in winning the American League Central, which is filled with teams in the middle of rebuilding phases. The experience of Hunter, Shannon Stewart, and Jacque Jones, among others will help keep the Twins in the hunt. The pitching of J.C. Romero, Johan Santana and Joe Mays will help make the offense's job a little easier.

The West division is the toughest in the league. The Anaheim Angels want to prove they can win the Series again. With significant acquisitions like Bartolo Colon and Vladimir Guerrero, they have a good chance. Brandon Donnelly and Francisco Rodriguez of the Angels will make it their job to secure the middle and final innings of the games and Troy Percival is the Angels' chief closer.

The Oakland Athletics will also have one of the most dominating pitching rotations in the league. Barry Zito, Tim Hudson, Mark Mulder and Rich Harden pitching will look to choke bats with nasty pitching.

Built around their pitching, the A's also have offensive power. Eric Chavez, Jermaine Dye, who'll try to stay away from injuries, Mark Kotsay, and the young Bobby Kielty will try to catapult Oakland to the World Series again.

Freddy Garcia, Jamie Moyer and Gil Meche will be the heart of the Mariner's pitching rotation. The bats of Bret Boone and Ichiro Suzuki at the top of the lineup will ignite an offense that under Edgar Martinez and Raul Ibanez is in need of proving itself in a powerful division.

The Texas Rangers were the other team involved in the A-Rod trade. They acquired star second baseman Alfonso Soriano. Along with Soriano, teammate Hank Blalock will try to get something going for a team that seems to never go anywhere. The acquisition of Soriano was important, but, they traded one superstar for another, so they ended up in the same spot. The trade created a larger salary cap, but Soriano will probably be unable to do what A-Rod could not. Don't expect the Rangers to do anything spectacular.

Next week I will preview teams in the National Leagues East, Central and West. You won't want to miss what's coming up in the spring for big names like Sammy Sosa, Andy Pettitte and Mark Prior.

Hello Manhattan, Goodbye Meadowlands!
Jets Move To NYC
by Justin Cohen

It looks like you New Yorkers will no longer have to cross the bridge into New Jersey, just to see a pro football game; it will practically be in your backyard, in Manhattan.

You heard right, New York City and State officials announced a deal on Thursday March 25, 2004 for a $1.4 billion stadium located on Manhattan's West Side, which would be the home of the New York Jets.

"It's great! There should be a football team in New York!" Andrew Resnick, junior, from Staten Island, NY.

The mouth watering makeup of the New York Sports and Convention Center would include a 75,000 seat stadium for the Jets and a 200,000 square foot exhibit hall.

The structure would also include a retractable roof, which would allow the facility to be used for Final Fours, Super Bowls and even live concerts. Also, if New York City wins the 2012 Olympic bid, the NYSCC would host the opening and closing ceremonies.

The Jets organization is willing to invest $800 million towards this new top of the line facility, but insist the City of New York needs to give a contribution of $600 million.

Not only will this stadium deal help Jets season ticket sales, it also is predicted that the NYSCC will contribute more than $75 million yearly towards the tax revenues of New York City and State.

"Maybe they will finally win a game in a new stadium!" said Chad Frangipane, junior, from New York City.

The Jets are currently playing their games at the Meadowlands, where they share the stadium with the New York Giants.

This past week was the Fort Lauderdale International Car Show at the Broward Convention Center.
The show was a little disappointing because some of the manufactures were not there with their cars. But the manufactures that did show up had some amazing displays of all their 2005 and concept cars.

Some of the companies present to show off their stuff were Ford, Acura, Hummer, Mercedes and more.

Nalini's Feedback
Movies That Rock
by Nalini Maharaj

Taking Lives* This movie is sort of a remake of "Silence of the Lambs," but definitely not as good as the classic. However, Angelina Jolie's performance as an FBI agent was remarkable. She is on the hunt for a serial killer who takes the identity of its victims. This movie is extremely gory but keeps you in suspense and guessing until the very end, trying to figure out who the killer is. Along with Jolie is the very attractive cast of Ethan Hawke, Kiefer Sutherland and Oliver Martinez.

Starsky and Hutch This 1975 remake is really hilarious, mainly due to the dynamic duo of Ben Stiller and Owen Wilson. Together, they play two Bay City detectives, of which one, Stiller, is a nerd, while Wilson is more the laid back type. This movie is cool because it brings you back to the fashion, cars, attitude and lifestyle of the 70s. In addition Vince Vaughn and Snoop Dogg, also part of the cast, add their very own humor to it. Guaranteed non-stop laughter in the theater, you really ought to see it if you already haven't, especially if you enjoyed the hits "Old School" and "Road Trip."
With every dinner you also get to enjoy wonton soup, egg rolls, pork fried rice and dessert. The chef's specialty of curried rice is very tempting and I highly recommend it along with the wide variety of vegetarian diet dishes.

For large groups of people, the Family Dinner serves four and is a bargain at only $9.50. 1919 W Hillsboro Blvd., Deerfield Beach, (954)-421-8720.

Hockey C'td

Team members include sophomore John Kreeble, graduate student Jacob Luvarelly and juniors Chris Behry and Rob Burgman. Lance Sylvia, a senior, serves as team manager.

Captain D'Appollonio said, "I'm pretty satisfied with how the team is going so far. We've gotten a new semi-pro hockey player who has been helping us out in many ways. Everyone is stepping up and the team is really starting to shape up. Hopefully, we will soon get in the league, start winning some games and get a hockey team again!"

The team practices once a week at the arena, and compete in scrimmages against local teams.

Fashion Show Is A Hit
Events Management Class Succeeds
by Sara Assad

As part of the fashion events management class, the students held a fashion show on Tuesday, April 13 in the Green Center. The show, "Fashion World Tour: Trends Around the Globe," featured a "flight" theme - the audience was taken on a tour of the fashion districts of the world. Stops included Las Vegas, Paris, the Caribbean, Texas and New York City. The fashion was creatively put together, with little skits and dances in between the "cabin stops."

The event also had some door prizes for ticket holders. Prizes included hair care baskets, gift certificates to the local Friday's restaurants and Roonies, in West Palm Beach and gift certificates to a local massage therapy center.

The models, who are all Lynn students and staff, taxied up and down the runway sporting fashions from well acclaimed retailers, including Theory and Chico's from the Town Center Mall in Boca Raton,

Palm Beach Post Article
Upsets Lynn
Misunderstandings Out In The Open
by Nalini Maharaj & Juliette Schohn

"Lynn Fertile Ground for Late Bloomers" was the title of an article by Palm Beach Post writer, John Murawski, and published on Tuesday, March 30. The article's tone stirred up a lot of controversy among students and faculty who took offense at some of the comments.

The article touched on many aspects of Lynn, including the freshman academic adventure tour in a way that seemed to imply this event is an excuse to party.

In an email to Murawski, 19-year-old freshman William Cockey expressed his frustration and discontent.

"Your comments about the Academic Adventure program were troubling. The trip is intended as a bonding experience for new students... I felt that your article crossed the line between objective journalism and criticism."

Murawski's article suggested the faculty encourages "partying." In fact, Lynn has very strict alcohol and drugs policies stated in the Lynn University student handbook, which are strongly enforced.

Junior Matt Frank said, "I thought it was outrageously exaggerated. This school and the faculty do not encourage any kind of partying at all."

Scholar In Residence Program Underway
Barcroft And Butler To Lecture
by Sara Assad

The Scholar in Residence program, put together by the Task Force on Campus Climate and Progression Committee, brings scholars of different aspects of life to join the Lynn community and share their ideas and experiences.

This program houses the scholars in a residence hall for the duration of the week in which they are giving lectures and interacting on a personal level with the students.

According to the chairman of the Task Force committee, Dr. David Jaffe, the program aims to expand the students' learning experiences beyond the classroom.

Each scholar brought on campus has gained valuable life experiences they wish to share in the hopes of stimulating the minds of young students.

Dr. Stephen Barcroft of Dublin, Ireland, an internationally acclaimed scholar on geopolitics, has been on campus this week, lecturing and talking informally with students about globalization, idealism and isolationism, the League of Nations, the United Nations and the war in Iraq. Barcroft has lectured in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, Limerick University in Ireland, as well as the American College, Dublin and parts of the United States. Now he has brought his lectures to Lynn's classrooms.

In a press conference setting in Myles Ludwig's Introduction to Journalism class, Barcroft answered questions from students who posed as reporters.

They asked for his views on the war in Iraq, the United Nations' role in this war and what he thought about President George W. Bush's efforts to eliminate terrorist threats.

Barcroft replied, "There is so much any government can do about terrorism; it can be everywhere. This country has no experience dealing with terrorism; it's hard to watch everyone all the time. They are doing as much as they can, I believe."

John Rueger, a member of the class, said it was very interesting to have the opportunity to hear the point of view of someone who is not from this country about the issues that the entire world is dealing with.

Barcroft will be here all week, mainly discussing current events, politics and international relations.

Next week, the Scholar in Residence program will be hosting the well-known Pulitzer Prize winning author Robert Olen Butler. He is currently a teacher at Florida State University as part of their creative writing program. He will be here at Lynn in conjunction with the Florida Literature and Film Week and will be lecturing and discussing a number of literary works, including his Pulitzer Prize winning short story collection, "A Good Scent from a Strange Mountain."

The article also also stereotyped Lynn students as the typical “rich kids.”
In response to Cockey’s email, Murawski explained his intentions were not to “bash” Lynn but to present it as an “interesting and unusual institution, to give a sense of the place and its values.”
He said the term “late bloomers” actually came from Donald Ross characterizing only a portion of the student body. Murawski said that according to Ross, the typical student is “average to above average.”
According to Murawski, the average SAT score at Lynn is about 1000 and the graduate rate is 35 percent.
Maybe belittling Lynn was not the writer’s intention, but this is how a lot of students and faculty said they interpreted the article.
“The article was inaccurate and it was something comparable to a slander campaign fueled by aggravated Palm Beach residents who disapprove of Lynn’s desire for expansion,” said Dan Newman, a junior.

Cubs-Red Sox Players: 2004 Award Winners?
The Two Teams Should Win
by Mauricio Botero

This season’s championship is shaping up to be one of the most fought for in years. The fight for the top awards of the league should be a battle between two teams, the Chicago Cubs and the Boston Sox.

Two of the many teams that improved their rosters, Boston and Chicago have added key players that will help them get far this season. Built around their pitching and their explosive lineups, the teams have many difference-makers that can take the team in their hands and carry them to the championship.

Chicago Cub, Sammy Sosa, who if it wasn’t for a certain Barry Bonds, is a year in and year out candidate for the award. He will win the race for the Most Valuable Player award in the National League. A higher batting average and a decreased number of strikeouts will add to his power numbers along with his unbelievable arm strength. With Moises Alou, Corey Patterson and Aramis Ramirez in the lineup, Sosa will be able to focus more on his personal numbers and not have to worry about carrying the weight of the team himself.

Kerry Wood will continue to overpower opponents and put up the same strikeout numbers as in the past seasons. With Mark Prior and Greg Maddux behind him, Wood will ignite a deadly rotation. Wood should have no problem locking up the Cy Young Award race for pitchers.

Another lineup filled with stars is that of the Red Sox. Boston is very versatile, packing many weapons that will aid them in securing victories. Manny Ramirez should stand up for the team this year and produce amazing stats. A power hitter, who is also capable of hitting it all over the field, Ramirez will take the team in his hands and come up big in RBI opportunities.

A key acquisition for the Red Sox is pitcher Curt Schilling. An imposing pitcher, Schilling will get quality starts for the team. Schilling will count with an offense that will help him win games and a defense and bullpen that are sure to finish the games with a win. Schilling will be a top candidate for the American League Cy Young Award.

Tennis Wraps Up Regular Season
500 Victories In Perez's Count
by Justin Cohen

After two months of hard work, the men’s and women’s tennis teams are now getting ready for the most important part of the season, the postseason.

The men, ranked 22 in the nation, ended the regular season with an 11-9 overall record and a 4-2 in the Sunshine State Conference (SSC) play. The women, ranked No. 3, wrapped it up with an outstanding 18-1 overall record while posting a 7-0 SSC record.

Not only did the women win their final match of the season 8-1 over No. 9 North Florida, but it also marked a remarkable milestone for Coach Mike Perez. Perez who has coached the men's and women's programs for the last 15 years, won his 500th tennis match as a head coach. Perez has brought six national titles to Lynn women's program and has even been given the title, NAIA's Coach of the Decade for the 90's.

Both teams will compete in Orlando, in the SSC tournament hosted by Rollins College, on Friday, April 16 thru Sunday, April 18.

The men, seeded No. 3 in the SSC, will take on No. 6 Florida Tech in the first round. The women, who are seeded No. 1, will also face Florida Tech.

USA Rocks Davis Delray
Roddick Clinches Win
by Justin Cohen

The United States defeated Sweden in the quarterfinals of the Davis Cup last weekend, at the Delray Beach Tennis Center. Not only were the matches just a short ride away from the Lynn campus, but they were also a homecoming event for Boca Raton residents, Andy Roddick and Mardy Fish who both attended Boca Prep.

Sweden took the lead on Friday in the first match of this best-of-five battle with Jonas Bjorkman defeating Mardy Fish 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

But just as quick, Roddick took care of Thomas Enqvist 6-4, 7-5, 6-2 on the second match, Friday night, leaving it to a tie at the end of a long opening day.

Saturday afternoon's crowd saw the world's No. 1 ranked doubles team, Bob and Mike Bryan from the United States, take on top notch doubles player Bjorkman and his long-time partner, Thomas Johansson.

US Captain Patrick McEnroe said that he felt the Bryan Bros. are the reason the US will sneak out some Davis Cup matches. And he indeed was right. The Bryan twins wasted no time as they dismantled Bjorkman and Johansson, one of the oldest partners and most experienced doubles players on the tour, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. This victory put the U.S. on top 2-1 going into Sunday's final pairings.

Finally, on Sunday April 11, Roddick ended Sweden's dream of making the semifinals by beating Bjorkman 7-6(3), 6-4, 6-0. After indulging in a long one hour opening set, Roddick remained extremely patient throughout the rest of the match and drilled a record breaking 152 M.P.H. ace on match point.

Mardy Fish made the final score 4-1 by beating Thomas Johansson 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

The U.S. will next face Belarus in the Davis Cup Semifinals. They will play in the U.S. but the specific location is still undetermined.

McNicoll, Lynn Men Capture SSC Title
by Ross Blacker

University took home the 2004 Sunshine State Conference Tournament title Tuesday, winning the first league title in men's golf by besting its nearest competitor by eleven shots.

Individually, sophomore Keir McNicoll captured the individual title by firing rounds of 74-69-73-216.

The event was hosted by Barry and contested over the par-72, 6,746-yard Great White Course at the Doral Resort and Spa.

Lynn finished eleven ahead of Barry and fourteen clear of Florida Southern, defending two-time defending champion Rollins by eighteen shots.

In winning, Lynn snapped the thirteen-year streak of Florida Southern and Rollins who combined to win the SSC Tournament twelve times in the thirteen-year span.

"It's a great feeling for us to win, there's no question," veteran LU coach Eric Abreu said. "The Sunshine State Conference is one of the best in all of Division II. We have had lots of success against conference teams all season. Today really proved that we belong with the elite teams in this conference."

After opening with rounds of 295-296 to take a six-stoke lead with them into Tuesday's eighteen-hole final round, Lynn expanded upon its lead as sophomore Hoyt McGarity tied for second with rounds of 72-74-64. Mardy Fish made the final score 4-1 by beating Thomas Johansson 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Sophomore Gavin Dear tied for eleventh with scores of 78-75-78-231 as did freshman Matt Bookatz who put together rounds of 74-78-79.

Sophomore Sebastian Salem tied for twenty-fifth with scores of 75-81-81.

Lynn will return to action at the NCAA Regionals, scheduled for Springfield, Mo. May 3-5. The Knights will then look to be one of eighteen teams headed for the Division II National Championships to be held in mid-May in Deland, Fla.

The runway was set up in a very artistic way, using props to illustrate all the fashion stops; hay stacks in the center, a little miniature Eiffel tower, and a deck of cards to show the lifestyle of Vegas. The models strutted the runway with props that added to the theme; even real live puppies were in tow. Models included students James Taylor, Tashika Hinton, Mackenzie Moravec, and Darren Horan, as well as faculty members Dr. Marsha Glines and Ms. Fran Turner.

The highlight of the night was definitely the opening and ending skit by Dean Turner, who gave a terrific performance as Elvis, performing two of his original songs. The crowd roared with approval, and the ladies sure enjoyed the dancing he added.

Senior Kristen Banks said, “The show was really well organized and it was really entertaining. I had a good time...”

2004-2005 Student Government Sworn In New SGA Takes Office
by Lisa Gangel

As of Monday, April 19 the Student Government Association is under new management. The gavel has been passed, the responsibilities conceded. The glory of being an executive board member can no longer be savored by the 2003-2004 SGA. Lynn's 2003-2004 reigning Student Government Association Executive Board was run by President, Akil Lewis; Vice President, Allison Lazarus; Secretary, Lisa Gangel; Treasurer, Liz Speliotes; Residence Hall Association Chairperson, Ashlee Pfefferle; and KAT Chairperson, Ryan Konikoff.

These six members put in numerous hours meeting to discuss the betterment of life for Lynn University Students. Although the board didn't organize any dances or put together any pep rallies, these leaders supported Lynn students behind the scenes by providing funding to different organizations including the Black Student Union, the Caribbean Club, the Drama Club, the Gay-Straight Alliance and many more.

This year's SGA concludes its reign and efforts to better the Lynn community by creating amendments to the existing SGA constitution, that are yet to be passed, and concocting "New Organization Packets," which will aid leaders of new organizations in developing and furthering their organizations.

Along side Student Government moderator, Kelly Mullin, the newly elected student leaders will pick up where this year's SGA left off. As voted by the student body, the 2004-2005 reignig Student Government Association Executive Board is as follows: President, Sean Martel; Vice President, Endya Palm; Secretary, Allison Lazarus; Treasurer, Ashlee Pfefferle; Residence Hall Association Chairperson, Adam Price; and KAT Chairperson, Ryan Konikoff.

The new board has a lot of responsibility and will be looked to for leadership and a fresh start as fall, 2004 arrives.

Can you imagine having a team with all star players like Manny Ramirez, Alex Rodriguez and Barry Bonds? You can if you play Fantasy Baseball.

Every year at the start of the major league season, several Internet sites give fans the chance of a lifetime - the opportunity to own a virtual team, manage the budget and sign players within the limits of their salary cap. Fantasy league players earn points according to the performance of the real players.

Competition is tough because it's played worldwide and positions can change from one day to the next. Virtual managers have to balance their money and pick the superstars who will give them sure points, but are expensive, and the inexpensive rookies who can surprise and produce on the field.

The top point getters are usually the pitchers because there are many categories in which they can score: strikeouts innings pitched and wins. Starting pitchers are players to look for.

But, fantasy team owners have to be careful and react fast to any slump a real player might be going through, because every day lost can hurt.

Sportingnews.com allows you to pick 3 pitchers, a first or third baseman, a second baseman or shortstop and 3 outfielders. To check out your daily performance go to Sporting News' main page and click on the fantasy icon where you can create a password and login to personalize the page.

Now that you know are you ready to show what you got?

Argaez Saves The Day!
NCAA Tourney Bound
by Justin Cohen

It all came down to a single point. This was a match that could make or break a season for the Fighting Knights. With a win, the men of Lynn, seeded No. 3, would defeat No. 4 Eckerd, held at Rollins College in Orlando. The Fighting Knights would also claim third place at the Sunshine State Conference tournament and ultimately, a berth to the NCAA tournament. A loss would mean missing an experience most college athletes dream about, making the postseason tournament.

The series was tied at four matches a piece and all came down to the No. 5 singles player, senior Oscar Argaez. He would have to come from behind to put the Fighting Knights into to postseason play. After losing a quick first set 6-2, many Eckerd fans on hand wrote off the diminutive veteran Argaez and counted the No. 5 spot a lock.

But Argaez had other ideas. Calm and collected, he continued to smack balls from corner to corner, moving his less fit opponent all over the court. He progressively worked his way to the net after hitting sometimes up to fifteen balls from beyond the baseline. Surprising the spectators, Argaez broke serve then held his own to claim the second set 6-4.

Up 3-1 in the third, it looked like the crafty veteran would run away with the match, but Eckerd's Andre Mittag stayed strong, breaking serve and holding his own to even the match at 3-3.

The crowd pulling for Argaez got noisy, hoping to pump up Argaez, who has played under pressure before.

Point after point, Lynn fans chanted, "O-lay, O-lay, O-lay, Oscar, Oscar!"

Long rallies and close over-rule calls made the match one for the records.

Argaez held serve to go up 4-3 in the final set and quickly broke his opponents serve after playing four smart points. Argaez would take a 5-3 lead, as fans were on the edge of their seats and chants from the Lynn side of the crowd grew more powerful.

Argaez, who later said he thought this could have been his last collegiate tennis match if he could not win, was self-possessed as he won three straight points to go up 40-

Daniel Leventhal, sophomore "No matter how beautiful a woman is, there is some guy somewhere that is sick of her crap."

Dean Clark, freshman "I've learned that opportunities are surrounding us at every moment, everyday and every hour."

Fiston Kahindo, freshman "It's all about friendships. In this community, people are very friendly. I learned about the relationships between faculty and students, students amongst each other. That is the good thing about the community here."

Neil Solomon, freshman "Time management. I personally like to be ahead of the game- I like to get my work done ahead of time. If you let your work catch up to you, you'll be in a deep hole that is very hard to get out of."

Tom Ace, sophomore "I learned how to balance the equilibrium of beautiful women and work. I put a line between study life and party life."

Lea Frer, sophomore "How to organize my time, and how to not keep pushing everything to the last minute. I even applied this to cleaning my room!"

love.

One point and Argaez would claim victory and Lynn would head into the postseason again.

The crowd was silent as the toss went up. He hit to Mittag’s backhand, and then ran him to the forehand side. Mittag then ran to the net and Argaez smashed an approach shot forehand down the line for a winner, claiming a sweet 6-3 victory.

The crowd jumped up in exhilaration as Argaez raised his arms in delight. Lynn players ran onto the court to embrace the man of the weekend. They picked him up in joy because, not only did he save the day and his college tennis career, but also saved the season for his teammates.

Argaez and the Lynn men’s team is now headed for postseason play which begins on May 7, 2004.
