Hit And Run In Gravel Lot
Two Cars Hit In Gravel Lots Raises Parking Issues
by Juliette Schohn
Two cars were hit in both gravel parking lots on Nov. 7, one, not even 15 minutes after the first, left half of the car's front bumper on the ground and an offender on the run.

Both accidents, raised legal issues involved in parking in a gravel lot.
The first accident occurred in the big gravel parking lot at approximately 10:45 A.M. when a senior, pulling out of her parking spot, backed into the left front door of senior Jordan Baum's car, parked in the middle of the driveway.
The student at fault, who didn't want her name published in the ePulse, immediately went to get Lynn's security and also called the police to formally report the matter.

She reproached Baum for being parked somewhere he shouldn't have been. But according to the two police officers on the scene, and Lynn campus security, under Florida law, one cannot be illegally parked in a gravel parking lot.

The police officer said Baum was not illegally parked because his car was not blocking the driveway and left enough room for other cars to maneuver and get by.

Making The Most Of College
Harvard Professor Offers Insight On His Best Selling Book
by Juliette Schohn

Why are some college students successful from the very start while others find themselves struggling along? This is in fact, a crucial question, not only for students, but for their parents and teachers as well, which is addressed by Richard J. Light in his latest book Making the Most of College: Students Speak Their Minds.

On Nov. 3, Light, a professor at the Graduate School of Education and the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, visited Lynn to talk about his book.

As a result of Harvard's President Derrick Bok's request to analyze the effectiveness of the services provided to Harvard students and to explore ways of enhancing the college experience for a very different and diverse student body, Light, along with a complex group of fifty people including psychologists, biologists, educators, Deans, and students, undertook ten years of study with 1,600 graduating seniors. This long and extensive investigation was the foundation for Light’s book.

During his lecture at Lynn, which was open to the community, Light talked about the book’s background and how the project started. He described the investigation process and discussed some of the findings.

The book is an excellent guideline for students, parents, teachers, advisors, and anyone else in the education field, about how to make students' college years as successful as possible.

Comprised of nine chapters, it touches on topics such as the most effective classes, good mentoring and advising, how faculty can make a difference, or what college leaders can do, and also includes suggestions and anecdotes from students.

What makes this book so credible is that all of the information is derived from the feedback given by the very students themselves during the decade of research.

"The best way to understand how students are experiencing college is simply ask them," said Light.

In his lecture, Light touched on some of the findings from his book, such as the importance for students to get to know at least one faculty member well, the importance of study groups, and the importance of time management.

Light, who has a Ph.D. from Harvard, in statistics, has published seven books on education issues. He has served as the president of the American Evaluation Association and as a board member of the American Association of Higher Education and of the Fund for the improvement of Postsecondary Education as well as Chairman of the Panel on Youth for the National Academy of Sciences.

Always active in he currently chairs two more projects.

The following day, Light spoke in a professional development program for Lynn faculty.

Hispanic Heritage Month Goes Unrecognized At Lynn
by Felecia Hatcher

The month of October is nationally known as Hispanic Heritage month. Cultural celebrations officially begin on Sept. 15, an historic date that marks the anniversary of independence for five Latin American countries - Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua. In addition, Mexico’s independence is on Sept. 16 and Chile’s on Sept. 18.

But if you strolled the walkways of Lynn, you would have noticed that no particular respect was paid to the Latino community which accounts for a high percentage of American society, especially here in South Florida.

The U.S. Census Bureau predicts that by 2010, Hispanics will make up the majority of America. The term Hispanic, as defined by the Census Bureau, refers to Spanish-speaking people in the U.S.

During the October President’s Breakfast, some student leaders in attendance felt it was the responsibility of groups like Latin American Student Association (LASO) to make sure that events related to their culture are celebrated. But others felt this is the responsibility of the University as a whole. They thought the Student Activities office, as well as professors’ curriculum, should recognize and explore the achievements of Hispanic people who have contributed so much to American culture.

For example, outstanding Hispanics like Ellen Ochoa, the first Hispanic-American woman to fly in space, and Nobel Prize winner, Mario Molina who made important discoveries about the danger of chemicals to the earth’s atmosphere. Nicole Bressani, President of LASO, expressed discontent with the lack of recognition.

“If this school really cares about its students, then it should make them feel more at home.

“We (LASO) don’t have money to do anything big, so the responsibility of educating the whole school about our culture should not be left to a single club; it has to be a joint effort.

“Two years ago LASO didn’t exist. Just like other clubs on campus, they are here one year and gone the next, but heritage celebration months happen every year.”

LASO vice-president Elias Parra felt the school as a whole needs to be more sensitive to multicultural issues.

“We need to build a better sense of unity and school spirit. Spirit is something embedded in our culture.”

Members of the various Lynn cultural clubs, such as LASO, BSU and the Caribbean Club, say they exist because they feel underrepresented in the University and that the job of educating this whole school of their plight is a daunting task.

For more information on LASO and their upcoming events please email NicoleBressani@hotmail.com

Hit And Run Ctd

The situation in the ASSAF parking lot was similar. In this case, senior Mariana Fernandez’ car was parked at the end of the lane closest to the building entrance, leaving just enough room for cars to take the curve.

According to two witnesses, seniors Natalie Ruzgis and Chad Frangipane, the hit-and-run driver sped up before taking the curve to get to a free parking spot, and took Fernandez’ front bumper off. As her car alarm went off, the offender sped up again and left the scene.

The witnesses described the alleged offender’s car as a white compact with a license plate that had a green background. The driver was described as Asian.

The witnesses and other students carefully drove around the north parking lot and the other gravel lots looking for the car, but didn’t find it.

Fernandez had been planning to trade her 2001 Mitsubishi Mirage for a new one, but now has a repair cost of $700 maximum.

These two accidents raised parking issues at Lynn once again. As Lynn’s student population is growing every year, there aren’t enough parking spaces for both on-campus residents and off-campus students.

This situation causes students to park anywhere they can, therefore putting their cars at risk. According to one Lynn professor familiar with legal issues, such situations are considered contributory negligence. Lynn is not responsible for accidents like this, according to a sign at the entrance of the big gravel parking lot, which states, “Parking is at your own risk.”

Campus security constantly gives tickets to cars blocking driveways or preventing other cars from getting out of their parking spots. But, according to a police officer on the scene, Lynn’s tickets are not mandated by the city, and unless registered Lynn cars are cited, they are not enforced by the city.

Dean of Students Paul Turner said, “There isn’t enough parking so students should be careful where they park.”

Plans for a parking garage in the north lot are still being considered for construction in the near future, according to Turner.
Are you tired of the same old nightlife? Is it time for a change? Do you want some live music?

If your answer is yes, then it's time to put on your dancing shoes and venture out to a new venue.

There are numerous live music opportunities available on any given night. Live music can be heard from Palm Beach to Miami, and the gas money will be worth it.

Fort Lauderdale alone features many venues including Culture Room, Factory, and Revolution. In West Palm Beach, music can be heard at the Carefree theater, Hotel, Spankey’s, or Ray’s Downtown.

In Miami, there’s Tobacco Road, the James L. Knight center, the Improv, and Nocturnal.

Larger arenas include the American Airlines Arena, Expo Center, the Pompano Amphitheater, and Sound Advice.

Also, be on the lookout for upcoming festivals including the South Florida Folk and Acoustic Music Festival, Langerado Music Festival, and The Jam Cruise.

There are several ways to find out about local music around town. Here are a few Internet sites that can help you find your groove.

Men Win SSC Tournament

Second Straight Soccer Title

by Justin Cohen

The Fighting Knights successfully defended their Sunshine State Conference title, on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 7, as they defeated Nova Southeastern 2-1 in the SSC Tournament final at Rollins College in Winter Park.

On their way to the final, the men beat St. Leo 2-1 in the quarter-finals and No. 7 Rollins 1-0 in the semi-finals.

Sophomore Carl Wallace started the championship game by scoring three minutes into the first half, on an assist from freshman Hiroshi Ando of Japan.

Nova scored next in the fifteenth minute to tie the game up at one goal each until Wallace later scored another assisted by junior Andy Hirst and sophomore Nicky Darker.

That goal earned the Knights the big win.

Ando, senior Jared Montz and sophomore Lee Paul Scroggins were named to the SSC All-Tournament Team. Wallace, who played spectacularly throughout the season, was named the tournament's Most Outstanding Player.

Unfortunately, the team received word from the NCAA Regional Selection Committee that they did not qualify for the post-season NCAA Division II Championship.

Hoogveld And Wallace Named To Commissioner's List

by Justin Cohen

Michelle Hoogveld & Carl Wallace

Sunshine State Conference Commissioner Mike Marcil announced on Wed., Nov. 3, that junior Michelle Hoogveld and sophomore Carl Wallace were both named to the SSC Commissioner's List for their outstanding performances in the month of October.

A transfer from Division I Oral Roberts, Hoogveld played a significant amount of time throughout the season.

In Oct., the young Canadian scored six goals and assisted three others.

This season, she finished with a total of 12 goals, the first time since 2000 a Lynn player scored at least ten.

Wallace, who plays forward, scored eight times in eight games and assisted two goals last month.

The young man from Stafford, England, led the Fighting Knights with a total of 11 goals in the regular season.

Men's Basketball Team Gets Ready For 04-05 Season

by Daniel M. Pearl

As the 2004-2005 B-Ball season approaches, Lynn's men's team will have to try to surpass the 17 victories from last season. But in sports, nothing ever comes without hard work.

The main focus of the Knights should be to have everyone healthy, and working hard towards reaching the Elite-8, the best eight teams in the NCAA Division II, at the end of the season, in late March.

This year's squad is lead by Coach Scott McMillin, returning for his second season, assisted by coaches Ben Connolly and Andy Faggan.

Returning players include senior guards Akil Lewis and James Taylor, back for their final run, as well as seniors Justin Wingard and Austin Faber who led Lynn in assists last season.

Marcus Hayes, junior, will return healthy to the team after spending last year with a medical red-shirt due to a broken foot injury that sidelined him all season.

Hayes said, "I am glad to be back and healthy and just hope I can help my team out any way I can."

Hayes will try to go beyond his success of '02-03 when he averaged 10.5.
Basketball Cld

points and pulled down over five rebounds a game.

This veteran team is joined by new transfers from as far as Denmark. The Netherlands' Hans Schur, 6'8", forward, will add a big body for opponents to try and defend in the post.

Defense should definitely be a strong point again this season for McMillin's Knights as they set a school-record last season holding 13 opponents to 60 points or less, only surrendering an impressive 61.5 points per game.

McMillin said, "There were definitely some positives that came out of last season. The team's defense was the biggest positive as the team could rely on it even if their offense was struggling at times."

This year's team will also be complimented with 6'4" Sheldon Edwards, and from South Georgia Tech Junior College, guards James Cage and Marvin Collins who will add a lot of depth to the backcourt.

The season will tip off on Fri. Nov. 19 with the Pepsi Doubletree Classic, here at Lynn, against Puerto Rico-Mayaguez, and on Nov. 20, the Knights will go up against Shaw University.

Their first SSC Conference game will be against Florida Tech, in Melbourne, on Dec. 4, and after that, the men will return to Boca for the Palm Beach Hoops Classic.

Starting off the New Year they will face a difficult schedule as they have seven conference games in January alone.

Fisch's Week 10 NFL Forecast

Steelers Ride The Bus To Victory

by Mike Fisch

The Pittsburgh Steelers were in a difficult situation Sunday before kickoff. Their star RB Duce Staley suffered a hamstring injury during Friday's practice and was unable to play on Sunday against their state-rivals from the east, the Philadelphia Eagles.

On top of this, the Steelers were honoring the 1979 title team during their halftime ceremony. So they took a trip on the bus back in time and rode it to victory during a 27-3 thumping of the Eagles.

After beating the undefeated New England Patriots last week, the Steelers once again played spoiler as they ruined the Eagles perfect season, becoming the first team in NFL history to beat two undefeated teams in consecutive games.

The Steelers' defense was outstanding as they sacked the Eagles' QB Donovan McNabb three times. For their offense, they used veteran Jerome Bettis, aka "the Bus," who bulldozed Eagle defenders and shed tackles all day gaining 149 yards on 33 carries.

The Steelers out-gained the Eagles on the ground 252-23. "The Bus," who is sixth on the NFL's all-time rushing list with 12,631 yards, has been limited this season to short-yard situations because of his stamina as well as the acquisition of Duce Staley, who is much faster.

Besides "the Bus," the Steelers' rookie QB Ben Roethlisberger completed 11 passes for 158 yards and two touchdowns. Roethlisberger tied an NFL record set by Mike Kruczek in 1976 for six straight wins as a rookie starter.

This week, Steelers will play the Cleveland Browns.

Two key games for Week 10:

Baltimore Ravens (5-3) @ New York Jets (6-2)

This is a big game, considering that both of these teams are chasing the other teams among the elite in the AFC.

The Ravens are chasing the Steelers who are 7-1 and seem to have locked up a playoff spot in the division, while the Jets suffered a disappointing loss last week at Buffalo and find themselves a game behind the Patriots.

Neither team can afford another loss to diminish their division title chances.

The Jets faced a Buffalo defense last week that stymied them all day. They had only 282 yards of total offense and could be in serious trouble if their QB Chad Pennington would not play because of a bruised right shoulder on his throwing arm.

Meanwhile, the Jets had all sorts of problems stopping Bills RB Willis McGahee who rushed for 132 yards and one touchdown.

The Ravens pose a greater threat than McGahee as they counter with Jamal Lewis, who was the leading rusher last season.

Look for a defensive struggle all day as both teams have problems on offense.

Mike's Pick: Ravens

Seattle Seahawks (5-3) @ St Louis Rams (4-4)

This rematch of Week 5 game in which the Rams came back from a 17-point deficit with five minutes left to surprise the Seahawks in overtime.

The Rams are reeling as they have a two-game losing streak, including a spanking in the hands of the defending

Super Bowl champions last week at home, 40-22. Once again, this will be an offensive showdown like Week 5.

The teams combined for 832 total yards. The Rams are third in the league in total offense with 368 yards per game and are led by QB Marc Bulger who has 12 TD Passes and WR Torry Holt who has 43 receptions for 602 yards and five touchdowns.

The Seahawks are fourth in the league in total offense with 367 yards per game. They are led by the duo of QB Matt Hasselbeck who has thrown for 1185 yards and 11 TD passes and RB Shawn Alexander who has rushed for 879 yards and 9 TD's.

1. Preheat oven to 450 degree. Let piecrust come to room temperature according to package directions.

2. Meanwhile, in a small mixing bowl stir together cream cheese, the 1/2 cup chopped nuts, raisins, egg yolk, and honey; set aside. In a mixing bowl combine pumpkin, evaporated milk, sugar, egg white, whole egg, and pumpkin pie spice.

3. Roll piecrust into a 13-inch circle. Ease piecrust into an 11-inch tart or 10-inch quiche pan. Press edges of piecrust against edges of pan. Line the unpricked pastry shell with a double thickness of heavy-duty foil. Bake for 5 minutes. Remove foil. Bake for 5 to 7 minutes more or until pastry is nearly done. Remove from the oven. Reduce oven temperature to 375 degree. Carefully spoon cream cheese mixture into piecrust; spread evenly. Pour pumpkin mixture over cream cheese layer.

4. Place tart on preheated baking sheet; bake for 30 to 35 minutes or until a knife inserted off-center comes out clean. Cool on a wire rack. Cover and chill for at least 2 hours or up to 2 days.

5. To serve, if using a tart pan with a removable bottom, remove outer rim of pan. Carefully lift tart from pan bottom with a large spatula; slide onto a serving platter. Spoon whipped cream on top and sprinkle with the 2 tablespoons chopped nuts. Makes 10 servings.

If your answer is yes, then it’s time to put on your dancing shoes and venture out to a new venue.

There are numerous live music opportunities available on any given night. Live music can be heard from Palm Beach to Miami, and the gas money will be worth it.

Fort Lauderdale alone features many venues including Culture Room, Factory, and Revolution. In West Palm Beach, music can be heard at the Carefree theater, Hotel, Spankey’s, or Ray’s Downtown.

In Miami, there’s Tobacco Road, the James L. Knight center, the Improv, and Nocturnal.

Larger arenas include the American Airlines Arena, Expo Center, the Pompano Amphitheater, and Sound Advice.

Also, be on the lookout for upcoming festivals including the South Florida Folk and Acoustic Music Festival, Langerado Music Festival, and The Jam Cruise.

There are several ways to find out about local music around town. Here are a few Internet sites that can help you find your groove.

Jan Macko from Brno, Czech Republic, isn’t only a model student in the classroom, but also a dedicated tennis player with a passion for winning.

Last season, Macko helped lead the Fighting Knights to an NCAA tournament berth, while individually being named to the All-Sunshine State Conference Second Team for his significant singles and doubles play.

While playing most of last season at No. 3 singles, Macko put together a season best seven-match win streak.

During the recently completed fall schedule, Macko teamed up with grad student Eduardo Morones to win the Flight A Championship at the C.L. Varner Invitational tournament held at Rollins College in October, where

In the 2001 NFL season, the Baltimore Ravens used the blueprint of a strong defense and special teams to win the Super Bowl. Despite winning, they had a mediocre offense and a journeyman QB, Trent Dilfer.

The Chicago Bears are using a similar scheme this year, and are getting positive results from big plays by the defense and special teams.

Bears DE Adewale Ogunleye tackled Tennessee Titans T Fred Miller in the end zone forcing a safety in what resulted in a 19-17 Bears victory. This was only the second time in NFL history that a game ended with a safety.

The Bears have now won three games in a row after starting off the season 1-5. All of this success is coming despite using their third string QB Craig Krenzel and backup RB Anthony Thomas.

The Bears were out-gained 390-176 by the Titans, but their defense and special teams accounted for 16 of the 19 points. DE Michael Haynes intercepted a pass from QB Billy Volek and ran it back 45 yards for a TD. Later, CB R.W. McQuarters returned a punt 75 yards for a TD for the other TD.

During their three game winning streak, the Bears have caused 10 turnovers, four interceptions, two of which have been returned for a TD, 13 sacks and 1 safety. They are currently ranked ninth in the NFL in total defense.
NFL Ctd

and it seems they are only going to get stronger.

Their next task is trying to contain the Indianapolis Colts led by Peyton Manning, who last week, against the Houston Texans, threw five TD passes for the third time this season, which led them to a 49-14 victory over the Texans.

Three key games for Week 11:

Atlanta Falcons (7-2) @ New York Giants (5-4)

This is a match between two teams who have been going in opposite directions over the past few weeks.

First, the Falcons have taken a stranglehold on first place in their division, the NFC South. They are 7-2 and have a three-game lead over the second place team in the division, the New Orleans Saints. Last week, they blitzed their divisional rival, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 24-14.

QB Michael Vick is finally getting comfortable with the West Coast offense, a pass-oriented type of offense. Vick is mostly known for his speed as he is able to outrun defenders near him, making him a threat not only in passing, but also for his ability to scramble for yardage.

Meanwhile, the Giants have lost two games in a row and have fallen back to earth with a current record of 5-4, after starting the season 5-2.

Their latest defeat was a 17-14 setback against the lowly Arizona Cardinals. This is due to their offensive line. In their last two losses, they have allowed a total of 13 sacks, including six against the Cardinals.

Giants QB Kurt Warner will face a Falcons defense which is Second to last in the NFC against the pass.

In order for the Giants to win, Warner needs to get rid of the ball much quicker than he has been, in order to avoid all the sacks.

Furthermore, lately, the Giants have had problems stopping the run. Last week was no exception as Cardinals RB Emmitt Smith had two rushing TD's.

Mike's Pick: Atlanta

New England Patriots (8-1) @ Kansas City Chiefs (3-6)

This is another game in which one team is heading North while the other is heading South.

Two weeks ago, the Patriots had their 21-game winning streak and perfect season snapped by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

On the other hand, the Kansas City Chiefs outlasted the Indianapolis Colts 45-35, improving their record to 3-4.

Many expected the Patriots to be on the decline and the Chiefs to climb back into the playoff race.

However, the opposite has happened.

As usual, the Chiefs have been struggling on defense. Last week, they lost to the New Orleans Saints 27-20 despite gaining 497 yards of total offense. They turned the ball over four times. RB Derrick Blaylock, who started in place of the all-pro Priest Holmes, rushed 33 times for 186 yards and one touchdown.

However, in order for the Chiefs to have any shot against the Patriots, they would need Holmes healthy to play. Holmes poses a much bigger threat against defenses than Blaylock.

The Patriots defense held the Buffalo Bills to 125 yards of total offense but the Chiefs have many more weapons than the Bills.

Look for the Chiefs to rush Holmes or Blaylock, whichever one plays. Also look for Patriot QB Tom Brady to throw the ball downfield against the Chiefs secondary, which allows 249 passing yards per game.

Mike's Pick: New England

Indianapolis Colts (6-3) @ Chicago Bears (4-5)

Moments collide as the high-powered Colts offense takes on the surging Bears defense.

Peyton Manning has the Colts ranked number two in the AFC in total offense. Manning is arguably the MVP so far in this season as he has thrown for 31 TD passes, five of which were in last week's game against the Houston Texans.

Meanwhile, the Bears have caused 10 turnovers, sacked the opposing QB 13 times, and forced four interceptions during their three-game winning streak.

However, what may decide this game is the Colts' ability on defense to stop the Bears offense. The Bears are last in the NFC in total offense as they average 245 yards per game, including 176 yards against the Tennessee Titans last week.

The Colts are dead-last in the AFC in total defense as they have allowed over 400 yards of offense per game. The Bears offense has been anything but effective as they have gone to third-string QB Craig Krenzel, who is a rookie from Ohio State. Krenzel has completed only 31 passes and has thrown for only two TD passes; but he makes the big play when he needs to.

Against the Titans, Krenzel led the Bears down the field during the final two minutes of the game in which the Bears tied the game and eventually won.

It will be tough for the Bears to win this week, but don't be surprised if the defense comes ready to play.

NFL Cbd
Super Bowl champions last week at home, 40-22. Once again, this will be an offensive showdown like Week 5.

The teams combined for 832 total yards. The Rams are third in the league in total offense with 368 yards per game and are led by QB Marc Bulger who has 12 TD Passes and WR Torry Holt who has 43 receptions for 602 yards and five touchdowns.

The Seahawks are fourth in the league in total offense with 367 yards per game. They are led by the duo of QB Matt Hasselbeck who has thrown for 1185 yards and 11 TD passes and RB Shawn Alexander who has rushed for 879 yards and 9 TD’s.
