Sure, the season came to an end with a 76-61 defeat to the eventual D-II champs, Virginia Union; however, that didn't prevent the men's basketball team from finishing with an incredible season.

Not only did this team finish with the most victories in Lynn history, but they also clinched their first Sunshine State Conference regular season championship. [MORE ON PAGE 7]

Men's Tennis
Streak Continues
12 Straight Wins And Counting
by Mike Fisch

Tired of feasting on Division-II opponents, men's tennis decided to test their luck when they went up against Division-I opponent and rival, FAU. The result was similar to the previous 11 games... a victory!

This time, they had to come back. Down 2-1 after doubles, Aivaras Balzekas, Jan Macko, Dennis Riegraf and Daniel Zednik each won their singles matches to take down FAU 5-4. The victory improved their overall record to 13-2.

The No. 3 doubles team of Riegraf and Balzekas sparked the comeback after the No. 1 and 2 doubles teams both went down in defeat. They won their match 9-7 after coming back from a near defeat. This victory proves Lynn can hang with the best in D-1, while beating the D-1 schools as well.

Hollywood Comes To Lynn
Producer Jonathan Krane To Head Film Academy
by W. Nelson Lewis

Lynn President Donald E. Ross announced that noted film producer Jonathan Krane will serve as executive director of the newly-established Krane Academy of Motion Pictures. Classes will commence in September 2005.

"Jonathan Krane is an icon of the film industry," said Ross. Students who complete an 18-month certificate program will have the option of pursuing a Master of Science degree in mass communication. After graduation, Lynn motion picture students will be qualified to work in the Hollywood movie industry.

"Because they'll be dealing one-on-one with Hollywood insiders throughout their filmmaking process, our graduates will be professionals themselves by the time they complete the program," Krane said.

In addition to a legendary career as a film producer, he taught at UCLA for 17 years, as well as conducting seminars for film professionals. Krane now splits his time between Boca Raton and Los Angeles.

Throughout Krane’s expansive 25-year-long career in film production, he has managed over 150 writers, directors, and actors including John Travolta, Kim Basinger, Drew Barrymore, Julie Andrews, and Teresa Russell.

Krane also has produced 44 feature length films. Some of his most recognizable films include, "Face/Off," "Primary Colors," "Phenomenon," "Domestic Disturbance," "Look Who’s Talking" and its sequels. Krane is also the co-founder of Blake Edwards Entertainment, where he co-produced "Micki & Maude," "Blind Date," and "The Trail of the Pink Panther" with Edwards.

The 411 On Study Abroad
Where's It's Happenin' Overseas by Flip Froehlich

So I got some info on this study abroad thing the other day, and did a lil' reading up on it. We got some pretty cool stuff happenin' for the summer.

A lot of courses are offered through schooling in Ireland, and as long as you PASS, the credits will transfer to our homeland here in Boca Raton. Although you might be touring around other parts of Ireland, for example, Dublin remains the national capital AND largest city in Ireland. The majority of residents living there are under the age of 25, so it must be quite an experience being in the "city of young people". Resident halls are located only one-and-a-half blocks away from the main campus, so for the more lazy kind, it's a much shorter walk than ASSAF, I'm sure.

If you're not into the Ireland thing, there's always other study abroad schooling you can take advantage of, just as long as the credits are transferrable. Most of these trips are about ten days long. As far as study abroad tours for the summer, these trips are gonna be awesome! The fees are pretty much the same as one semester at Lynn, but of course any studying you do abroad with Lynn will offer you financial aid, grants, scholarships, the works. For more info on financial benefits and general knowledge, try out www.StudyAbroad.com. I found Lynn's study abroad plan for the summer, and like I said, we have some neat stuff goin' on that I just wanted to share with all of ye' (Now some of these trips have previous payments due, but someone in the International Building, might be able to hook you up if you're interested). Out.

The Power Of Price
Adam Price Believes In The Power Of The Media by W. Nelson Lewis

Adam Price is a passionate student film maker in the College of International Communication. His new film, "Patient", is about his closest friend who contracted a mysterious rare disease called gastroparesis.

"We shot the movie with the backdrop of her sisters wedding, the whole process took months to complete." It may not have made his friend recover more quickly, but it did give a big boost to his own career. The 25-minute mini-documentary has been accepted by the Palm Beach International Film Festival and will be shown at the Boca Raton Muvico on the April 18 at 1:45 P.M. It is the first Lynn film to be accepted by the festival.

Senior Endya Palm contributed creative energies to the film as did baseball player Mike Christophoro.

Last week the three of us met at Starbucks inside Barnes and Noble and discussed the intricate process of making the film and the reasons why he took on the responsibility.

"I don't know anything about medicine, but I wanted to use my talents in filmmaking," Price recalled.

Seeing the documentary, I felt as though the whole cinematic experience was an emotional journey. Price successfully portrays the traumatic path to recovery that his friend was forced to endure. This film leaves an indelible impression of humanity on the viewer.

Fabulous Fashion
Trends From The 50's To The Future
by Elizabeth Mason

It was standing room only at the Green Center for Lynn's Fashion Flashback, a show of the top fashion trends from the 50's to the future.

Megan Brougher said, "The models were very enthusiastic, and the show was a great success."

Fashion Flashback, presented by the students of the fashion management business program, included some 60 student and faculty models, as well as hilarious performances by Dr. Gregg Cox, appearing as a middle-aged Eminem; basketball star James Taylor, as Dr. Dre; and Drs. Marsha Glines and Ralph Norcia, as improbable dead ringers for Sonny and Cher, engendering wild applause and laughter from a stunned audience.

Lindsey Schaeffer said, "Dr. Cox was hilarious! ... his dance performance, stunning!"

The nearly hour-long show was complete with music, lighting and theatrical skills performed for each decade. More than 85 outfits from posh retailers, such as Theory, Vertigo and Chico's from the Town Center Mall in Boca Raton strutted down the runway. Makeup was done by Mary Kay Cosmetics and hair by Hair Color Experts.

Senior Amanda Weidman said, "Dr. Dandeo did an amazing job putting the entire show together. This year's fashion show was a huge success, and I hope she runs it again next year."

Walking Closer To A Cure
Relay for Life!
by John Rueger

April first and second, Lynn students participated in the Relay for Life fundraiser on the FAU track to raise money for the Cancer Research Foundation. The event involved the participants to walk the track, and with each completed lap, money was donated on behalf of the sponsored walkers.

The students set up a tent with a Las Vegas theme, complete with massage tables and nourishment for participants. The event was hosted by a DJ, broadcasting live, for a local radio station, and it included a variety of games and several raffles.

The activities lasted through the evening and into the morning with enough energy and activities to keep everyone interested, even if they were not actually walking.

The fundraiser collected a total of approximately $36,000 that will go towards future cancer research. Juliette Schohn said, "The event was a success with Lynn coming in second for most money raised, and the students are proud of the results."

The Knights finished the season with a record of 29-6. In the loss, Junior Marcus Hayes led the team with 17 points shooting 50 percent (7-14) from the field. Senior Justin Wingard, who played his last game in a Knights uniform finished with a double-double with 13 points and 10 rebounds.

Wingard also leaves Lynn with three school records; rebounding field goals made, and free-throws. That was his team-leading sixth double-double of the season.

Three other seniors along with Wingard also are leaving. Each of them takes a school record with them. Austin Faber is the school's all-time assist leader, James Taylor, the all-time leading scorer and Akil Lewis the three-pointers made leader.

Sneak Peak of "Hitters Anonymous"
by John Rueger

Palm Beach International Film Festival judge Jonathan Krane arranged for a special screening of the film "Hitters Anonymous" on campus and the star, Steven Bauer (you remember him from "Scarface") talked to us about the making of the movie and some of his other projects.

The comedy, directed by Monte A. Young and starring Bauer and Linda Blair of "Exorcist" fame, is about an ultra-dysfunctional married couple who are professional killers.

Murch runs record to 32-3
by Mike Flach

There is always a first time for everything. Lynn Softball (46-7, 20-4) won its first Sunshine State Conference by sweeping Tampa (18-21, 9-15) 9-1 and 11-3.

Aimee Murch carried a no-hitter through five innings of the first game as she struck out six Tampa batters. She got plenty of offensive firepower with the help of Home Runs from Danielle Curcio, Tiffani King and Kristina Ely.

The Knights scored three runs in the first, fourth and fifth to bust the game wide open. Rachel Foster got the nod in game two as she went 6 innings while allowing 3 runs on seven hits, striking out two and walking two. She ran her season record to 13-4. Like Murch, she got plenty of offensive support.

Sam Wilkinson went 3-4 with a single, double and homerun. She finished the game with 5 RBI's.

I was encouraged to revive the recycling program at Lynn after reading Recycling and Beyond: A College Campus Primer, written and compiled by Christine von Kolnitz, of the Medical University of South Carolina, and Karyn Kaplan, University of Oregon. According to this book, “a small school [under 3000 students] generally has an advantage in starting a recycling program because of its smaller volume of collectible materials, and a more consolidated campus.” (Chapter 3.III, “How to Start a Recycling Program; Special Considerations: Size of Campus”).

From my observations and discussions with several students who are involved with student organizations on campus, I have discovered that they are in support of recycling but would not want to take the time to sort through trash or collect recycling materials in various bins throughout campus to then be recycled. I want to let all students on this campus to know what the benefits of recycling are.

According to the Reynolds Metal Company, if you recycle one aluminum can, you will be saving enough energy to be able to run a television for three hours. Since most movies are about three hours, shows are about half an hour or an hour, this means that you could watch one movie and one show or between three to six shows, all with the energy from one aluminum can. Recycling also reduces pollution by ninety-five percent. One pound of aluminum saves four pounds of bauxite. In addition to this, we throw away enough aluminum to rebuild its commercial air fleet four times every year. (Reynolds Metal Company.)

The Environmental Protection Agency says that one recycled glass bottle can light a one-hundred-watt bulb for four hours. According to NASA, recycling glass reduces air pollution by twenty percent and water pollution by fifty percent. There are over forty-one billion glass bottles made every year, which can be reused over and over again without limits. (Environmental Protection Agency).

Using recycled paper saves sixty percent of energy. Each ton of recycled paper saves sixty pounds of air pollution, saves seventeen trees, and seven thousand gallons of water, according to the Center for Ecological Technology and the Environmental Protection Agency. Every year enough paper is thrown away to build a twelve-foot wall across the nation from New York to California.

There are many economic benefits of recycling at all levels including national, state, and local levels. It costs less. If you have a successful recycling program, you will spend less money than if you were to pay waste collectors, put it in landfills and incinerators. This also relates to the saying “The more the merrier” because it gets cheaper and cheaper the more people you have recycling. There are various programs such as earning a nickel for every can and/or bottle that you recycle that help families and communities by paying them for recycling. Recycling has also created 1.1 million high paying jobs in the United States. In addition to that, recycling creates four jobs for every one job in waste management or disposal industries. Not only is recycling beneficial for families and communities, but it has also saved companies millions of dollars by taking part in recycling programs.

In addition to these benefits, the biggest and most important benefit is that if we recycle, we will reduce the risk of depleting the Earth. Now that you know all of the benefits of recycling, you will hopefully become more active in doing your part to recycle on campus.

If we want a successful program to take place on Lynn University campus, we must start by agreeing to cooperate once such a program is in place, by using the recycling bins for their intended purpose—for placing recyclables, not trash, in the bins. This is very little to ask, but the benefits are enormous and rewarding on many levels.
Swimming With The Fisch's
How the Fisch Bros. Live by Flip Froehlich

This is a crib I often find myself walking into: Phish's (Brian) house, or Fisch (Mike) if you’re referring to the sports wizard. The two of these guys own a place over at Wimbledon Villa's on Verde Trail. Gotta love this house.

Of course, you’ll always see Fisch pimping his white Pontiac Grand Prix while his brother will do it up with the Chrysler Sebring convertible. If it wasn’t that, I think he’d be rocking one of those 1960 VW vans - you know what I’m talking about? Anyways, they’ve got a garage right out front with a cool pathway running down the side of the house which leads to their backyard and screened-in patio. Walking through the front door you’ll hang a quick U-ee to enter the world of Phishead.

His walls with a tye-dye bedspread and one of his lady friends compiled for him in Chi-town ...

Love the room, but there’s always more - the kitchen is at the left and usually there’ll always be grilling material inside the fridge. The kitchen is also pretty cool because of the overhead light that turns on and off at lightening fast speed ...

Awesome.

The “lounging” area, as I would describe it I suppose, consist of two couches you’ve ever sat on with a phat 52-inch plopped right in front on the coffee table ...

This is not just a TV ladies and gentlemen, this work of art can divide the screen in half, allowing two channels to be viewed at the same time. But there’s more. This big hunk of electro-tech can display multiple screens all at once! I think they even have a recording device on there, but I’m not sure.

Mike’s room is just beyond the TV and he’s got the hook-up with a sky window in his room. It’s a nice size, I dig it huge. Fisch, of course, has another tubet at the foot of his bed: nice move on his part.

Outside of Fische’s room is the patio, backyard and ... the grill, by far one of the hugest additions to the Fisch aquarium. Many of burgers have been enjoyed simultaneously there. If you haven’t experienced this grill, or the chef’s (Phish) dedication to ensure quality and preservation of taste, you really haven’t experienced eating in general. It’s worth the trip ... I know!

Bauer talked about his upcoming movie. “I was recently in Utah for the Sundance festival where we had shown another film I just got done doing earlier in the year called ‘How the Garcia Girls Spent Their Summer’, which was directed by Georgina Garcia Riedel, and this truly is a real good movie and worth seeing when it comes to theatres.”

SAA Hits Homerun Softball Slam a Success by Sara Assad

Neither wind nor cloud put a damper on the Student Alumni Association’s (SAA) second annual Softball Slam. Students, faculty and staff members all came out to see the battle on the field. Players for the faculty included Dr. Jim Miller, Ala’a Ali, Theo Kurtis, and Diane Diserbo, among others. And the students were represented by CJ Ala’a Ali, Magale, Justin Wingard, India Palm, Neil Solomen, Akil Lewis and Nicole Frasier.

The lead jumped back and forth between the teams until the students inched ahead to win the game 11-7.

Gareth Fowles, SAA advisor, presented the winners with a trophy.

In addition to the game, there was also music and food - a delicious BBQ dinner set on the DeHorne Lawn, beside the field, as well as a pig roast donated by sophomore and SAAer Caroline Robinio.

“I enjoyed the game a lot. It was interesting to see the staff members in a different light than the classroom,” said Robino.

SAA president Bridget Fowles said the event was funded by donations from Cheney Brothers, and the SAA.

“The Slam was a huge success. I’m really happy to see the students and faculty come out here together through the game,” said Fowles.
